Classification of Intangible Property, Best Solution of Our Tax Problem, Says F. N. Judson

Noted Authority on Subject, Writing for the Post-Dispatch, says Men Will Evade Assessments on Securities as Long as Present Confiscatory System Is in Vogue—Method He Advocates Would Insure Effectiveness.

By FREDERICK N. JUDSON

St. Louis Lawyer, Who Is an Authority on Taxation and Is the Author of "Law and Practice of Taxation in Missouri," "The Taxing Power, State and Federal, in the United States," and Other Books and Articles on the Subject.

THERE certainly is a taxation problem in Missouri. It was clearly shown by Dr. Isodor Loeb in the Post-Dispatch of last Sunday that the taxation system of Missouri has failed in the two essential characteristics of a taxation system. In the first place, although we are levying in Missouri the maximum rate for State purposes, authorized by the Constitution, the public revenue falls far short of the necessary public needs.

It is also true that the municipalities of the State are in the same condition. Some of them, notably the City of St. Louis, are compelled to raise the valuation of property far above the average of valuations in the State in order to secure the revenue for pressing public needs, although this is a direct violation of the requirement of uniformity directed by the State Constitution. In the second place, our tax system is a failure because, in so far as the taxation of intangible personal propery is concerned, it is admittedly ineffective, so much so that it has become a deplorable public scandal involving a demoralization of the public conscience.

An Ineffective Tax Necessarily a Failure

THE real cause of this failure of our taxing system lies in its effectiveness. An ineffective tax is necessarily an unequal and unjust tax. Any tax which depends upon personal disclosure and is necessarily confiscatory will certainly be the subject of evasion, and any tax which can be successfully evaded is necessarily ineffective and unjust.

'The general property tax which assumes that all property can be taxed alike is an admitted failure in so far as the taxation of the enormous wealth invested in securities is concerned.

F. N. JUDSON

This is clear when we consider the rate of interest of investment securities of the highest class such as bonds and mortgages, and the tax rate in our cities. Thus the interest on investment securities of the highest class in which alone trustees can or ought to invest is from 3 to 5 per cent. In St. Louis the tax rate is $2.35. When such a tax is levied upon investment securities of the highest class the result is a tax which takes from 40 to 60% of the income and such a tax is necessarily confiscatory. The result is a widespread tax evasion, which is not only tolerated but justified by public opinion.

Confiscatory Tax Cannot Be Collected Anywhere.

IN the State of New York this subject was recently investigated by a joint legislative committee, and in its report it says:

> Personal property tax and a general property rate, let us say 2 per cent, is confiscatory and an actual incentive to dishonesty. Two per cent is the equivalent of 50 per cent of the income of a 4 per cent bond, and no country in the world in normal times has or can successfully impose a 50 per cent income tax. The taxpayer will not submit to it, particularly when he knows that thousands of fellow citizens, in many cases with incomes much larger than his own, are actually evading its payment.

This ineffectiveness of our taxing system necessarily results in an increased burden upon real estate and tangible property which cannot be concealed. It is impossible to increase the valuation of real estate in our cities, because the local tax rate is so high as to make an increase of valuation essentially confiscatory.

The burden of this situation does not fall upon the wealthy; that is, upon those of large surplus incomes, but upon the men of moderate means who try, through accumulations of life insurance, to provide for their families. I have known of cases in my professional experience whereof the income from a moderate amount of life insurance at least 50% was confiscated, that is, taken from the widows and orphans. Thus, if the proceeds of a life insurance policy of $10,000 is invested in 5% bonds the tax rate in St. Louis would leave about $265 of the net income. To families of moderate means, including the great mass of the community, the enforcement of such a tax would be an actual deprivation of the comforts, if not the necessities of life.

This breakdown of our tax system through ineffectiveness necessarily involves a discrimination against the farmers as a class as compared with the residents of cities. The loss of revenue must be made up through an increased burden upon real estate and tangible property; and as the property of the former consists of real estate and tangible property which cannot be concealed, in the nature of things he must bear the increased burden, notwithstanding he may seem to profit through the lowering of the valuation in his county in violation of the uniformity required by the Constitution.

Unfairness of Present System to Trust Estates.

THIS breakdown of our taxing system has resulted in a deplorable situation as to trust estates. It is well known that trustees cannot make changes in their investments, and the law requires them to invest in bonds rather than stocks, but as already shown they cannot invest in bonds or mortgages, without submitting to a confiscation of their income.

Men may be willing to evade taxation as concerns their own investments, but their trustees do not feel called upon to, nor have they any right to, evade taxation for the sake of their beneficiaries. In this connection, however, it should be noted that in one respect the tax system in Missouri, as construed by our Supreme Court, recognizes interstate comity more than some other States in that it does not tax the stocks of foreign corporations, that is, corporations of other States owned by residents of this State. It follows that an investor can invest in stock of the Pennsylvania Railroad, or any non-resident corporation, and escape any taxation in this State on the theory, which is, of course, correct, that the property represented by the stock is, as we must assume, fully taxed in other States. On the other hand, one cannot invest in the bonds of that or any other railroad without

Hunting Guerillas Not New Work for Pershing

He Won His Spurs in That Sort of Warfare

Helped to Capture Geronimo; Suppressed the Great Moro Rebellion

Stories of the Achievements of This Interesting Missourian Whom Roosevelt Jumped Over 862 Ranking Officers to Make a General, but Who Has Lived to Win the Regard and Esteem of Those Whom This Evidence of Executive Favoritism Offended.

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING.

When Roosevelt Jumped Him Over 862 Ranking Officers to a Brigadier Generalship. There Was a Storm in Army Circles, but Even Those Who Were Thus Offended Now Admit He Has Made Good in His High Rank.

WHEN the Government of the United States, moved by the President's order to pursue and capture, "dead or alive," Francisco Villa, the most cunning and picturesque of all the Mexican guerillas, a man skilled through long experience in hunting down guerillas just as cunning and resourceful in their limited field of operations, was chosen to command the military force charged with the execution of the President's demand. He is John J. Pershing, born Oct. 13, 1860, at Laclede, Linn County, Mo.

Pershing has led an eventful, colorful life for an officer who has served in only one war—and that a "90 days' unpleasantness." But the aftermatch of the "unpleasantness" gave him the opportunity to prove his ability as a diplomat, as well as "two-fisted army man."

He entered West Point when old enough, as one of the cadets from Missouri.

In his last year there he was selected as senior cadet captain—an honor conferred for scholarly excellence and soldierly ability. Lieutenant-Colonel William L. Kenly, Sixth Field Artillery and commandant of Jefferson Barracks, was an undergraduate then.

"He impressed those of use under him as being a man who would make his mark early," Kenly said, speaking of him. "I remember him well—he was our ideal of what a youpng officer should be."

He Was With Miles in the Chase After Geronimo

UPON graduation Pershing was assigned as Second Lieutenant to the Sixth Cavalry, then fighting Geronimo and his tribesmen in the far Southwest. His baptism of fire came shortly afterward—there were no long series of pink teas in some delightful barracks for him. Helping to hunt down Geronimo, even though in the capacity of a subaltern, was fine training for the man who as chief commander of the expedition is now charged with hunting down Villa under strikingly similar topographical conditions.

His ability to command men caught the eyes of his superiors. Though scarcely a year out of "The Point," he was often sent out in charge of his troop, scouting over the arid wastes in search of hostile Indians.

Gen. Miles complimented him in his first year for "marching troop and pack train, over rough country, 146 miles in 46 hours, bringing in every man and animal in good condition."

That was the official report. There is another one, told with great gusto in barracks over the country. This is the way an officer whose name cannot be used because of the War Department's objections to interviews, told it yesterday:

"Pershing was the only officer with the troop, which was something unusual in those rough and ready frontier days. Under him were a number of seasoned campaigners, accustomed to taking orders from older men than Pershing. They resented his show of authority, especially as he was then only a 'shave-tail,' which means an officer just from 'The Point.'

"Pershing had stopped the troop to rest at nightfall, after having marched them at a terrific rate the entire day—and I guess his stops had been few and far between. The bully of the troop slid off his horse, and, turning to two companions, remarked:

"'That d—n shave-tail is marching us too fast; I don't like him anyhow. If it wasn't for his shoulder straps I'd smash his mug for him.'

"The other two agreed that he was a 'd—n shave-tail,' and deserving of a 'mug-smashing.' Pershing overheard them. Calmly taking off his coat, bearing the shoulder straps of a Lieutenant, he walked over to the bully and said:

"'Now, the straps are off; come ahead.' And Pershing, who stands over 6 feet, and then was an expert boxer, squared off as a prize fighter would.

"The bully hesitated a minute. Such procedure—an officer offering to fight with a private—was unheard of, and strictly forbidden in the army code.

"'Come ahead; there'll be no report on this.' And the private 'came,' 'saw' and was 'conquered.' After having smashed his face, Pershing called to the other two, and whipped them. Ever after that he was highly esteemed by the troop. He had earned his graduation from the 'shave-tail' ranks.

How He Calmed a Band of Hostile Zuni Indians

WHEN in command of Troop A of his regiment at Fort Wingate, in April, 1889, a scout reported that a hundred well-armed Zuni Indians had surrounded a group of horsethieves and cowboys out on the plains. Pershing went to their rescue with only 10 men.

When he arrived at the spot he found the Indians in a fighting mood, as three of their fellows had been killed by the cowboys. By a display of diplomacy and strategy he released the cowboys, stood off the Indians and took charge of the horse thieves and carried them back under arrest to Fort Wingate. Not one of his men was injured.

"Highly recommended for discretion," was the report which Gen. Carr made of the incident.

Shortly afterward he was transferred to the Northwest, and took part in the campaign against the Sioux tribes in 1890-91. Then he commanded the Sioux scouts until stationed at the University of Nebraska for three years as military instructor. While engaged there he studied law, which came in good stead when he was holding administrative positions later.

In '96 he was recalled to West Point to serve as tactical officer. He was then a Captain. When the war with Spain broke out he was assigned to field duty at his own request and was sent to the Tenth Cavalry, a negro regiment, and served in Cuba. Said his Colonel later: "I have been in many fights, and was all through the Civil War, but on my word he is the bravest and coolest man under fire I ever saw in my life."

He came back from the excitement of the tropics and for 12 months was head of the Division of Customs and Insular Affairs. A far cry that—from the rough and ready life of the plains and crude society of the border post to the quiet routine of office work and the gay life of Washington officialdom.

He had been made a Major and Assistant Adjutant-General in the volunteer service after his Cuban service, and in September, 1899, at his own request, was assigned to duty in the Philippines. Here he mastered guerilla warfare—and the Moros.

He became Adjutant-General and executive officer of the Department of Dindanao and Jolo, where for two years he studied the Moro problem. This was a legacy left to the United States by Spain. They, of the Mohammedan faith, as do the Turks, regard the killing of a Christian as a praiseworthy act.

Tried the Koran on Moros Before Using Machine Guns

THE Americans, in their few years of occupancy of the islands, found it a hard problem to deal with them. Kindness and force of arms had both been tried—and both had failed. And the Spaniards, in their years of misrule, had engendered in them an intense hatred of the white man.

On the island of Mindanao they had been especially dangerous in their guerilla warfare. Near the western coast of the island, surrounded by tropical marshes and wooded hills, lies Lake Lanao. From 30,000 to 50,000 Moros lived near its shores. Each rancherina or farmstead was a fortified garrison, commanded by a feudal war lord, called a datto, who held the power of life and death over his subjects, many of whom were slaves.

These fought among themselves almost continually, as the barons of old did, but would unite against a common foe. Spanish soldiers gave up their efforts to conquer them, satisfied so long as they did not make frequent raids on the white settlements on the coast.

When the Americans came their raids became more frequent, and many a man fell from blows delivered with the kris and bolos, the deadly native knives. Gen. Chaffee decided that they must be subjected immediately and selected Pershing to enforce the decision. That was in 1901.

With Gen. Sumner he negotiated the treaty with the Sultan of Sulu, which stands as the foundation of American authority over the Moros. Some of the Moros did not like the treaty, especially those in the Lake Lano district. Gen. Sumner sent Maj. Pershing to "persuade" them with machine guns.

Instead of beginning a war of extermination against the fantical tribes, Pershing first used diplomacy. He had learned their language, and on Fridays, the Mohammedan Sundays, assembled the leaders of several tribes, read extracts of the Koran to them and talked some of them into reconciliation with the United States Government.

But other tribes, especially those on the lake border, scoffed at his efforts, and refused to listen to his Friday readings. They were accustomed to the feeble methods of the Spaniards and judged him to be from the same mold. He showed them otherwise.

With a force of 2200 men he started toward them to demonstrate that American methods were vastly different from those of the Spanish. At Bacalod, near the lake front, Pershing was quietly surveying the water line when he was attacked. He had under him a regiment composed of less than 1000 men, but so well did he handle his force that not one soldier was killed in repulsing the Moros.

How the Hostile Moros of Lake Lanao Were Routed

THE Moros retreated into their fortress. This was a long, low building surrounded by 20 feet of bamboo wall. Around this was a moat 35 feet wide and 40 feet deep. In writing to a friend of the assault upon the fortress, Maj. Pershing said:

"We posted our guns upon a height and dropped shells into the fort, so that the artillery fire was not all noise. The moat was bridged, the assaulting infantry swung across and clambered up nearly in line to the top of the parapet. Here they were met with kampilin and kris, and a bloody hand-to-hand fight occurred, one soldier against two Moros here, another turning his bayonet into a fanatic there, and Moros plunging headlong into the ditch in their impetuosity and impetus. It was, as a whole, a scene never to forget."

The Datto of Panandungan and a hundred defenders were killed and scores wounded. The survivors fled in all directions as Pershing's men razed the fort.

An advance was then made upon the next fort. This time the datto commanding it sent his gar-

Secretary Daniels Gives Post-Dispatch His Side of the Naval Controversy

"Most Maligned Man" Answers His Critics, and Denounces Campaign of Mendacity That Begun, He Says, With Abolition of Officers' Wine Mess—"Navy Never Before So Efficient as Now.

BY GEORGE CREEL,

(Mr. Creel is well known as a magazine writer and an authority on municipal reform. He was formerly Police Commissioner in Denver.)

WASHINGTON, March 25.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS, Secretary of the Navy, is at once the most maligned and most misunderstood man in the United States today. To wade through the lies that have been told about him, to discover the truths that have been hidden or distorted, is to come to a new loathing of the greed that poisons when thwarted and to an added contempt for the public that takes no larger interest in a public servant than to swallow every slander circulated about him.

Ask the average citizen about Josephus Daniels and he'll wag his head and mouth something about mountebank and demagogue. Press him for details, and he can cite none more definite than Daniels has "let the navy run down" and has "made us a laughing stock."

This derision, say those who know Daniels best, is the price that he has been made to pay for saving millions of the people's money from the traffickers in armor plate and munitions; for breaking up the arm-chair clique that ruled the navy for years; for making merit the test of promotion rather than "pull;" for opening the doors of advancement to the enlisted man. He has given us a navy that, according to Admiral George Dewey, "is not excelled, except in size,, by any fleet of any nation in the world." And yet so well have his enemies done their work that the very people for whom he has labored grin at his name.

Foreign Nations Soon Followed His Abolition of Wine Mess.

PRACTICALLY all of the ridicule has flowed from his abolition of the wine mess. In 1899 Long issued an order forbidding the sale of liquor to enlisted men on board ship, and all that Mr. Daniels did was to extend the rule to officers, taking the step upon the official recommendation of the Surgeon-General of the navy. This policy, that was to make the United States the "laughing stock" of the nations, according to his enemies, was followed within the year by all the other world Powers. Russia and France first. Then Lord Charles Beresford scored the use of liquor in the British navy, and after that Emperor Wilhelm, addressing the German naval cadets, uttered these words:

"The next war and the next sea battle demand sound nerves of you. Nerves will decide. These become undermined through alcohol * * * The nation which consumes the least alcohol wins, and that should be you, my gentlemen. And through you an example shuld be given the crews. And in consequence of this I expect of you * * * that you take heed thereto, and provide that indulgence in alcohol be not counted as belonging to your privileges."

Greed Back of Malicious Campaigns Waged Against Him

THE real causes of the campaign of hatred against Secretary Daniels are not to be found on the surface, but deep down in the mud of human greed. The Powder Trust hates him because he is manufacturing smokeless powder for 34 cents a pound against 50 to 80 cents that used to be paid to the monopoly. In 1915 alone $1,115,793 was saved, and this year the capacity is doubled.

The projectile makers hate him because he cut out $1,077,210 on one bid alone, and is asking Congress for money to build his own plant. The grafters hate him because his economies have effected a reduction of 15 odd millions on public work at shore stations.

The armor plate monopoly hates him because he made them lop off $1,110,084 that was headed for its pockets, and has caused a bill to be introduced for a Government plant where armor can be manufactured for $230 a ton against the $440 exacted by the Trust. The Senate has passed the bill and the House probably will follow the example in a few days. As a result of the progress this legislation is making the great armor plate plant, the Bethlehem Steel Co., has offered to make armor plate for the Government at $396 a ton. Back in 1900, Congress appropriated $4,000,000 for a Government armor plant unless contracts could be made at "a reasonable and equitable figure," but Secretary Moody, Morton, Bonaparte and Meyer closed their eyes to the expert reports that proved the gross extortions of the monopoly, and paid out over $76,000,000 in high prices.

First Work Was to Put All Idle Navy Yards to Working

WHEN Daniels took office, he found an investment of millions in navy yards going to waste. Many stations were closed and the others were used for petty repairing so as not to infringe upon the profits of private companies. Secretary Daniels opened them up for real business, and today every one is aiding naval construction and saving millions. Three dreadnoughts are building at New York, the manufacture of torpedoes has reduced the cost over $1000 per torpedo; airships are building at Washington; Charleston is manufacturing clothing, stores and torpedoboat destroyers; mines are being turned out at Norfolk at a saving of $170 per mine; sea-going submarines are under construction at Portsmouth, transports at League Island, supply ships at Boston, battleships at San Francisco and the $7,000,000 investment at Pensacola, abandoned by Meyer, is being used as an all-year-round aviation school.

Government Saving Large Sums on Everything It Manufactures

EVERYTHING that is being manufactured by the Government is produced at from 20 to 60 per cent less than the old private purchase price. Every dollar saved has been an addition to the hate felt for Josephus Daniels, but since these thwarted traffickers do not dare to come out in the open, they make their appeal to the laughter fools by "grape juice" witticisms and a multitude of silly lies.

The first sight of Josephus Daniels makes many things quite clear. He is not a large man, and the average person finds it difficult to conceive

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Give Marshall a Second Term.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The Democracy of Missouri is proud of the accomplishment of the Democratic administration in Washington. There has been more constructive legislation enacted and put upon the statute books in Mr. Wilson's administration and will stay longer and redound to the betterment of the people, than has been enacted in the past 30 years, and the Democracy of the country fully realizes this and is determined to make the utmost effort to renominate and re-elect Mr. Wilson and Mr. Marshall for President and Vice President for another four-year term. And why Mr. Marshall? Because he has, from first to last, given Mr. Wilson's administration a most cordial support and the Democracy believes that if there should be a vacancy in the presidency for any cause whatever, Mr. Marshall would make a safe and sane President; and Missouri should not at this time consider for a moment any of her citizens to be put upon the national ticket for Vice President.

Missouri is greatly honored today by her representatives in the Congress of the United States. Does anyone suppose that she will have the presiding officers of the House and the Senate of the United States at the same time?

Missouri wants no Vice President. When Mr. Wilson is through with his next term as President of the United States, she will then nominate Champ Clark. This day's civilization of our republic requires men eminently fitted for President and Vice President and no man should be nominated for Vice President that is not fitted to be President of the United States. NICHOLAS M. BELL.

It Can Be Done.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Punch hole in the can to prevent mosquito water. Yes, but a much better way is to burn the can in the furnace or in any very hot fire. It will not burn? Nonsense! Every good housekeeper knows that fire will destroy it.

EXPERIENCE.

Right Kind of Journalism.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

We are in receipt of a clipping from your paper of Feb. 27, indicating your prompt and courteous attention to ours of the 23d ult., relating to Mr. McCormick's denial of the Yucatan revolution canard.

On behalf of Mr. McCormick and the company, I wish to thank you for the publicity given this denial and to express sincere appreciation of your newspaper's sense of justice and fairness. In our opinion, this is the true and typical American journalism, always ready to give both sides of any controversy—the sort of journalism which, as we believe, cannot fail to establish itself strongly in public confidence and favor.

Purchase Interned Ships.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

We need commercial preparedness in connection with military preparedness, and to accomplish that we should immediately acquire all foreign merchant ships which are now interned in the different harbors of the United States. These would form a nucleus for a merchant marine which would otherwise take years for us to build. Our Government could lease these ships to private firms if necessary, and we would quickly enlarge our export business to South America and to other neutral nations.

England's objection to the purchase of interned ships belonging to Germany and Austria because it would aid those nations financially is not longer valid. We have permitted England, France, Italy, Russia, Germany and Austria to sell war bonds to our financial institutions and to our citizens without any security for their payment. Why should we not give nations money for their ships. In such matters we should consider America first, and put our interest above that of any other nation.

We would in this way be immediately prepared to do the great amount of business awaiting us if we only had the means for transportation. Our factories would run full blast not only in making war munitions for all neutral nations, but we would also be building up an export trade, which, when properly taken care of, would be a constant benefit to our commerce. The opportunity is now at hand for our Government to do that which will benefit us immediately, and we should insist upon these advantages which legally and rightfully belong to us.

ALBERT VON HOFFMANN.

SWEEP THE CITY CLEAN.

Before our pre-convention "clean-up" careful study should be given the Cincinnati "clean-up and paint-up" campaign. Full information concerning them is contained in a booklet issued by the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce which took charge and made the second year's work, 1915, thorough.

The campaign of 1914 was mainly preliminary and experimental to the sweeping campaign of 1915. It disclosed the needs of the city in the way of municipal house cleaning and the danger to health and property of accumulated rubbish, rickety shacks and fire traps. The work done in 1914 reduced the fire loss of the city for the following year $60,000, about 40 per cent. The saving in insurance premiums reached $160,000. The cost of the campaign was only $10,000 netting a profit of $150,000 in insurance premiums alone.

The 1915 campaign extended over several weeks. The whole city was organized for the work. Meetings, with illustrated lectures, were held in the school houses, 125,000 buttons were distributed, the schools and civic organizations were enlisted, the city departments supplied inspectors and men and wagons to haul away rubbish. In addition to cleaning up a persistent battle was made on the flies.

As a result of the previous year's work the "City Beautiful" spirit was aroused and vacant lot school gardens and home gardens have multiplied. The school children planted last summer 84,000 fruit trees in back yards. The results accomplished are thus summed up:

Elimination of public dumps for trash within the city limits.

Gardens and more attractive homes.

Five hundred ramshackle buildings demolished.

Thousands of fruit and shade trees planted.

In its report the Chamber of Commerce states:

> The work has set a new standard for thousands of our citizens. Cincinnati is a healthier, safer place in which to live; the waste from fires has been greatly reduced and our death rate has been lowered.

Cleanliness is worth while. It pays in health, comfort, beauty and money. It leads to the city beautiful. Organization, money and energy are required to attain these ends. We can do in St. Louis what has been done in Cincinnati. The campaign of education and organization should begin at once.

PAN-AMERICAN RAILROAD.

Brigadier-General W. L. Sibert of the army advocates a line of railroad to Panama to render us independent of the sea route in forwarding men and supplies to the canal in case of war. But such a road would be practically the Pan-American road urged since 1889 as an essential to our trade and an aid in our Latin-American policy. With so many reasons emphasizing its great value in both peace and war, this railroad ought to be made available at an early date.

Fortunately, much progress has been made with it in recent years. Only a few short links remain to be completed to give us the use of a line of rails to the very banks of the canal. With peace below the Rio Grande, their construction would not be long delayed.

CONSERVING PETROLEUM SUPPLY.

V. H. Manning of the Bureau of Mines computes that the oil fields will be exhausted in 27 years, having already incurred depletion to the extent of 30 per cent. But for the experience of the past the prediction would be a dismal one for the motor car industry. In the half century since the development of wealth in natural oil began on a considerable scale, we have seen that as production in the older fields diminishes, new and more important fields are opened. In Wyoming and other territory are enormous stores that will not be touched for years to come and many geologists think that in Arctic and other remote regions discoveries surpassing any yet made may be expected.

But despite the probability that the unknown oil supply is greater than the known and despite also the probability that when all is gone chemistry will give us a new spirit as good and as cheap as gasoline, Mr. Manning makes an argument for reasonable conservation of oil supply that is logical and should be heeded.

For many years it has been at times suggested in the press that a Vice President is a needless expense. Since Congress has provided for the presidential succession, and the Senate could choose a presiding officer, just as the House does, the "why a Vice President" query will continue to be repeated.

ENTENTE AND UNION.

The Fremont convention that met in Cleveland in 1864 adopted resolutions criticising unsparingly the conduct of the war. They referred among other matters to the "imbecile and vacillating policy of the present administration, just weak enough to waste its men and means to provoke the enemy, but not strong enough to conquer the rebellion."

If the entente allies were organized as the United States of Europe and had a vigorous party of the opposition assembled in convention, there would be much to justify the adoption of resolutions equally critical now.

The parallel between the first 20 months of the allies' conduct of war and the first 36 months of the Federals' management extends even to lapses due to want of unity and co-operation. The entente states of course are in a much more loosely knit league than that of the Northern States. But it must be remembered that this country was much less a nation before the war than afterward. The people had made small progress in thinking nationally. Co-ordination between state forces was lacking and jealousies and bickering were present.

Will the parallel continue? Will the allies presently develop the ability in offfensives to do something more than waste men with only the result of provoking the enemy? Will denunciations of allied incapacity be as plentiful 50 years from now as denunciations of Federal incapacity?

THE SIGNAL FOR ACTION.

The first step of the Washington Government is to get the facts about the sinking of the Sussex and the Englishman, in both of which Americans are reported missing.

The proof of the torpedoing of these vessels without warning should be the signal for decisive action on the part of our Government. Excuses would be vain and diplomacy at an end. We cannot continue to accept insincere apologies and pledges.

If the Sussex was torpedoed without warning the outrage equals in vicious barbarism the attack on the Lusitania. It was a channel passenger ship with many helpless women and children aboard. But, as the President remarked, the life of an American sailor counts as much as that of any American citizen.

A GREAT POLAR VENTURE.

From Weddel Bay a course drawn right across the South Pole leads to Ross Bay on the other side, whence again a course nearly due north brings the voyager to civilization in Auckland, New Zealand, or Sydney, New South Wales. Passing the furthest south of James Weddell 93 years ago the line which the gallant Lieutenant Sir Ernst Shackleton planned to follow across the Pole led north again along his old course of 1909, and that of the ill-fated Scott. It skirted Victoria Land, the most fascinating field of Antarctic exploration.

The war nearly prevented Shackleton from starting upon his quest, some six weeks after it had begun. It has largely prevented news of his efforts coming to general attention. But those interested or more nearly concerned have followed his plucky fight with untoward circumstances in starting after long delay, from his base on South Georgia Island. Ill luck seems now to have dogged the relief ship and base as well; and to have visited an utter defeat upon the purposes of the Aurora—which to Shackleton himself were vital.

What happened to the Aurora we now know. With a strained hull and a jury rudder, disappointed of relief for which she appealed by wireless in vain she is limping toward New Zealand, where she cannot with the best of luck arrive for several days. Worst of all, her Captain and nine others of her little company are missing. Left ashore by her misadventures, they must have perished to a man.

And with them—without doubt that would justify a hope—Shackleton and his party. It is possible, it is even not unlikely, that the final tragedy may have been staged not far, as distance in those vast blank spaces is reckoned, from the scene of Capt. Scott's death. No time or money or ingenuity or devotion will be grudged to seek out the truth. So far as the shore party of the Aurora are concerned, it may easily be learned. Their place of trial, of defeat is known or nearly known. But the Shackleton party itself may be lost in a great white waste that may never reveal their resting place.

But like Franklin, like Scott, like all the company of the greatly daring that have found their fate in high latitudes, the names of Shackleton and his men will be given high honor on the roll of Polar adventure.

RACE HYGIENE.

"Neither mind nor body is equipped for city life," says Prof. von Gruber in the Vossische Zeitung.

> The human organism points to a rural habitat as its natural condition; place it in other circumstances, and it will deteriorate; relative inactivity induces muscular atrophy; lack of exercise causes lung stagnation—watch the man in an office and see whether he uses his lungs even one half! Lack of lung action prevents oxidization of the blood, which becomes more and more impure as the days go on and that produces all the ills to which flesh is heir. City people forget to walk; some take a car for four or five blocks, and the advent of the motor car has made matters worse.
> Lack of air, lack of exercise, lack of light, lack of occupation (especially in city women) causes the race to deteriorate. Let us not be blind to the fact, it is a fact. But infinitely worse is the damage to the moral and mental texture.

The lecturer asserts that the individual in a city is a non-entity among a million other nonentities. Self respect must suffer in this annihilation of individuality: and with self respect collapses the entire armature of civilized motor ideas. In their stead luxury, idleness, appetites, jealousy, envy seize the morals and warp them. Men and women are not human individuals but mere items—"Its."

> Is it a wonder that families are coming to a two-children or a no-children agreement? Why add more drops to the ocean where they become bitter and briny? Mentally city life has a trend to machine regularity, and habit is the death of thought. Why think, when you are the servant of a machine, in which the thought of one individual lasts through thousands of exemplars?

Race hygiene demands a correction of city life towards the rural ideal. Exercise to supplement the lack of body work, breathe fresh air, slowly at first, but gradually increasing. The farmer is in the fresh air from early morning to sunset, animals are or should be out of doors always. Look at the birds.

It requires stamen and force of character to overcome natural and induced inertia, but if we want to save the race, there is only one way. This war has opened our eyes to the need of individual Tuechtigkeit (thoroughness in efficiency). The army made up of men that are men withstands exposure without whimpering.

Morally he suggests a more friendly and cosmopolitan method. Why not look at and speak at and speak to those whom you meet? Why be a stranger among strangers?

In the country a few meet a few, there is cordiality, but in the city the very mass of humanity cheapens the entire amalgam. Besides, where there are such numbers an insane emulation strains the meager purse and discourages marriage.

"The strength of a nation is the country, as this war proves," concludes the Professor.

OUR WEEKLY WAR SUMMARY.

THE Spring Equinox made a great stir on the various fronts, and there was more hard fighting for a few days than there has been since last Fall. The Russians, who have been comfortably housed in their trenches all Winter and have scarcely come out to see if the Germans and Austrians were still there, suddenly burst from their rendezvous and began to fight like all get out. At last accounts they were slowly but surely pushing everything before them, but to what extent they were being opposed or how far the Germans and Austrians were alarmed, does not appear. The Russians have had six months in which to drill their innumerable recruits, this country and Japan have shipped them ammunition without end, and what with the improved efficiency and increased capacity of their own plants, they must by this time be in pretty good fighting trim. One thing the Russians had to get bravely over was employing German spies in their ammunition and arms works. It was found that these people were almost invariably careless with fire, and the Russian Government finally decided that the risk was too great to justifying employing them any more. Since that resolution was made there have been almost no fires, and the output of the plants has been increased three or four times. How far south the Russian army will get is hard saying. It all depends upon the efficiency of its new troops and the caliber of its new guns. If the one is not very great and the other considerably less than the caliber of the big guns of the Germans and Austrians, the Russians will not go very far south. It will, however, cost a few dead men to send them back, and except as attritionists, so-called, almost nobody on the allied side has any hope of the Russians any more. Whether they have any confidence left in themselves we don't know; but, judging by the way they forged ahead all along the line last week, they either had some left or succeeded in getting some somewhere. They are great fellows to send out.

In the western theater of war the action is, for historical purposes, of a much more satisfactory nature. Each side knows the other is fighting, and each is giving the other the best it has in shop. On last Wednesday the battle of Verdun was thirty days old. In that time the Germans have advanced from six inches to six miles at different points, and have occupied to their advantage a few well-scarred heights. They have not, however, broken the French line, nor do the French feel that they are in any danger of breaking it. There are a great many theories of the battle of Verdun, with a prospect that the correct one will be lost in the fight. We have been told that the Germans attacked that strong point in preference to a weaker one because it combined the advantages of a position where the French transportation facilities were least and those of the Germans greatest. The Germans are, of course, not saying. They have as little regard for American curiosity as they have for American lives. All that one can say positively is that, judging by the defense the French have made of Verdun, the Germans cannot be complimenting their General Staff for having picked out for them a very soft spot.

There is no sea fighting. The Germans and Austrians continue to sink merchantmen, but warships carefully avoid one another, and whose navy is boss remains for the future to determine. This is a phase of the war in which the Teutons have the advantage of something to sink, whereas the allies are confined to watching for submarines. This gives us the impression at times that the Teutons are the only people doing anything on the sea, a quite natural conclusion due to the fact that there is nothing for anyone else to do. Meanwhile, the Germans confuse the submarine issue by sinking first a ship of an enemy nation and then a ship of a neutral, until the uncertainty as to where anybody stands in that vexing matter has become so great that Admiral von Tripitz has given it up by resigning. The New York Sun at once concluded that this is what everybody will do about it, and said President Wilson would resign. This is a mistake. The President will not resign. Upon the contrary, he repeats what he said.

Our own man-hunt for Pancho Villa is already making such demands upon our preparedness that we are mighty glad it is nothing worse. From what one can gather we came within the following of catching Villa on the six days of last week:

Monday ....100 miles
Tuesday .... 85 ''
Wednesday .... 60 ''
Thursday .... 35 ''
Friday .... 20 ''
Saturday .... 5 ''

Total for the week..........305 miles

We shall probably get him this week. It is just as well. To have caught him the first few days would not have justified the elaborate plans made to take him, and we cannot ignore the criticism of the pacifists. Unless we increase our force in Mexico, it would probably be about right to catch him next Wednesday. Then nobody could laugh, jeer or do any of the several things which people who either do not like an army at all, or else do not like the kind of an army we have, would rather do than anything else.

HORSE SENSE BY THE HORSE EDITOR.
(From the Monroe County (Mo.) Appeal.)

> You are right, Bildad; death is the great leveler. We have heard mention of the fact before. You might have added that love, too, is a great leveler. Get a woman head over heels in love with the most worthless and degenerate man in the community and immediately the mountain top of superior merit upon which she has been wont to dwell will vanish away. He at once becomes the incarnation of all that is noble and good, and she is willing to forsake everything for the privilege of his company. Just take note of any love affair that may be raging in your midst and see how the best of the two gets down to the level of the other, ignoring little proprieties or taking advantage of little opportunities that would have been unthinkable when the heart was whole and the fancy free. It is probably because folks in love are like the ostrich with its head in the sand or because love makes an individual oblivious of everything else on earth. And yet, except for the fact that love is such a leveler, the pastime of marriage and giving in marriage would perish from off the earth, for the average woman is so far above the average man in morals, accomplishments and human ideals that she must either be ignorant of a lot of things or be willing to overlook a lot of things when he comes forth with the marriage halter. Since he very seldom rises to her heights, she must either descend to his level or go through life as an old maid.

Germany is having the same difficulty determining whether there are any Americans aboard that everybody has anticipated she would have telling if a merchant ship were armed.

If Mr. Taft's peace plan contemplates his return to the White House to work it out, one can safely assume it to be impracticable without even knowing what it is.

First Robin: What makes you so thin?
Second Robin: You fly back and forth with the weather a while and see if it doesn't make you thin.

It is unlikely that Aguinaldo is betting very much on Villa.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

BANANAS AND PEANUTS.

XXX.—A peculiar fact about the banana is that no insect will attack it. It is also immune from diseases of most fruits. They are neither oily nor rich; more nutritious than apples, plums, peaches, oranges, or ordinary fruits, but are less rich than most articles of diet. Chewed well enough for thorough admixture with saliva, they are easily digested. Bolted they are sometimes indigestible. We eat about two-thirds of the banana. About one-quarter of what we eat is sugar and starch. As a food it compares fairly well with potatoes. It should always be ripened or cooked.

The peanut is the richest of all foods. A health journal says it ought never to be roasted. Unroasted, it is superior to meat or any other food as a supply of albumen, and all the mineral elements of food for which green vegetables are eaten. And peanuts contain 50 per cent of fat, more easily digested than butter or lard. Prof. Jaffa of the University of California formed a "peanut squad" to test the nutritive value of the ground nut. The members "lived in health on a ration composed of peanuts served in various ways, and a little fruit," he says. The "Jaffa ration" is composed of peanuts, Japanese persimmons, with a little cereal and olive oil." There is enough oil in the peanut. A perfect ration for the proteid meal is made of three or four ounces of thoroughly dried, blanched (not roasted) peanuts and half a pound of toast. The following analysis shows the relative values of peanuts as food, compared with other articles of daily consumption:

	Nutritive units per pound	Cost per 1000 units in cents.
Skim milk	98.2	10.4
Skim-milk cheese	870.0	11.0
Full milk	145.5	11.5
Bacon	1.257.7	15.5
Butter	1.183.8	20.4
Veal	525.9	22.2
Beef	589.9	26.0
Peas	773.6	4.2
Potatoes	139.2	5.4
Rye flour	603.6	6.0
Rice	534.6	10.0

THE SPELLING PROBLEM.

MISS JOSEPHINE.—The old style of spelling is gradually passing away. Write Simplified Spelling Board, 1 Madison av., New York, for rules for the new spelling. Various universities have adopted the shorter way. The extent to which spelling reform has progressed without the need of flourish of trumpets is indicated by the lack of offense to the eye now given by such forms as esthetic, anesthetic, envelop, paraffin, whisky, hiccup and molder. Noah Webster was a reformer in spelling, but the reform of the present day goes far beyond his changes. He created a commotion, of course, but he won. Following are rules for spelling in the style still followed by most newspapers: Words ending in e drop that letter before the termination able, as in move, movable, unless ending in ce or ge, when it is retained, as in change, changeable, etc. Words of one syllable ending in a consonant, with a single vowel before it, double that consonant in derivatives, as ship, shipping, etc. But if ending in a consonant with a double vowel before it, they do not double the consonant in derivatives; as troop, trooper, etc. Words of more than one syllable ending in a consonant preceded by a single vowel, and accented on the last syllable, double that consonant in derivatives; as commit, committed; but except chagrin, chagrined. All words of one syllable ending in l, with a single vowel before it, have double ll at the close; as mill, sell. All words of one syllable ending in l, with a double vowel before it, have only one l at the close; as mail, sail. The words foretell, distill, instill and fulfill retain the double l of their primitive. Derivatives of dull, skill, will and full also retain the ll when the accent falls on these words; as dullness, skillful, willful, fullness. Words of more than one syllable ending in l have only one l at the close; as delightful, faithful; unless the accent falls on the last syllable; as in befall, etc. Words ending in l, double that letter in the termination ly. Participles ending in ing, from verbs ending in e, lose the final e; as have, having; make, making, etc.; but verbs ending in ee retain both, see, seeing. Dye, to color, and singe, to scorch, however, must retain the e before ing. All adverbs ending in ly and nouns ending in ment retain the e final of the primitives; as brave, bravely; refine, refinement; except words ending in dge; as judge, judgment. Nouns ending in y, preceded by a vowel, form their plural by adding s; as money, moneys; but if y is preceded by a consonant, it is changed to ies in the plural; as bounty, bounties. Words whose primitive end in y change the y into i; as beauty, beautiful.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CONSTANT.—"Luminous paint of a transparent form," is not to be had.

IA.—Send particulars to Want Ad Manager, Post-Dispatch, St. Louis, Mo.

O. L. S.—We have no record of names of the descendants of the James boys. Jesse Jr. is only son of Jesse; Robert the only son of Frank.

WINTERS.—Ferric hydroxide crystals, yellowish brown. Ferric hydroxide is precipitated if a solution of ferric cyanide is poured into ammonium hydroxide.

INQUISITIVE.—Learn by observation to distinguish the different races of men. The mixture of races makes this difficult. One writer says: Aryan—Ruddy or fair skin, blue, gray or brown eyes, light or dark (not black), soft smooth hair. Semitic—Swarthy, black eyes and black, wiry hair, often of a tight curly nature. Mongolian—Yellow, yellowish brown or reddish brown skin, black eyes and black, coarse, straight hair. Negro—Black and shades of black skin, black eyes and black, woolly or kinky hair.

W. O. R. K.—Nine-hour law: No female shall be employed, permitted, or suffered to work, manual or physical, in any manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishment, or factory, workshop, laundry or bakery or restaurant, or any place of amusement, to do any stenographic or clerical work of any character in any of the divers kinds of establishments and places of industry herein above described, or by any person, firm or corporation (or) public utility business, or by any common carrier, or by any public institution, incorporated or unincorporated, in this State, more than 9 hours during any one day, or more than 54 hours during any one week. Provided, that operators of canning or packing plants in rural communities, or in cities of less than 10,000 inhabitants wherein perishable farm products are canned, or packed, shall be exempt for a number of days not to exceed 90 in any one year; Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed or understood to apply to telegraph or telephone companies.

MATRON.—For matron, Indian service, there is to be no examination until fall. Only applicants in perfect physical health, as shown by medical certificate, are permitted to enter the examination. From the list of eligibles appointments are also made to the positions of seamstress and housekeeper. Age 20 to 45 years, but age limits do not apply to Indians, or to the wife of a superintendent of an Indian school who applies for examination for the position of matron, seamstress or housekeeper in the same school; application and examination form, 304, including the medical certificate, time allowed 6½ hours. Subjects of examination and relative weights of subjects on a scale of 100: Penmanship, 5; spelling and copying, about seven lines of ordinary prose containing 20 or more misspelled words, 5; domestic economy, comprising practical, economical housekeeping and the training of pupils in domestic science and good morals, 25; nursery management and domestic hygiene, involving a knowledge of the principles of domestic hygiene, the diseases of children and their treatment by the nurse, ventilation and disinfection of sick room, what to do until doctor comes in emergency cases and the general duties of a nurse, 25; cutting, fitting and sewing, involving a knowledge of the principles of cutting, fitting and sewing by both hand and machine, 15; keeping accounts, a memorandum of domestic supplies received and issued is given and the competitor required to make the proper entries to account for same, 10; training and experience, 15.

New York T: On one essential point Mr. Hay and Mson are absolutely in harmony. Mr. Gard off the real purpose of the Hay bill when hehe other day that it "makes noise like prepass." Not a thunderous noise, it a prudently ered noise which will not throw the pacifithe Bryan school into hysterics. WO BILLS PARED.

Indianapolis N Without regard to the fference of opinat has developed between Secretary Baker r. Hay as to the effect of he latter's army we think that the bill of Senator Chamberwhich is shortly to be reported, is the bethe views in the Baker letter are, it shoulsaid, rather those of the War College thathe Secretary, who seems to have signed hout much knowledge of what was in it. Chamberlain measure is to be preferred beca provides for a real Federal reserve as cond line of defense. In the Hay bill the eliance for a reserve is on the representativhe people to decide, in the light of the best d they can get, on what we ought to have. he duty of military experts to decide what i best way to get what we want. Questionslicy are for Congress and the President; qns of method are for the military expert. tor Chamberlain's bill, we understand, is irdance with the best judgment of the Warge.

It is to be prd for another reason, and at is that it wdve us a regular army with peace strength78,000 men and a war strength of 250,This is not excessive. In both bills it is ed that the national guard control of the Federal Government. And in both it is provided that there shall be a regular army reserve composed of men who are discharged after three years' active service. Large additions are made by both bills to the force of officers. Senator Chamberlain accepts Secretary Garrison's Federal volunteer plan, at least in substance, while Mr. Hay looks chiefly to the national guard for a reserve.

The Senate bill will impress even the uninstructed layman as being the more professional and scientific. The fundamental difference between the two measures is radical, since it is one of principle. The champions of the Senate bill can, however, afford to concede much, if they can save the Federal volunteer feature. It is to be hoped there will be no need for many concessions, since the Chamberlain bill as it stands is so good. The men who are to deal finally with this important subject ought to rid themselves as far as possible of mere pride of opinion, and to devote themselves patriotically to the creation of the best military system possible. If the conference committee will go at its work in this spirit, there will be no question of success. With a regular army of 178,000 men, easily capable of expansion to 250,000; with a reserve of Federal volunteers and with an improved and enlarged national guard still in reserve, there would be nothing more to be asked. There ought to be a prompt agreement on the main features of the Chamberlain bill.

DEFECT IN HAY BILL.

Philadelphia Record: The cardinal defect of the House bill, however, is the lack of adequate provision for organization. Numbers avail nothing unless the constituents of a potential army have been located, tagged and assigned to their respective places in the force to be created. Every man in the Swiss militia and every man subject to military duty in France or Germany, is enrolled and numbered; he knows to what company, troop or battery he belongs, and where his regimental headquarters are. So on a call for mobilization there is no confusion. Every man knows where to go, and when he goes finds his equipment ready for him. This is essential. Individual military training is of less importance. Hundreds of thousands of men now in the field in Europe had not had a rifle in their hands nor attended a maneuver or even a company drill for more than ten years preceding the call to arms. Organization is the beginning and the end of our military problem.

JUST A LITTLE ARMY.

Philadelphia Inquirer: The House has decided that the country can get along with a toy army of 140,000 men, including every branch of the service. It has defeated the proposition to make it 220,000.

The bill which the Military Committee has prepared has little merit. Not only does it refuse a regular army with any substance to it, but it trifles with the whole question of preparedness by attempting the impossible task of making the national guard the nation's main reliance. We refuse to take the slightest interest in the performance of the House, because it is not worthy of serious attention. The Senate bill is a much better measure, although falling considerably short of the desired mark.

After all, the bill that will be adopted in the end will be shaped by a committee representing both houses of Congress. To that committee we must look for results—if satisfactory results can

Holland Angry Over Loss of Ships

HOLLAND BEGINS TO BRISTLE.

Detroit Free Press: The Hollanders are showing considerable impatience over the sinking of the Tubantia, and this impatience has not been allayed by the destruction Sunday off the Thames estuary of a second steamship of Dutch registry. Protestations by the German Government that the Tubantia could not possibly have been struck either by a Teutonic submarine or a Teutonic mine seem to be getting strangely small credence, and some of the Dutch newspapers are openly talking about the likelihood of war.

War with Holland at this juncture might be a serious thing for Germany, and there is an evident desire by the Government in Berlin to placate its neighbor. War between Holland and Germany has been one of Great Britain's prayers for a long time. It would open the mouths of the Scheldt and the Rhine to the English fleet; it would give that fleet bases on the continental coast that would be of inestimable value; it would bare to attack a long extent of German frontier, so far immune from assault; it would mean an almost immediate flank assault on the German positions in Belgium. If Germany is showing itself unwontedly polite to the Dutch Government there is reason for the attitude.

SINKING NEUTRAL SHIPS.

Philadelphia Inquirer: There seems to be no doubt that the Dutch liner Tubantia was sunk in the most deliberate manner by a German submarine. Here was a neutral vessel steaming from a neutral port to neutral ports of South America and carrying a large number of passengers. She was sent to the bottom without warning.

Recently the Norwegian bark Silius was sunk when nearing le Havre. Germany denies responsibility. Apparently there is no means of discovering the truth. In these days submarines sneak upon a victim and try to get in their deadly work and escape identification. This was attempted in the recent case of the French steamship Patria, coming from the Mediterranean to New York. A torpedo was discharged at her and missed her by only a few feet.

In not one of these instances was the attacked vessel armed and all of them carried citizens of the United States.

The United States has again been flouted. And yet all is quiet in Washington. The administration prates about duty to humanity, but it meekly receives its kicks and cuffs from Berlin just as it was in the habit of doing for so long a time from Villa and Carranza.

EXCUSES NOT ACCEPTED.

Washington Times: Of all the neutral countries in Europe, there is none that could do Germany so much harm, by entering the war, as Holland. The little nation is rich, is powerful out of its proportion to its numbers, and is so geographically situated that, once in the war, it would afford the allies a base from which to outflank the German lines in Belgium and France, and to attack Essen, the seat of the Krupps and center of the munition manufacture. The Dutch army has been held ready for an eventuality for many months; it is capable of effective offense in co-operation with the forces of France and England; and its projection into the war would completely change the face of affairs.

Yet in the face of all this that is so obvious, a the pride of the whole nation, without warning or excuse; and now comes from Berlin another of those mocking disavowals. The Admiralty announces that there was no German submarine in the neighborhood; that the vessel was sunk in the zone where such attacks are not made; and therefore Germany insists that Britain, for some strange reason, must have done the act!

Holland declines to take this explanation seriously, and we learn that the German press and public are deeply hurt that the Dutch should decline to be satisfied with it. Seemingly nobody in Holland has any doubts about what happened. The notion of a deep-laid British plot is not accepted anywhere; the supposition that a German undersea boat did the crime is accepted just as confidently as it deserves to be, in view of the German record since the war began. Why should any German explanation of this kind be taken seriously? Why should there be doubts? Holland evidently sees no reason to doubt, no reason to assume that a German explanation deserves any presumption of good faith.

Holland is learning the lesson that the United States has been learning from the day of the Lusitania tragedy down to date; the lesson of German malevolence and deviousness.

AN OMINOUS INCIDENT.

Brooklyn Eagle: The German press, in discussing the sinking of the Tubantia furnishes a distinct reminder of the desperate efforts made to prove that the Lusitania was armed and again that the Arabic tried to ram the submarine that sank her. Perjury was proved and punished—by American law—in one of these cases. In the other palpably false statements were finally reduced by the whittling down process of official investigation to the admission of a "mistake" on the part of the submarine officer.

We dare not surmise what may come out of the Tubantia incident, but at least we could well be spared the arrant absurdity of the German newspaper claim that British submarines sank the Dutch liner. The Dutch themselves know well enough where to place the blame, and the temper of their newspapers is today one of the most significant features of the war situation.

The Dutch Government will hardly be content with the silly effort to shift responsibility to a nation which has no bloody record of submarine frightfulness to its discredit.

THE CAUSE OF ALL NEUTRALS.

Philadelphia Ledger: The President of the United States could do no greater service to "the sacred principles of justice and humanity" than by joining in the Dutch protest. It makes no difference whether or not Americans were on board these particular ships. The submarine campaign is an infringement of the rights of all neutrals. It has already cost scores of American lives. It is still being carried on in defiance of warning and rebuke from the United States. Germany might disregard a small nation at her own doors, however belligerent its attitude; she might disregard a great nation across the Atlantic in whose purpose to obtain satisfaction she did not believe; but a determined effort on the part of all neutral nations to put an end to this intolerable campaign of murder, to make the seas safe for noncombatants as law and custom alike require them to be, would have some effect even on the desperate

Passing of Admiral Von Tirpitz

Philadelphia North American: The great achievement of Von Tirpitz and his allies was not that they built a large number of warships, but that they made the land-loving German people think in terms of sea power and put into their contented breasts something of the restless maritime spirit of the island English.

No one can doubt that the creator of the German fleet was bitterly disappointed that he dared not send it out to meet the great sea antagonist. If the odds had been less heavy, there would long ago have been a naval battle.

But he was not the man to quit because he could not fight according to the established rules. Against an insular nation he could use the submarine, which against his own country, bereft of merchant shipping, would be powerless. He would ring Great Britain with these hidden cruisers and sink every ship that left or approached her ports. Nothing stood in the way but international law, and that he conceived to be of slight moment compared with Bismarck's declaration:

> When it becomes a matter of life and death, one does not look at the weapons that one seizes nor the value of what one destroys in using them. One is guided at the moment by no other thought than the issue of the war.

So the dreadful campaign began, with the frank purpose of terrorizing the neutral world as well as damaging the enemy. It had opponents in Germany at first, and more than once the crisis it created with neutral nations led to contests of will between Von Tirpitz and the Imperial Chancellor. But the dogged champion of the undersea craft for the most part had his way, and his submarines carried out their murderous orders with appalling efficiency.

All who know him agree that he is a man of bluff but charming personality, and his "ideal family life" has been much celebrated by his biographers. There is, of course, nothing in the possession of these qualities incompatible with sternness in war; Joffre is said to be a devoted husband, and the German Military Governor who ordered a woman nurse shot to death is probably much beloved by his children. But there remains something inexplicable, something not quite human, in the calculating ferocity of Von Tirpitz's war measure.

It is one thing to devise a policy of ruthlessness in a mood of desperation; it is another to continue it, deliberately and remorselessly, when its utter uselessness and its horrors have been demonstrated. All civilization reeled when the Lusitania was sunk unwarned; yet we must believe that this implacable old man gloried in the deed of blood, for the destruction of the Arabic was his exploit, and to the last he never swerved from his determination to repeat the infamy at every opportunity.

Among his enemies there are those, no doubt, who wish that some grievous punishment might fall upon him; that he should take into his retirement honors and the adulation of his countrymen seems to them monstrous. Yet our belief is that his fate is a heavy one. The "retribution" we spoke of in the beginning is not the mere deprivation of office, but the gnawing consciousness of failure.

Von Tirpitz was a sailor, a man equipped by nature and training to achieve some of the glories of gallant naval combat which he made the inspiration of his life. And when the time came he was a prisoner of circumstance. The great fleet which was the work of his heart and brain was doomed to lurk in safe harbors, and he, who had dreamed of planning mighty battles, was reduced to the task of devising stealthy means of lawlessness and assassination.

Some day soon there will be a real war at sea.

or destruction—in any event, to glory. But its creator will not share in the renown.

The verdict of history is slow, but it is mercilessly just. And he knows that he will not be remembered chiefly as the patriot and statesman who laid the foundations of German sea power, but as the instigator of a campaign without parallel among the atrocities of war and without even the redeeming feature of success.

This is the tragedy of the career of Von Tirpitz—that his monument will not be the splendid fleet which his genius fashioned, but the ruins of the law he destroyed and the memory of the helpless victims he sent to death.

Haeckel for Barbarism

New York Globe: The eminent Ernst Haeckel, in many respects the world's foremost living scientist, furnishes further basis for the pessimistic thought that education does not educate; that a man may be saturated with knowledge, and yet be as essentially a savage as if he wore feathers and dressed himself with a clout.

In the first heat and fury of the war's precipitation the ferocious professors of Germany confirmed the worst opinions formed as to the motives of their country by a riot of unreason and an open defense of the ideas that possessed Attila and his Huns when they scourged Europe. But hope looked up even in the presence of grounds for discouragement. It was optimistically said that the German professors would recover—that their second thoughts would be better than their first. But now comes Prof. Haeckel, after having 18 months to cool off, with a reiteration and reassertion of the doctrines of barbarism.

Prof. Haeckel indicts Great Britain because Great Britain refused to ally herself with Germany. An alliance between Germany and Great Britain, he points out, would have made the two partners the masters of the world. With one partner controlling the sea and the other controlling the land, all other breeds of men would have been compelled to submit. Great Britain is presented as an unspeakable sinner because she refused to become party to this plan to divide the world—because she wickedly stuck by the doctrine that there should be equality of national right, the development of a public law that should rest on moral foundations, and thus rejected the scheme for a two-nation imperialism. The learned professor's attack on Great Britain brings to mind the reproaches Octavius directed against Antony because Antony would not agree to a peaceable joint governance of the Roman world.

Equally instructive is Prof. Haeckel's practical announcement, Great Britain having rejected the partnership role offered to her, that Germany will now take up the job of bossing the world alone. Belgium is to be kept by Germany, and with it the Congo country. Great Britain is to be expelled from Africa, and presumptively France from Northern Africa. Egypt is to be returned to Turkey, its rightful owner and Germany's most obedient servant. Ceylon is to go to Holland, which is to be brought under German influence. So on and so on. What Germany is not directly to get is to be given to satellite states not strong enough to oppose the German will.

Thus does Prof. Haeckel confirm the belief that the war involves a duel to the death between two theories of civilization—between an imperialism that is based on force and an internationalism that is based on right. Can it be that the war fury still so controls the mentals of this once great man that he is unaware of the effect pro-

MRS. FORDYCE KIMBALL
FORMERLY MISS KATHERINE MILLIKEN OF DALLAS, TEX., A BRIDE OF THURSDAY.

Many Girls From Finishing Schools and Colleges Arriving for Easter Holidays—Various Affairs Are Being Planned for Their Enjoyment—Brides-elect Now Busy With Trousseaus—Fashionable Set Awaiting Return of Gayety to Follow Passing of Lenten Season.

By Frances Cabanne Scovel.

WITH the arrival of all the girls from finishing schools and colleges for the Easter holidays, the debutantes who have held sway all season will step out of the social limelight, as most of the entertainments to be given within the next two or three weeks will be for the college set.

The social calendar at this time of the year always has an unusual appearance.

Odds and ends of affairs are scattered over it. A charity party here, a small tea there and announcements of Country Club parties and a wedding or two—not at all the same as in the height of the season.

The brides-elect are busy with their trousseaus; numbers of the belles and matrons of the fashionable social set still are away, and everything seems to be waiting for Easter to begin again the social activity which makes the little season between April and June so delightful in St. Louis.

THE Saturday morning fancy dance class of 135 children between the ages of 3 and 14 years, had its last meeting for the season yesterday morning at Mahler's, 4411 Washington boulevard.

It was a pretty sight, with Jacob Mahler, dean of dancing teachers, leading the class through its steps and poses, while all around the room and in the balcony above sat mothers and friends, many of whom had been taught to dance by the same master, when his school was at Grand and Olive. Some were there who had learned to dance when his school was in the Pickwick Theater Building, at Jefferson and Washington avenues.

This is Mr. Mahler's forty-seventh year of teaching and some of his pupils are of the third generation.

The annual play, in which the pupils of Mr. Mahler and his daughter, Mrs. Rosalind Mahler Pufeles, will take part will be "Undine," and will be given May 19 and 20, at the Shubert Theater.

Mrs. George D. Barnett and her daughter, Miss Theodosia Barnett, will entertain informally this afternoon at their residence, 5315 Delmar boulevard, with a tea in honor of Mrs. Barnett's niece, Miss Martha Miles of Mount Vernon, N. Y. The hours will be from 4 to 7.

Portieres and lace curtains will soon have to be cleaned. Phone Lindell 4600. Schuck excels in this work.

There will be two engagement receptions this evenig of equal interest, one given for former Judge and Mrs. Moses N. Sale, in honor of their daughter, Miss Riette Sale, and her fiance, A. D. Frey, at the Columbian Club, the other by Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Glaser at their home, 12 Kingsbury place, in honor of their daughter, Miss Helen Glaser, who is betrothed to Clifford C. Fox.

Both affairs are from 8 to 11 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Peckham of 824 Goodfellow avenue, announce the birth, Monday, of a son, whom they have named Osgood Hazard Peckham for Mr. Peckham's father.

Mrs. Peckham was Miss Isabel Wyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wyman.

Now showing new and attractive dress and street coats and imported blouses. Sally Meagher, 801 Century Bldg.

Holt Tipton has returned from college to spend the Easter vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Tipton of 8 Lewis place, who have just returned from Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Minnich of 4406 Alaska avenue announce the birth of a daughter. Mrs. Minnich before marriage was Miss Gertrude Frank.

Mrs. F. W. Drew of 4960 Fountain avenue has formally announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Helen Cross, to Frank Borgsteadt. The wedding will take place on April 5, at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride, the Rev. Dr. E. Duckworth officiating.

A lot of care is necessary in white coats. Scott's exercise this care and the result is that white goods cleaned by them are perfect. The cost of cleaning a white coat is $1.25.

Miss Grace Hays of Nashville, Tenn., is expected to arrive about April 1 for a visit to her aunt, Mrs. Forrest Ferguson of 4912 Berlin avenue. Miss Hays frequently has visited here since her debut several seasons ago.

Mrs. Herbert L. Parker of 29 Washington terrace, who went to Indianapolis for a wedding, Wednesday, returned on the train on which her daughter, Miss Katherine Parker, and her guest, Miss Reba Gray were coming from Dobb's Ferry, arriving here Thursday.

WEEKLY CALENDAR OF SOCIAL EVENTS

SUNDAY.—Mrs. George D. Barnett, Miss Theodosia Barnett, tea in honor of Miss Martha Miles, 5315 Delmar boulevard, 4 to 7 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses N. Sale, reception at the Columbian Club in honor of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Riette Sale, to Mr. A. D. Frey, 8 to 11 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Sigmund Glaser, reception at their home, 12 Kingsbury place, in honor of their daughter, Miss Helen Glaser's betrothal, to Mr. Clifford C. Fox, 8 to 11 p. m.

MONDAY—Wedding of Miss Gustava Harris, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Harris to Alfred Vorhaus, formerly of New York, 14 Washington terrace, 8 p. m.

Mrs. Rosa Kahn, dinner dance at the Columbian Club, in honor of her daughter, Miss Alma Kahn, 7:30 p. m.

Alliance Francaise, lecture at Mary Institute, by Joachim Merliant, 3 p. m.

Marriage of Mrs. Katherine Tutt Steinwender to Mr. E. Anson More, at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. John N. Booth, 4012 Delmar boulevard, 8 p. m.

Miss Gray's home is in Memphis, Tenn. She will spend the Easter vacation with Miss Parker.

Mrs. Robert J. D. Sullivan of Providence, R. I., who formerly was Miss Marie Louise Cahill, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Cahill of 4475 Lindell boulevard. She is accompanied by her small daughter, Miss Marie Alice Sullivan.

We launder with care. Aalco Laundry Co., Lindell 1749, Delmar 1807.

Mrs. H. S. Wheeler of 6195 Kingsbury boulevard, and her daughter, Miss Esther Wheeler, have gone to Excelsior Springs for a fortnight. From there they will go to Springfield, Mo., for a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Rex Wheeler.

Dr. and Mrs. Jules Brady have returned from Cuba, where they spent their honeymoon. They are at the Hamilton Hotel until their apartment in the Ambrose is in readiness for them.

Mrs. Brady was Miss Kathryn Kinsella. Her marriage took place March 1.

You, too, will like

Miss Georgette Madill, daughter of Mrs. Edward S. Robert of 4140 Lindell boulevard, will depart tomorrow for New York to visit friends. Miss Madill is one of the most attractive debutantes of the winter.

The Friendly Aid Club will give a 500 party in the rose parlor of the Buckingham Hotel tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Corset service in your own home without additional charge. Order now for Easter. "Just-us," 849 Century Bldg.

A pleasant gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Williams, 3437 Michigan avenue, March 18, in honor of their fifteenth wedding anniversary.

Among those present were: Messrs. and Mesdames J. Feder and C. Meyer, Mrs. E. Ferleman, Misses Clare and Meta Ferleman, Florence Feder, Ruth Williams, Helen Williams, Myrtle Keler and Messrs. John Feder Jr. and Corliss Williams.

An exceptionally varied collection of charming negligees, in the newest patterns, are now being shown at Barry's Specialty Shop, on Locust, west of 7th. The opportunity for obtaining garments of such assured style at the present moderate prices is unusual. An early inspection is invited.

Miss Ethel Lepper of 1613 Clinton avenue entertained her club Tuesday. Members are Misses Helen Tieman, Florence Mattmann, Vera Wilhelmy, May Korbesmeyer, Gertrude Kohl, Agnes Murphy, Anna McKernim, Sadie Boeger and Edith Korbesmeyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Wolff of 4625 Lindell boulevard are at Excelsior Springs, Mo.

STRING ORCHESTRA CONCERTS

Amateur Organization to Give Three Sunday Musicales.

The Young People's String Orchestra, directed by Victor Lichtenstein, will give three Sunday afternoon concerts, April 23, April 30 and May 7, in the Musical Art Building auditorium. The programs will include Percy Grainger's "Morris Dances," and numbers by Kreisler, Drdla, Elgar and others. At the first concert the St. Louis Ladies' Choral, directed by Mrs. Lichtenstein, will sing Elgar's "The Snow" and Manny's "Orpheus With His Lute."

Isadore Greenberg, a promising Lichtenstein pupil, will give a violin recital at the Wednesday Club auditorium on the evening of April 20.

Nemo NEWS
Devoted to the HEALTH, COMFORT and BEAUTY of WOMEN

A good friend has set us to thinking. She said:

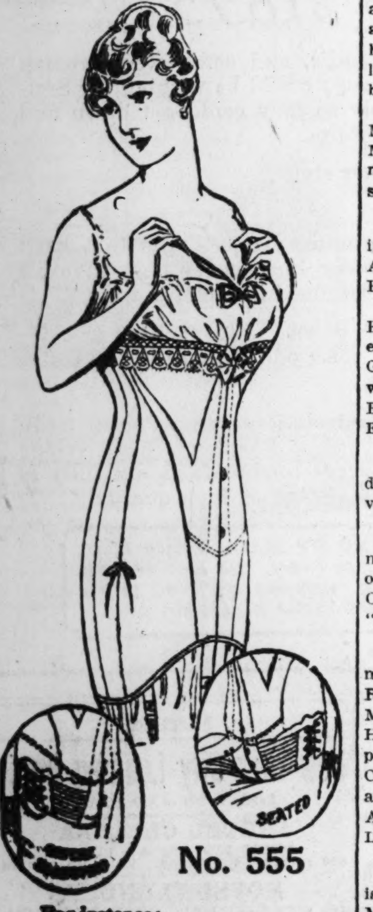
"Your Wonderlift ads remind me of patent medicines."

Which means that our ads have given her the idea that the Wonderlift is a sick woman's corset.

Probably that's our fault—we may have said too much about the marvelous health features when, in reality, the Wonderlift is quite as remarkable as a style corset.

Here's the fact:

The very features that make Nemo Wonderlift Corsets so healthful also mould the figure into perfect fashion-lines.



No. 555

For instance:

1. The Wonderlift Bandlet promotes health by giving perfect physical support. It also prevents the corset from riding up and twisting, thus preserving smooth, fashionable lines.

2. It reshapes and reduces a too-full figure, and builds up and rounds out a too-slim figure. In other words, it corrects natural figure-defects; insures comfort.

3. The Nemo "bridge" assures freedom from pressure over gastric region, promotes free breathing and good digestion, i.e.: HEALTH. It also induces an erect, graceful, fashionable pose, without which real STYLE is impossible.

EMPHATICALLY the Nemo Wonderlift IS a STYLE Corset of the highest class, and it is MADE SO by its wonderful HYGIENIC FEATURES

There's one Wonderlift model for very slim figures with sharp hip bones and concave abdomen—No. 557, at $5.00.

Another for the biggest women, with rolls of flesh all over—No. 998, at $10.00. This is the only corset of its kind ever made.

Then there are other models, not so extreme:

554—for short stout women....$5.00
555—for taller full figures.......$5.00
556—for slender to medium.....$5.00
1000—a model de luxe, of lustrous brocade, for average full figures..$10.

We confidently repeat this prediction:

In due time, nearly every woman who wears a corset will wear a Nemo Wonderlift.

Otto Wursching, Louis Pfeil, Harry Kroger, Harry Niesman, Henry Holstei, Louis Haas, Harry Maurer, Andy Maurer, William Bessig, Charles Williams, James Scott, Nat. Allen.

Misses Isabelle and Daisy G. Cunningham will entertain the H. S. G. L. S. A. at their home, 5464 Vernon avenue, Saturday. The book for discussion is "Julia Page," by Kathleen Norris.

The club will be addressed by Miss Mary E. Bulkley of the Equal Suffrage League and by Miss Sara George of the Consumers' League.

The first social meeting of the Friendship Girls was held last Sunday at the home of the president, Miss Florence Kavanaugh, 1321 Aubert avenue. The dining room and table were decorated with St. Patrick's day decorations. A bouquet of green carnations adorned the center of the table, and each guest received a place card and favor.

Those present were: Misses Marie Helwig, Marie Kavanaugh, Flora Frerking, Margaret Owens, Esme Saterfield, Loretta Owens, Minnie Stumpe, Lucy Owens and Ima Saterfield.

The regular meeting of the Carondelet Women's Club held Monday evening, was well attended and a very enjoyable affair. The next meeting of the club will be April 3, when election of officers for the ensuing year will take place.

The Morning Etude will meet at Baldwin Hall, 1111 Olive street, Wednesday, at 10:15 a. m. Mrs. Landree will read a paper on "Indian music," and will have charge of the program. Songs illustrative of the subject will be sung by Mrs. Wolf.

Other members on the program are Mrs. Brundege, Mrs. Helena Cassell, Mrs. A. W. Haille, Miss Lillian Wehman, Mrs. George D. Ruhe, Miss Robinson, Mrs. Milligan and Miss Bergman.

The Senecas entertained with a bowling party March 19 at the South Side Alleys. Miss Myrtle Lieber and Miss Esther Gumpert were winners of prizes.

Those present were: Misses Margaret Herrmann, Anna Behrens, Myrtle Lieber, Adele Viehwig, Olinda Tacke, Esther Gumpert; Messrs. George Scheutzel, Irwin Theobald, Charles Forster, Elmer Forster, Oscar Umbach, Fred Gaebler, Ed Fischbeck.

Mrs. C. Falk of 4048 St. Louis avenue departed last week for Kansas City to visit her daughters.

The Goodsonians will hold their next meeting on Tuesday evening, at 2:30 o'clock, at King's Highway Presbyterian Church. Melville Burke will speak on "Nature in Shakspeare."

Mr. and Mrs. R. Helbeck announce the marriage of their daughter, Mabel, to R. H. Ellis, formerly of Munising, Mich., which took place March 8, in Hillsboro, Ill., Rev. Royal W. Ennis, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Hillsboro, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Ellis will be at home after April 1 at 3617 Hartford street, St. Louis.

Mrs. Charles Iddiols of Kansas City, is spending a fortnight as the guest of Mrs. Charles F. Jennings of the Hamilton Hotel. Mrs. Iddiols formerly lived in St. Louis and has many friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville P. Blake, of the Hamilton Hotel, and their two young sons, Howard and Eugene, departed last night for Chicago, where they will visit friends for a week. Mr. and Mrs. Blake's daughter, Miss Rhea Blake, who is a student at the Western College for Women at Oxford, O., will join them in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Clay Gregory of Joplin, Mo., have come to St. Louis to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Haydock, and are at the Hamilton Hotel.

Miss Rohdye Jacob of Hamilton avenue is visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. W. Jacob, and family, in Minneapolis, Minn.

Columbia Granfonola Exhibit at May-Stern's.

The formal opening of May, Stern & Co.'s newly enlarged department devoted exclusively to Columbia Grafonolas, Columbia double disc records and music roll library is announced for tomorrow—and an invitation is extended to the public to attend. This department now occupies the entire annex of the seventh floor of the May-Stern store. It is arranged in a series of glass-paneled, sound-proof rooms—with perfect ventilation and lighting—and affords an opportunity for each patron to hear and judge the various styles of Columbia Grafonolas on display.

The success of this department is due to the completeness of the stock—the careful service—and the May-Stern plan of offering these famous talking machines on convenient payments—without interest or extras of any kind. Over one-third of this section is given over to May-Stern's complete library of music rolls for player-pianos—where all the very latest selections are offered at popular prices. Miss Sadie Rosenblatt who, for several years was connected with another large music house, is in charge of these departments at May-Stern & Co.'s and will be glad to see her many friends.

Minneapolis Pastor to Speak Here.

Rev. Dr. James E. Freeman, rector of St. Mark's Church, in Minneapolis, Minn., will preach at Christ Church Cathedral at 11 o'clock this morning. He will deliver lenten addresses each noonday at the Columbia Theater, and will conduct a mission nightly at St. George's Chapel, Olive street and Pendleton avenue.

SPANISH CLUB ENTERTAINMENT

Works of Latin-American Poets Are to Be Read.

The Spanish Club of St. Louis will give a literary, musical and dramatic entertainment at Soldan High School next Thursday evening. The program will be in Spanish.

The literary part of the program will exploit three Latin-American poets—Ruben Dario of Nicaragua and Julio Flores and Jose Asuncion Silva of Colombia. Addresses on their lives and works will be made by M. A. DeVitis and William Annin, instructors respectively in romance languages in Soldan and Cleveland high schools, while some of their poems will be read by Guillermo Gomez and F. Calcana. Spanish music will be furnished by the Soldan High School Mandolin Club, with vocal selections by M. A. Caprio of Montevideo, Uruguay. The dramatic portion of the entertainment will consist of an exhibition of the costumes and folk dances of Spain.

Hot Water

won't hurt a Valsparred Kitchen

THIS little talk is to the woman who takes a personal pride in her pantry and kitchen. These are not rooms that your guests see, but for all that they should be the cleanest rooms in the house. The woodwork, floors and walls of these rooms, as well as the bathroom, should be waterproof, and Valspar will make them so.

Splashed dish water can never hurt Valspar—repeated washings with hot water and soap only serve to keep it bright and sanitary. Even on the drain-board Valspar gives perfect satisfaction. It's the only varnish that water will not harm. We prove by test that boiling water can be poured on Valspar without injury to the finish.

There are scores of home uses for Valspar. And for all of them Valspar is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction.

LABOR-SAVING DEVICES TO BE SEEN AT HOUSEHOLD SHOW

National Gas and Electric Exhibit Takes Place at Coliseum April 3 to 15.

The national household gas and electric show, which will be held at the Coliseum April 3 to 15, will give women an opportunity of seeing how houses are gotten in order with the latest labor saving devices and household appliances. There will be food demonstrations, baking contests and lectures on domestic science and art.

There also will be a model yard, showing the proper plotting and planting of both the front lawn and rear yard. A list of the outdoor plants which do best in the St. Louis climate will be given to every person interested. This exhibit also will demonstrate the window-box idea advanced by the Business Men's League in beautifying the downtown districts for the national Democratic convention.

The tea garden will be in charge of various charities. The Women's Relief Corps, Gen. Lyon Post, G. A. R., will have charge of the tearoom the opening night and second day. The Temple Club will have charge of the tearoom Wednesday and Thursday. The Ladies' Guild of St. Phillips' Church will serve Friday and Saturday.

LIBERAL EDUCATION IN LARNED WORLD HISTORY

Not every person can obtain a college education, but every person now has the opportunity of obtaining a liberal education in the world's history. Josephus Nelson Larned, in his History of the World, has a genius for picking up the right threads and weaving them into a fabric of clearly marked design. This enables the reader to understand the trend of events as never before.

The World Syndicate Co., Inc., New York, publishers of the Larned history, is distributing the five volumes of this history at nominal cost. The distributing center in St. Louis is the office of the Post-Dispatch. The set can be obtained by presenting at the Post-Dispatch office the coupon printed in an advertisement in another column, with $1.98. Until further notice a $1.50 war map will be presented free with each set.

GREATEST SALE OF SPRING SUITS

Those 4 words carry a world of meaning—for we have had several Special Sales this season that were "wonders"—as several thousand St. Louis women know. But, taking everything into account—the exceptionally high character of the Suits, the unusually wide range of styles and sizes—and last but not least—the general market conditions, this sale will "lay them all in the shade."

$18.75

$30 to $40 Silk Suits—$25 to $35 Silk and Cloth Combination Suits—$25 to $30 Cloth Suits—All at One Price

$18.75

Never at Any Time Could You Buy Such Suits as These for $18.75—

IF this manufacturer hadn't a policy of quick stock renewals—turning his stocks every 10 days—at a loss, if necessary—and hadn't had 500 Easter Suits (including 100 samples) which he was ready to let "slide" at a "price."

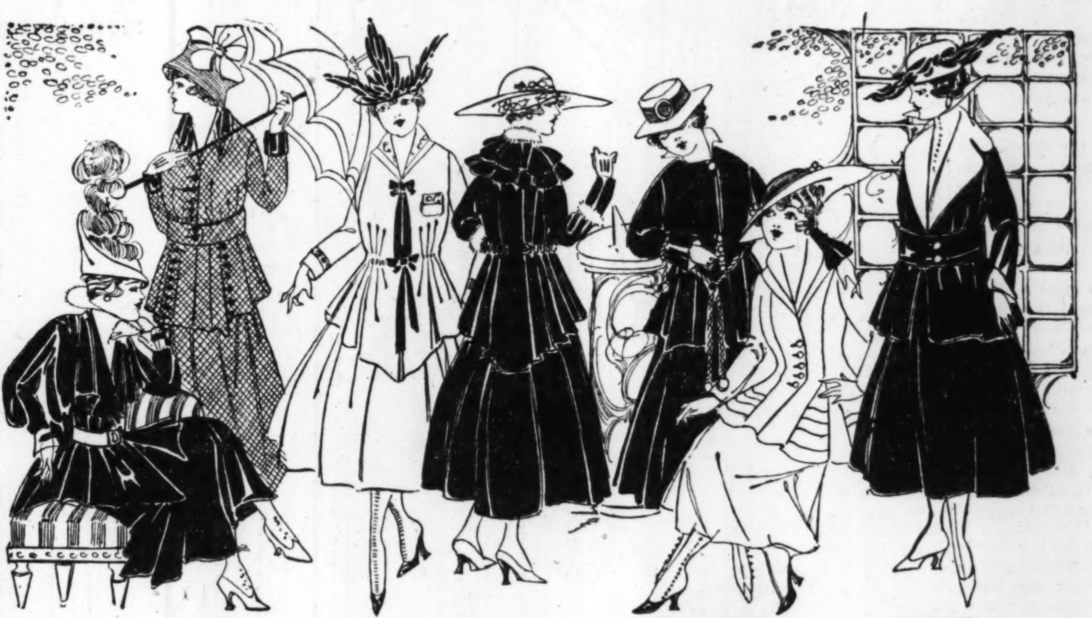
No. 1, Taffeta, with white kid belt.
No. 2, brown and white Jenny check
No. 3, Twilight blue taffeta with ribbon streamers.
No. 4, Maribou trimmed taffeta.
No. 5, tailored taffeta, with bell cuffs.
No. 6 navy gabardines, white braid trimming.
No. 7, taffeta with white broadcloth collar and white piping.



$18.75 $18.75 $18.75 $18.75 $18.75 $18.75 $18.75

AND if we hadn't a "pull" in the market, and "first call" on this particular manufacturer, when he has something "good" to offer—some other big store, in some other big city would be advertising

Women's Up-to-$40 Easter Suits for $18.75

Instead of Garland's, and some other women in some other big city, would be wishing for Sunday to pass quickly so they could get down and have one of these Suits.

But that's another story.

The story is—

That these are wonder Suits—Suits that have individuality in every line—coats that have an odd, likable hang, trimmed in a clever way.

A row of buttons down the front, back or side; braid arranged in some odd manner at the collar or silk at the cuffs.

The splendid materials—serges, Poiret twill, taffeta, poplin, gabardine, Shepherd check, velour check or silk-and-serge combinations are fully in keeping with our standard of high quality.

Yes The 7 Suits shown above were sketched as they were removed from their tissue wrappings yesterday and with the other 30 styles had their first peep at St. Louis' daylight. There is something fascinating about each and every one that captivates at a glance—an exclusiveness, a distinctiveness—an originality and an individuality that stamps them "RIGHT—CORRECT."

$18.75

Sale Starts at 8:30 Monday (3d Floor). Suits will be grouped according to sizes. Extra salespeople will eliminate delay. Shop early, if you can, for best selections.

$18.75

IF ORDERING BY MAIL enclose P. O., or Express Money Order. Be explicit as to style, material, color and size, and give a second and third choice if possible.

Just Apply This Paste and the Hairs Vanish

(Helps to Beauty)

A safe, reliable home treatment for the quick removal of superfluous hairs from your face or neck is as follows: Mix a stiff paste with some water and powdered delatone, apply to objectionable hairs and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This simple treatment is unfailing and no pain or inconvenience attends its use, but to avoid disappointment be certain you get genuine delatone.—ADV.

Gen. Pershing Is Not New to Role of Hunter of Bandits

rison out to charge the Americans without any preliminaries. Pershing's men withstood the assault, and after routing their adversaries destroyed the fort.

The next stronghold of the Moros was upon the lake's edge. Pershing pushed forward toward it, reaching it at nightfall. By morning all of his columns had arrived, and when he had prepared for the assault was informed by scouts that every person within the fortress had departed at night by swimming out into the lake.

"I wondered if they wouldn't run away, if they had a little time to think," he remarked to a war correspondent, accompanying the expedition.

Ordering his men into line, Pershing led them on a long march around the lake—the first processional ever made by the white men. With baners flowing and bugles blowing, he met the dattos, who surrendered.

"Howdy—let's be friends," he said to them in their own dialect, as they came forward to make their peace offerings.

After having subdued the district Pershing was appointed Governor of Iligan. By this time, having acquired a working knowledge of their language, he became exceedingly popular with the Moros. Gradually he became a Judge among them.

Every morning men and women appeared before him asking that he decide such momentous issues as the right of possession to animals under dispute, and mothers took their babies to be commended by him, believing that his favor would insure them future happiness and prosperity.

In 1903 the Sultan of Sulu requested that he journey to Bryan, where United States troops had clashed with the natives shortly after the American occupancy of the island. Pershing went there and was informed that his righteous ruling of the province had so pleased them that he was to be made a datto, which, under native laws, gave him full power of life and death over the natives in his district and supreme authority over their property. He was formally proclaimed such after a long religious ceremony.

Several of the chiefs then looked inquiringly at Pershing, intimating that something of a celebrative nature was expected of him. He took the hint and called for a number of shrapnel shells. These he had placed a short distance away, and then exploded. The brilliant pyrotechnics thus caused made a weird scene in the night and the natives danced with joy at this demonstration of a mysterious power.

Datto Pershing became more popular than ever as a Judge at Iligan. His word was absolute, final law to them, even in matters of a domestic nature, if they asked it of him.

An army officer stationed there at that time told a Post-Dispatch reporter of the daily scene in front of Pershing's tent.

"Pershing sat on a big bench, in front of his tent fly," he said. "From every portion of the island friendly natives came to have him—the man honored by their Sultan—sit in judgment on their petty cases. Each he heard gravely, then dispensed justice.

"He was their guide and counselor, their friend and their prophet. Men who had fought against him now sought his advice in matters public and private. Dark-eyed Moro belles brought gifts of fruit and finely woven cloth. Little children approached him for a pat of his hand, while grave tribesmen, half-clad, squatted in a semicircle and heard him expound the new law of the white man. Sometimes they questioned him on points in the Koran, and his knowledge of their holy book won their admiration."

The Sultan of Oato, wishing to pay Datto Pershing the highest honor in his power, offered him his 18-year-old son and heir as a gift.

Three children made orphans by war, were brought to him to be disposed of; the usual rule was to sell such unfortunates into slavery. Pershing temporarily adopted them—a girl and two boys. The former married when 12 years old. One boy died and the other became such a thief that he was finally left to shift for himself.

Later Pershing returned from the volunteer service to the regular army, resuming his rank as Captain. His health was then broken, and he started to return to the states. Seated in a Manila cafe one day he was questioned by a war correspondent about some of his experiences.

"I can make a crackerjack story about this," the correspondent remarked after Pershing had mentioned something that had happened in Moroland.

"Of course, I can't keep you from writing, but please leave the hero stuff out about me," he requested.

Capt. Pershing was married to Miss Helen Francis Warren, daughter of United States Senator Warren of Wyoming, in Washington, in January, 1905. Shortly afterward, as an attache at the American embassy at Tokio, he was appointed observer to accompany the Japanese army into Manchuria in the spring and summer. He was also decorated by the Japanese Mikado.

President Roosevelt appointed Capt. Pershing a Brigadier-General Sept. 16, 1906, jumping him over the heads of 862 officers. There was a storm of criticism in army circles and stout opposition in the United States Senate, but he was finally confirmed.

There always has been an element of mystery as to just how President Roosevelt came to select Capt. Pershing for promotion over so many officers who were his seniors in service. Political enemies have insisted that Pershing's promotion was due mainly to the influence of his father-in-law, Senator Warren. But Pershing's superiors, as w[illegible] as officers of lower rank who have come into contact with him, declare he is a real soldier and has more than made good.

Lieutenant-Colonel Kenley said of him yesterday: "He is a natural leader, one who inspires the utmost confidence in his officers and men. A wonderful strategist, a diplomat when need be, and above all a fighting man."

After his promotion Gen. Pershing was ordered to the Philippines, where he became Governor of the Moro province, after subduing a new uprising. He continued to act as Governor until 1914, when he returned to the United States.

Gen. Pershing was in command of the Eighth Brigade, United States Infantry at El Paso, Tex., Aug. 27, 1915, when Mrs Pershing and three of her four children were suffocated in a fire in their quarters at the Presidio of San Francisco.

TODAY'S AID TO BEAUTY

An especially fine shampoo for this weather can be easily made at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather that dissolves and removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on a glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem very much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure.—ADV.

Secretary Daniels Tells the Truth of His Official Record

brains without beef. Also he keeps no one waiting in his antechamber, and his extreme simplicity and courtesy convey an impression of humility. The average person loves affectation and gains no large appreciation of power unless he is made to wait or is trated rudely. For the larger part of his life, Abraham Lincoln was regarded by many as a bumpkin advanced by lucky accidents.

For an hour Josephus Daniels sat at his desk and answered questions, rarely pausing for answers, revealing the most amazing grasp of his position, never evading, refusing to disparage, and defending at every point the honor of the navy, although he must have known in his own heart that much of the malicious gossip was due to the venom of disappointed officers.

"They charge that the navy is going down hill, that enlisted men hate the service, and that my brand of democratization has spelled the demoralization of the service. What is my brand of democratization? I have established schools on board ship, attempting to let every enlisted man have an opportunity for academic and technical education, and I have opened certain doors of promotion to these men. What demoralization has resulted? When I took office only 52 per cent of the men discharged in good standing were re-enlisting, while today the percentage is 85.

6365 Men Added.

"I found a navy 6000 men short of the number allowed by law. In my three years 6365 men have been added. There was an average of 1800 men in prison, while today there are fewer than 700, permitting us to restore two prison ships and two disciplinary barracks to normal uses. During the Taft administration there were over 10,000 desertions A decrease of 17 per cent has been achieved already, and every day sees the number lessening. Do these figures indicate discontent, hatred of the service and destroyed discipline?

"I stand by my schools and if necessary I am willing to fall with them. No man believes more firmly in discipline than I do; never in spoken speech or written have I questioned the absolute necessity in all military service of instant and implicit obedience to a superior; I will have no mercy on insolence or insubordination, be it from seaman to his petty officer or junior Lieutenant to his Captain, but I do not hold that discipline is dependent upon ignorance or the denial of an American's right to rise as high as his ability will carry him.

"Time and again it has been declared to me that education does not better fit a man for deck washing or coal heaving, and the contemptuous snobbery of it has never failed to offend. If 85 per cent of discharged men are reenlisting and if more than 6000 men, that the navy called for in vain until 1912, have entered the navy, may it not be that the cause is to be found in a policy that holds out the bright prospects of education and advancement? If sensitive feelings are being hurt by the simple recognition of plain democratic principles, it is a matter for their shame, not mine.

"Of course, there is a shortage of officers, but it must be remembered that it takes 10 years to educate and train an officer. I secured a six years' extension of the law permitting each Congressman to appoint two midshipmen to Annapolis, and followed that up with the law that raised the number to three, which will mean an increase of 531 officers. Aside from this, I have gained the right to appoint 15 each year from the ranks of enlisted men, with the understanding, to be sure, that they pass the usual examinations. Last year eight of the 15 went in as the result of the ship schools.

"If the navy itself is not as large as the experts recommend, it should be borne in mind that navies are not built in a day. For the first time in history, I have caused the reports of the General Board to be made public, and any citizen may see for himself the navy's growth from year to year. From 1903 to 1912, the recommendations of the General Board, with Admiral Dewey at its head, were disregarded steadily, and it was as a consequence of this continued disregard that Germany passed us as a naval Power in 1909.

"Throughout those years the General Board urged a program of continuous building rather than a slipshod, annual affair, and had their advice been heeded there would have been no excuse for the hysterical activities of today. Of the 34 dreadnoughts recommended, 15 were authorized; 40 cruisers were recommended and five were built. I found the navy without a single sea-going submarine and just four aviators; one mine-laying ship, an inadequate and outworn system of wireless and on every hand a variety of lacks.

"I say this in no spirit of criticism. With the world at war today, we are bending a new and more enthusiastic eye upon our navy, while in years gone by peace seemed such a permanence that every navy increase was attended by outcry. I mention it merely to show that this administration has been called upon to face tremendous naval problems and tremendous naval tasks.

"An appropriation of $1.000.000 has already been made for aviation, we have 15 machines on hand, 15 are being constructed, 18 aviators are in the service, and the Pensacola school is turning out new batches as fast as the courses can be completed.

"Three new sea-going submarines of the latest and largest model are being constructed at a cost of $16,260,000, and we are making others at our own yards. A separate submarine flotilla has been organized, and assigned to the command of a Rear Admiral, and the establishment of submarine shore bases has changed the absurd condition that necessitated 1928 men of 14 ships to care for 29 submarines carrying 831 men.

Designing New Guns.

We have had to design anti-aircraft guns and manufacture them, and the same course has had to be followed with nets and mines and entanglements Radio has been installed on every submarine and 75 ships, and three new shore stations have been added to our chain; we now have three mine-laying ships, with more building, and until construction can catch up, I have equipped a fleet of seagoing tugs and a fleet of torpedo boats with minesweeping equipment.

"We have 31 mines today for every nine possessed two years ago; the supply of torpedoes has been more than our building program for the next five doubled, and manufacture continues steadily; and my adoption of the General Board's suggestion of a continu- years, if authorized by Congress, will give us a navy that, in the opinion of experts, will be fit for every possible emergency.

"It is true enough that gunnery efficiency had decreased, but under date of October, 1915, Admiral Fletcher made the cheering report that the scores made at long range practice were the highest ever made in the open sea. Ninety per cent of the shots, at longest range, would have hit an enemy ship. Yet, in spite of this report, that upholds the best traditions of the American navy, the report persists that our men are less than eager, less than able.

"I can understand the spirit of honest criticism, but I cannot understand the vileness that revels in the slime of a base and lying detraction. In order to enlist the best thought of the nation in science and invention, I asked Thomas A. Edison to serve as the head of an Advisory Board, composed of two representatives of each of the 11 great engineering and scientific societies of the United States. Germany, France and England place major reliance upon such boards, and provide great laboratories for their use. Mr. Edison and his associates serve without salary, paying their own expenses, yet even this devotion has not been able to protect them against slander. It has been charged in open print that Mr. Edison and his associates have no higher motive than a mean hope of selling something to th Government.

"It has been said repeatedly that made an order for officers and men t

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

IT'S different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers.

All we ask is a trial. Use it on your cook stove, your parlor stove or your gas range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

Black Silk Stove Polish Works
Sterling, Illinois

Use Black Silk Air-Drying Iron Enamel on grates, registers, stove-pipes—Prevents rusting. Use Black Silk Metal Polish for silver, nickel or brass. It has no equal for use on automobiles.

"A Shine in Every Drop"

Being without money is a grevious vexation, but the Post-Dispatch "Money Wanted" Want Ad opens wireless communications with the man who has money to loan on chattels or realty.

Of course, you want a pair of ivory kid boots!

NOT just because "everyone's wearing them, but because they are so very smart, so dainty, look so charming on the foot.

Illustrated is a very new model we call the "Spring Song." You won't be able to resist its exquisite ivory "whiteness," its captivating curves, and because it's a Red Cross Shoe it's so comfortable you won't know you have it on—until some one remarks about its beauty.

Eads Av. Lady Coughed So Couldn't Sleep at Night

Rubbed Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Salve Up Nostrils, and Inhaled Vapors, and Cough Stopped.

Last season the local druggists gave away a number of complimentary jars of Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Salve, in order to introduce to St. Louis people this new theory of treating cold troubles externally. "Vap-O-Rub" is the invention of a North Carolina druggist, and for years has been universally used in the South in preference to internal medicines. A number of St. Louis mothers have written in that they found this treatment much quicker than the old methods of stomach dosing, and, in addition, it can be used freely on the smallest child with perfect safety.

An Eads Av. lady whose name we withhold by request, tried a jar from Wolff-Wilson, and writes us as follows:—"I have found Vick's 'Vap-O-Rub' very good for sore throat, and tickling in the throat, but I used it a little differently from the way you prescribed. I had a bad cough and tickling in my throat, and I put 'Vap-O-Rub' up my nostrils, and when I breathed it through my nose it would allay the tickling and I could sleep all night without coughing. When I didn't use it I would cough nearly all night. I have also used it for canker sores in the mouth, and it was almost a magical cure for them."

Vick's acts in two ways. Applied over the throat and chest, and covered with a warm flannel cloth the body warmth releases vapors that are inhaled with each breath. In addition, Vick's is absorbed through the skin, taking out the tightness and soreness. Vick's is a perfect household remedy, and has a wide range of uses, from asthma, catarrh and head colds, down to deep chest colds, sore throat and bronchitis, and, in addition, it will be found very cooling and soothing for burns, bruises, stings and itching. In three sizes, 25c, 50c or $1.00. At all druggists.

mess together, and that I gave up the idea only when informed that black men and white men be brought together at the same table. There was never a more infamous falsehood. No such order was ever made or contemplated. Some snapshots, were being taken on board ship, and as I had left my hat below, an officer loaned me his cap. I made some laughing remark about its shape, and this has been twisted into personal derision of the naval uniform. Once I spoke at a Y. M. C. A. meeting of the men, and at its close I was asked to have my picture taken with two of the youngsters. It is this picture that has since been used to show my passion for posing as a friend of the bluejacket.

"It has been asserted that I have deprived the kin of an enlisted man of the customary death gratuity should he lose his life while on liberty. The law on this subject was passed in 1912, and states specifically that the only cause for withholding payment shall be when death is due to the misconduct of the deceased. We bought eight searchlights from a German inventor, and tendered him a second order for 12 more at $3960 apiece, as set down in his bid. He refused the contract, making a request for a new award at $5200 apiece, and this transaction constitutes the base of charge that the United States navy robbed a stranger and took advantage of him. Nothing seems to be too low, too mean or too vicious to be said, and the attacks do not stop at me, but soil nation, navy and officials.

Victor Blue's Record.

"I do not care about these pettinesses as far as I, personally, am concerned, but I do resent the extension of this enmity to others. The people are asked to believe, for instance, that I appointed some inefficient underling to be chief of the Bureau of Navigation. Victor Blue, the man attacked by inference, has his name in the Naval Register with the notation 'advanced for extraordinary heroism during the war with Spain.' His daring expeditions to locate the Spanish fleet at Santiago, however, were no less brilliant than his action in penetrating the Spanish gunboat blockade in an armed ship's boat, meeting Gen. Gomez and then capturing two Spanish patrol sloops as he ran out of the harbor. He has filled every office on a modern man of war, served on Admiral Kempff's staff during the Philippine insurrection, and was a member of the first relief expedition, which marched from the sea to Tientsin. After that he was Chief of Staff of the Pacific fleet, was appointed by Secretary Meyer to the General Board, and it was there I found him.

"The same malice has attempted to discredit the splendid men gathered about me as heads of the various bureaus. Rear Admiral Griffin, Chief of the Bureau of Steam Engineering; Rear Admiral Strauss of the Bureau of Ordnance, David Watson Taylor of the Bureau of Construction and Repair and Rear Admiral Benson, Chief of the Bureau of Naval Operations were chosen for their pre-eminent ability, and their records should constitute an answer to base insinuation.

"When I came into office I found a system of aids, each one standing as a buffer between the Secretary and his bureaus, a plan that resulted in delay, confusion, red tape and a tremendous amount of correspondence carried on between men in adjoining rooms. This system had been refused sanction by Congress time and again, and many of the aids had become obnoxious by reason of their incessant lobbying for legal recognition.

Made Enemies by Cutting Red Tape.

"I ended the system, not only because it was illegal, but because I desired direct contact with my bureaus. No doubt this aroused personal resentment, and likely enough the irritation has been fanned by my insistent recommendations to Congress that promotion by seniority be discarded in favor of promotion by merit.

"I have been criticised also for refusing to permit naval officers to deliver public addresses, and otherwise seek to make public sentiment. This has been the unbroken policy of the navy from time immemorial, and President Roosevelt, in 1902, and President Taft, in 1909, reinforced the rule by executive orders that established dismissal as a penalty for violation. But even while I did not make this regulation I give it my unalterable support. Congress has called before it every officer of the navy regarded as an authority, and the testimony of these gentlemen has been available to the press, and to supplement publicity. I have made public the reports of the General Board. No one has been muzzled; simply the law has been enforced that forbids officers from running about the country for purposes of propaganda.

"The people of the United States have never had cause to be ashamed of their navy, and never more than today has there been cause for pride. Testifying before the House Committee the other day, Capt. J. S. McKean said that we had made more progress in the last two years than in any previous five-year period, and that he had never known a time when everybody in the service, from top to bottom, was working as hard with their heads and hands."

"Publication of Creel's Interview a Patriotic Service."

NEW YORK, March 25.—In a communication addressed to the New York World, John R. Dunlap, editor of the Engineering Magazine, says:

"Thank you very much for submitting the proofs of Mr. Creel's stirring interview with Secretary Daniels; and let me say at once that I regard the publication as nothing short of a timely, needed and patriotic public service.

"As an engineering editor it has recently become necessary for me to thoroughly investigate precisely what it happening in the navy department, and the information I have gathered, from the lips of the highest commissioned officers in charge of the navy and also from the individual members of the Naval Consulting Board, enables me to unqualifiedly indorse every word Mr. Creel has written in his strong introductory and every statement he has attributed to Secretary Daniels.

"Indeed, I have been both surprised and gratified to discover how much Secretary Daniels has actually accomplished for the navy—especially because of his potent personal influence with radical and unreasoning little-navy men of his own party in Congress. Thus, during the first two years of his administration, he secured appropriations for the chief fighting force of the navy amounting to $70,000,000, as against $26,000,000 during the last two years of the Meyer administration; and thereby he got what navy officers have been striving to get ever since the fleet sailed around the world in 1906, when President Roosevelt reversed and halted our progressive naval program by boastfully announcing in his message to Congress: 'I do not ask that we continue to increase our navy.'

"Secretary Daniel's master stroke in technical efficiency was the creation and appointment of the naval consulting board—a body of distinguished engineers and inventors who represent the best brains and organized capacity of all our great engineering, chemical and mechanical professions. I could write a page telling of the activities and potentialities of this great body of professional experts who have volunteered for public service without pay; but it will suffice to say here that they already have 15 different committees all actively at work in their special fields and they have summoned no less than 240 of their engineering associates (five for each state), who are co-operating in the fundamentally important work of tabulating the equipment and resources of all our vast mechanical industries, so that they can be instantly mobilized in aid of both the army and navy should occasion call.

"In the light of this record of actual achievement, is it not about time to call upon Secretary Daniels' busy critics for facts—rather than the partisan, puerile and grossly unjust merely personal abuse which they have been handing out?

"JOHN R. DUNLAP."

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR BACK HURTS, SURELY FLUSH YOUR KIDNEYS WITH SALTS

Eating too much meat forms uric acid, which clogs the Kidneys, irritates the Bladder and causes Rheumatism.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, removing all the body's waste, else you have bachache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. —ADV.

Classification of Intangible Assets as Tax Solution

submitting to a confiscatory basis of taxation.

While this ability to invest in the shares of foreign corporations may mitigate the siuation as to individual investors, it does not avail trustees, as they cannot, or ought not to, invest in stocks at all. If we are to continue this discrimination against trust estates, which have always been the favorites of our law, we ought to at least be consistent and relieve trustees of the duty to make investments in securities where the income is subject to confiscation by taxation.

The situation in Missouri is anomalous in that it is not enforced by the State Constitution as it is in some states. Thus the Constitution of Missouri does not require absolute uniformity in taxation or that all property should be taxed alike. On the contrary it provides in Article 10, Section 3:

> Taxes may be levied and collected for public purposes only. They shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects within the territorial limits of the authority levying the tax, and all taxes should be collected and levied by general laws.

Kentucky, Minnesota and Maryland have recently amended their Constitutions, and Illinois is now trying to amend its Constitution, in order to secure this power of classification in taxation which Missouri has had in her Constitution for now some 40 years. In a recent decision the Supreme Court of Kansas, Wheeler vs. Weightman, 149 Pac. Rep. 977, held invalid a mortgage recording tax law passed by the Legislature of Kansas because the Constitution of that State did not contain this power of classification.

In Missouri, therefore, the Legislature can classify property for taxation, but, of course, the classification must be reasonable and the tax is valid if it is uniform upon all in the same class. It is under this power of classification that the Legislature 40 years since passed the act which is still in force whereby merchants and manufacturers in St. Louis are classed separately from other property for taxation, and this system has been considered and enforced again and again by the Supreme Court. Under this classification merchants and manufacturers in St. Louis pay a city rate of only 20 cents instead of $1.35, and also pay a tax of $1 a thousand on sales. As the tax is only a city tax, they pay the same school and State tax as other property. This same power of classification can be extended by the General Assembly, as it has been extended in other states to the classification of mortgages and other so-called intangible securities, thus substituting effectiveness for ineffectiveness in taxation. Such a system would be an enormous relief to the finances of the city and State and would remove a fertile source of public scandal and demoralization.

Remedies Discussed in New York.

This subject of finding a remedy for the admitted failure of the personal property tax as to intangibles has been extensively discussed in other states, and notably in the city and State of New York, where the experience of the different states of the country has been thus reviewed. Three distinct remedies have been proposed:

First. In lieu of the ineffective system of taxing intangible personal property, it is proposed to classify such property for taxation by levying a rate which is fairly based upon the income of such securities through a mortgage recording tax and a registration tax on other securities.

Second. By levying a tax upon the visible signs of income such as a habitation tax or a tax upon a man's presumed wealth as based upon the rental paid or the rental value of his residence, and an occupation tax based upon the value of the business premises occupied and a salary tax based upon the salary actually paid, this being in the nature of a supplement to the others and these taxes, of course, to be in lieu of all personal property taxation.

Third. By adopting in lieu of all personal property taxation an income tax such as has been adopted and apparently successfully applied in Wisconsin and is now recommended in New York and Massachusetts, such income tax being made upon the general features of the income tax law of the United States.

Classification Best for Missouri.

It will be seen that the first of these plans looks to the substitution of an effective for an ineffective method of taxing personal securities, mortgages, bonds and the like. The second and third of these plans involve the abandonment of all attempts to tax such property, but seeks to substitute therefor a tax either directly upon income or upon the visible signs of income.

Other schemes were discussed in New York, such as the exemption of buildings, in whole or in part, a "super tax" upon land or the taxation of the so-called unearned increment in land. But these were discussed with reference to the peculiar conditions in New York City and look rather to the social and economic reforms expected to be realized therefrom than to the effectiveness of the taxing system itself, and would require with us a constitutional amendment as well as statutory enactments.

While the income tax plan has been adopted in Wisconsin and recommended in New York and Massachusetts, it is believed that the most practicable plan for a state situated as Missouri, and the existing tax system is based upon personal listing, is to avail ourselves of the power of classification and to make our taxation effective thereby.

Effectiveness Through Classification.

A mortgage recording tax exacted as a condition for recording would obviously be effective as all mortgages must be recorded. It is true that such a tax would probably be shifted to the mortgagor but he would be compensated (to judge from the experience of other states) in the increased attractiveness to capital of this form of investment, and this would reduce the rate of interest upon such loans. It is also true that there is a theoretical objection to such a tax in that there is no new value created by a mortgage, and the economic justification lies first in that it substitutes an effective for an ineffective tax, and second in that the state through its recording system furnishes the facilities through which the mortgage is made effective.

The same principle can be extended to the registration of securities. Here the tax cannot be shifted but must be paid by the owner, but if the tax is a moderate one, say 5 or 6 per cent upon the income of the securities, it is believed that a state registration would be sought by trustees and the estates in probate and also by private investors who do not want to evade taxation. Parties who withhold their securities from registration will be subject to the full local rate and that of itself would be an incentive for registration.

Public bonds, that is to say, those of the state, counties, cities, school districts, drainage districts, and the like, ought to be exempt from all taxation, but as that is not permissible under the Constitution, they could be subjected to a very low rate.

It will be seen that this remedy does not abolish the personal property tax; but leaves it in force as to money on hand, choses in action and other forms of property which, in the nature of things, cannot be registered. It is also true that in so far as this remedy is effective, it depends upon income rather than property, that is, the tax rate is based upon the income of the securities registered. It is for this reason that an income tax is favored by many economists as the most thorough and effective substitute for all personal property taxation. But while all this is true, the substitution of an effective for an ineffective tax as to mortgages and personal securities would be a very great improvement by increasing the public revenues and removing at least in great part the source of demoralization and scandal.

I agree with Prof. Loeb in his recommendation of a state tax commission with general supervision over the administration of laws for the assessment and collection of taxes, with power to compel the performance of legal duty by local tax officials The power of such commission, however, must be harmonized with those of the State Board of Equalization established by the State Constitution, and composed of the public state officials.

Such a commission might do something to remedy the existing inequalities which now make the burden of state taxation so lacking in uniformity throughout the state. The separation of the sources of state and local revenue, and doing away with the state property tax would remedy this want of uniformity; but a constitutional amendment to this end was submitted to the people in 1908 and defeated.

When all is said, we must admit that the burden of taxation is not welcome under any system, however equal and uniformly such burden is apportioned. It is, however, a public reproach that our taxing system through its ineffectiveness should result in equalities and injustice to the weakest classes of the community when the Constitution has left an open door for the remedy.

"DRESS UP WEEK" IN APRIL

"Dress up week" for men is to start Monday, April 10. It will be a national movement. In St. Louis it is under the auspices of the St. Louis Association of Merchant Tailors, the Associated Retailers and all the clothing interests of the city.

Those in charge are John C. Walter, J. L. Adrien and K. F. Niemoeller. The Plan Committee is composed of Arthur R. Kloss, chairman; Drane Wilkinson, Max Koenigsberg, H. E. Holloway and Roy E. Tilles, and the Publicity Committee of Max Koenigsberg, John A. Hobelman and Benjamin Werner.

DANDRUFFY HEADS BECOME HAIRLESS

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—ADV.

When Nero Fiddled and Rome Burned

On a certain July midnight, nearly two thousand years ago, the capital of the mighty Roman Empire lay slumbering peacefully amidst the sculptured slopes of its seven hills. The sluggish Tiber slipped silently along the southern walls, unvexed by sail or oar, to mingle its tawny waters with the blue Tyrrhenian Sea. There was no moon—no shine of stars.

A thick murk, so dense as to be almost tactile, filled the endless reaches of space and enshrouded the city with a pall. There was no stir of life—no sound—no movement of man or beast—no rustle of leaf or twig—only the awful stillness of a corpse-like world.

Suddenly, in one corner of the great Circus Maximus—in a little wooden booth used by the jugglers and mountebanks of the day—a slender, yellow tongue of flame shot out from a crack in the wall and licked its way to the roof. Crawling slowly along, it crept from board to board till the flimsy structure burst into blaze. The next booth followed, and the next; and soon the mighty edifice of the Circus itself became as heat of lambent fire. The nude form of an Ethiopian glided from an alley in the rear, darted into the Appian Way and ran swiftly toward the Esquiline Hill, where frowned the palace of the infamous Nero.

Breathless, he reached the heavily-armed sentinel who stood on guard. A sign, a word, and he passed into the lofty hall, where a slave guided him to the tyrant's couch. Prostrating himself on the ground, he pointed to the southen heavens, which by this time were lurid with the flames of conflagration sweeping the world's proudest city, Imperial Rome.

Nero was evidently expectant of the event, for, spurning the slave with his foot, he summoned his attendants and bade them bring his lyre, his garlands and his festal garments. Arraying himself as was his wont in Grecian theaters, he stepped forth, smote the strings and danced a grotesque figure to the measured rhythm of the music. His eyes gleamed with a wild insanity—and his gibbered speech was that of a madman.

For six days and seven nights the city burned while the last of the Caesars fiddled and made merry with his drunken favorites.

NOISE OF WAR HAS NOT SCARED SONG BIRDS FROM BATTLEFIELDS

BERLIN, March 25.—A careful study of the effect of the noise of cannonading on animals, both domestic and wild, which has been made by veterinary surgeon Dr. Reuter, has produced unexpected results. He has determined that those animals which normally are most "scary" and apprehensive are almost the last to be affected by the explosion of shells.

Both the highly trained and developed horse and dog seem to be most profoundly affected. Collie dogs are least affected, and therefore are preferred as Red Cross dogs in the field.

The nervous shock from exploding shells is so great that it oftentimes brings horses up in their tracks, apparently incapable of moving. Dogs suddenly go lame, though untouched. Mice and rats not unnaturally come to the earth when anything frightens them, and the Germans in France have been surprised to note an increase in the number.

Songbirds refuse to be driven from their haunts by cannonading, so that there are today about the normal number of larks, orioles, thrushes and finches near the lines. Owls, sparrows, hawks and crows also seem little disturbed by the noise.

How to Safely Peel Your Face

If you wear an aged, discolored or weather-beaten complexion, the most sensible thing to do is to remove it—rather than patch it over or "doctor" it with cosmetics. The only way to really remove the complexion—aside from resorting to an expensive and painful surgical operation—is by means of ordinary mercolized wax. Spread the wax over the face at night, as you would cold cream; wash it off in the morning. This gradually peels off the lifeless and the half-dead outer skin, in minute particles—gradually the fresh young skin beneath beams forth. Then you have a clear, velvety, healthy-hued complexion, such as no unnatural method can possibly produce. Freckles, blotches, pimples—all surface defects due to weather, ill-health or the ravages of time, of course, disappear with the discarded skin. Ask the druggist for an ounce of mercolized wax; you won't need more.

If you wear wrinkles or crowsfeet, the best thing to do is to bathe your face in a harmless lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. Nothing else will so surely erase the unwelcome lines.—ADV.

STATE COURTS MAY TRY OUT-OF-STATE FIRE-LOSS CASES

Missouri Tribunal's Decision in Insurance Suit Affects $500,000 in Other Litigation.

Fire insurance litigation in Missouri, involving more than $500,000 will be affected by a decision of the Missouri Supreme Court yesterday in the case of the Gold Issue Mining and Milling Co. against the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Co.

In an opinion written by Chief Justice Woodson the Court held that the fire insurance company would have to pay a loss of $45,000 to the mining company on property in Cripple Creek, Colo., destroyed by fire in 1910. The Gold Issue Mining and Milling Co. is an Arizona corporation, but the principal stockholders live in St. Louis. The contention of the insurance company in the litigation was that the courts of Missouri could have no jurisdiction on a loss occurring on property outside of the State. Judge Woodson, in his opinion, said that theory "is not the law, nor never will be, as long as the immaculate flower of justice continues to bloom in the human heart."

J. F. W. Doepke of 1444 Goodfellow avenue was the chief managing officer of the mining company. The plant of the company was struck by lighting and destroyed by fire. The insurance companies having the risks upon the property refused to pay the policies, and suits were brought in the Missouri courts for the amount of the insurance and interest.

The mining company obtained a judgment in the lower courts and the insurance companies appealed to the Supreme Court, holding that they could not be sued in Missouri for a loss accruing in Colorado.

The majority opinion of the court, one of the longest ever written, holds that the courts of the State are open to all litigants, whether resident or nonresident, to recover on claims arising outside of the State as well as within the State.

Attorney P. H. Cullen, who represented the mining company in the suit, said yesterday that there were now pending in the courts of Missouri suits against numerous insurance companies on claims aggregating more than $500,000 on property destroyed by fire outside of the State.

The same question determined by the Supreme Court in the mining case is involved in the suit of the Ford Manfuacturing Co. against 73 insurance companies, to recover for the loss of its plant in an Illinois town. Many of the suits of the Ford company have been tried in the Circuit Courts of Lincoln and Audrain counties.

STEAMER RAISED FROM OCEAN BED VALUED AT $1,200,000

Vessel Bought From France for $29,000 and Salvage Reimbursed the Purchasers.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 25.—The steamer Republic, bought by a San Francisco syndicate from the French Government for $29,000 and admitted to American registry while it lay at the bottom of Tahiti harbor, where it has been sent by shell from a German squadron, was in the harbor today, having arrived from Papeete under its own steam, and the vessel owners were reported to be considering an offer for it of $1,200,000.

The Republic, formerly the German steamer Walkure, which was seized by the French in 1914, was sunk in the German attack on Tahiti in September, 1914. For more than a year the hulk lay in 11 fathoms of water. The work of raising it involved the construction, under water, of huge cofferdams, said by experts to have been a notable performance.

The cargo recovered is said to have reimbursed the owners for both the cost of the vessel and the expense of salvage operations.

NEW SULTAN OF EGYPT TELLS POST-DISPATCH OF PLAN TO FREE WOMEN

Monogamist and Teetotaler, He Fights Ignorance Among His People and Believes Release of Mothers From Bondage of Centuries Essential.

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT,
Special Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1916, by Press Pub. Co.)

CAIRO, Feb. 25.

When the opportunity came to me a few days ago to interview Hussein Kamel First, the Sultan of Egypt, I confess I did not appreciate it. I regarded him, as I fear a good share of the world regards him, as an English-made potentate, a mere megaphone for the pronouncements of Sir Henry MacMahon, the British High Commissioner in Egypt. The magnificence in which he lives in Abdine Palace and the pomp of his Nubian bodyguard as he rides abroad struck me as being merely a clever dress parade.

Of course I accepted the suggestion at once. It was the journalistic thing to do. I did not want to lose an opportunity of having one of the interviews the Sultan has granted since he became the first Sultan of Egypt a little over a year ago, following his relative, the last of the Khedives, who opportunely was in Constantinople when the war broke out, making it easy for the English to get rid of him. He had become Sultan, I felt sure, because he was friendly to the English and was a ruler only in name.

Summed Up by MacMahon.

But my curiosity had been pricked in one point. Sir Henry MacMahon, who never says very much and says that in a quiet voice, asked me if I had seen the Sultan. I said I had not.

"Well, you want to," he replied. "You'll like him."

"I hope you speak French," remarked Arakel Nubar, the Sultan's secretary, when I appeared at Abdine Palace at 11 o'clock one morning in full evening dress, "because His Highness does not speak English."

I followed the grandson of Nubar Pacha, the American who became Egypt's greatest modern statesman. Nubar presented me to the Grand Chamberlain and left me while he went away to see if His Highness was ready.

It did not surprise me that the Sultan could not speak English, because in Egypt one is not quite out of France, with French shops, French signs on the streets and in the tramways, a hundred French to every five English schools, and the universal language French, there is no mistaking which of the European nations has made the profoundest impression on the life of Egypt. So I was quite prepared to find that Hussein Kamel I, who received his education in Paris under the Second Empire, and is as much at home in the Champs Elysee as the Kasr-el-Nil, could not only speak French, but be deeply affected by French thought.

Wants to Free Women.

Before I talked with him I had a rather vague idea of what the ruler of an Oriental country would be like, but the few ideas I had were all wrong. I expected to find a man whose interests were altogether material. Instead, I found the ruling characteristic of Hussein Kamel First to be an esthetic, I was about to say spiritual, intellectualism. I found also that without losing the faith of his own religion or the subtlery of his Oriental mentality, he has the best of the Occidental thought.

I wished to talk about politics, about the English in Egypt, the feeling of the Egyptian people, and the future of the country, but, while the Sultan did not avoid these subjects, and spoke quite frankly about them, the subject uppermost in his mind that day was the education and elevation of Egyptian women.

It was not difficult to see why his mind turned in that direction. He knew all about the feminist movement and after his long residence in France could not help comparing the condition of the women of Egypt with that of the women in France. And knowing all the difficulties he will encounter, he has set his mind on freeing the women of the East from the degradation of the centuries. A big job, one so big he took time to talk about it at a time when the Suez Canal, a few score miles away was being rapidly fortified against an expected Turkish-German attack, which might upset the history of the world.

"We have had too little understanding," said his highness, "of the all-important part women play in the betterment of the world. The mother in the first years of a child's life builds his character and sets his footsteps in the way he is to go. If she is to guide him right she must have a chance to be educated and develop her own character."

In the mouth of Theodore Roosevelt these words would be banal, but spoken by an Oriental potentate they are revolutionary.

Ignorance Nation's Great Foe.

"Here in the East," he went on, "we have problems of power and politics that absorb us, but they are of passing moment compared to a problem like this. If we can but do away with ignorance, if we can elevate our women, the problems of power and politics will solve themselves. For the strength of a nation rests on the character of its people."

He paused, and I followed the direction of his glance out upon Addine Square filled with people rushing this way and that in the inconsequential Oriental way. Across it, threading in and out of the narrow streets, were dozens of flat-topped donkey carts bearing squatting women, mere black-garbed lumps, with black yashmaks showing only their eyes, women carted about in droves and regarded by their men as little above animals.

It occurred to me that I had heard the Sultan had a very different attitude toward women, and that he had but one wife. Looking back at him I could see he was affected by his own thoughts, and his emotion showed in the quickening of his breath and the moisture in his eyes. This was something entirely out of my expectations of an Oriental potentate, and I realized he had chosen the topic of women, not because he wished to avoid poltics, but because it was uppermost in his mind.

So I told him something about the woman's movement in the United States, emphasizing the aspiration rather than the cause. He was at once all sympathy, so, to see how it affected him, I told him about the suffrage parades in New York.

"Magnificent," said this Oriental potentate.

When I asked him direct political questions he answered me freely. I asked him why he favored the exercise of British power in Egypt.

"Because the British have two essential qualities for a situation of this kind," replied His Highness. "They are strong and immovable in the general policy they have decided upon, but liberal and openminded in the application of that policy."

Doubts Islam's Future Power.

"And the future of Egypt," I suggested.

"Now you are asking a political question to which it is impossible to give an answer," he replied. "The present is sufficiently engrossing."

"But what part will England play?" I pressed.

"The British Government," replied his Highness, diplomatically, "will direct our steps, I feel sure, toward peace, happiness and prosperity."

"What do you think of Egypt becoming the great Islamic Power?"

"It is possible. Egypt is the center of the Islamic people. Certainly the Islamic Powers must get some common basis of understanding and try to attain to a common ideal. All the Islamic people must come to a realization that their strength is in union, and we must put an end to wars among themselves. As it is we are torn to pieces by wars. Islam has long been divided against itself by the growth of fanaticism. We have much to do yet before we talk about temporal power. We had much better devote ourselves first to the cultivation of our beautiful religion."

"Do you look, then, your Highness,

Recommends Ideal Remedy for Nursing Mothers

Compound of Simple Laxative Herbs Safe for Baby and Mother.

Constipation is a condition that affects the old, young and middle-aged, and most people at one time or another need help in regulating the action of the bowels. Harsh cathartics and purgatives should not be employed to relieve constipation, as their effect is only temporary while they shock the system unnecessarily.

A remedy that can be used with perfect safety for the tiniest babe and that is equally effective for the strongest constitution is found in the combination of simple laxative herbs known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and sold in drug stores everywhere for fifty cents a bottle. This is an ideal household remedy and should be in every family medicine chest.

Mrs. F. I. Barsolow, 18 Leslie Ct., Holyoke, Mass., wrote to Dr. Caldwell, "Syrup Pepsin certainly is fine.

"I gave it to my baby, Evelyn, and also took it myself. It is the only medicine I have been able to take without affecting Baby in the nursing. I have used it for all four children and it is fine; they like it and ask for it."

EVELYN BARSOLOW

A trial bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can be obtained, free of charge, by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST EVERY MORNING

Hopes every man and woman here will adopt this splendid health habit.

Says a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it washes poisons from system, and makes one feel clean, sweet and fresh.

Why is man and woman, half the time, feeling nervous, despondent, worried; some days headachy, dull and unstrung; some days really incapacitated by illness.

If we all would practice the drinking of phosphated hot water before breakfast, what a gratifying change would take place. Instead of thousands of half-sick, anaemic-looking souls with pasty, muddy complexions we should see crowds of happy, healthy, rosy-cheeked people everywhere. The reason is that the human system does not rid itself each day of all the waste it accumulates under our present mode of living. For every ounce of food and drink taken into the system nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out, else it ferments and forms ptomaine-like poisons in the bowels which are absorbed into the blood.

Just as necessary as it is to clean the ashes from the furnace each day, before the fire will burn bright and hot, so we must each morning clear the inside organs of the previous day's accumulation of indigestible waste and body toxins. Men and women, whether sick or well, are advised to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of washing out of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the indigestible material, waste, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Millions of people who had their turn at constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, sick headaches, rheumatism, lumbago, nervous days and sleepless nights have become real cranks about the morning-inside bath. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will not cost much at the drug store, but is sufficient to demonstrate to anyone its cleansing sweetening and freshening effect upon the system.

REED TO HURRY HOME TO REPAIR DAMAGED FENCES

Result of Failure of Alliance to Make Rumsey National Committeeman.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 25.—Information reached here today from Washington that United States Senator James A. Reed will make a hurried trip to Missouri next week to repair his political fences, which suffered much damage at the Democratic State convention in St. Joseph Wednesday, when the Reed-Stone-Major alliance met defeat in its effort to elect Excise Commissioner Horace S. Rumsey of St. Louis National Committeeman in place of Edward F. Goltra.

The ostensible purpose of the Senator's visit is to make speeches for Henry Jost, Democratic candidate for Mayor of Kansas City.

The Senator's interest in the Jost candidacy, however, is not considered by politicians to be the only purpose of the visit. The Senator was not a Jost supporter in the primary. Jost was supported by Joe Shannon, and was fought by Tom Pendergast. Reed and Pendergast for many years have been together in politics.

Although Pendergast failed to defeat Jost in the primary, he was able to elect a full delegation of Pendergast men to the State convention. It was after the primary that the alliance of the Missouri Senators and Gov. Major, who had supported Jost, was brought about.

Didn't Want Opposition.

The Governor had talked about being a candidate for Senator against Reed. Reed didn't want opposition, and was supposed to control the Pendergast following in Kansas City. Senator Reed had no objection to Major being a candidate for Vice President, and, when the Governor decided to make Rumsey national committeeman, the Reed influence with Pendergast was used to throw that delegation to Rumsey.

The Senator is reported to have been much surprised to discover that the combined influences of himself, Senator Stone and Gov. Major could not control the convention for Rumsey, and to be greatly perturbed by reports that the Rev. Dr. J. T. M. Johnson, Charles M. Hay or possibly Joseph W. Folk is to become a candidate for Senator against him.

Reed was to have attended the State convention, and even had engaged a room at the Robidoux Hotel. Two days before the convention he cancelled his reservation and announced that important matters of legislation made it necessary for him to remain in Washington.

By this action the Senator escaped direct personal participation in the convention. He sent a telegram which was read and in which he denied having entered into any deal.

The Pendergast delegation with 129 votes was delivered against Goltra, but Pendergast denied he had made a deal with Gov. Major for the delegation.

Old Opposition Revived.

Senator Reed's opposition to many of the policies of President Wilson early in the Wilson administration caused his supporters much concern, but his regularity with the administration for the past year was thought to have overcome an opposition which had developed because of his attitude toward the President.

This old opposition revived, however, when the alliance with Gov. Major became known throughout the State, and the Senator's supporters now fear the entry of a candidate against Reed with much more strength than Gov. Major would have been able to muster.

These are matters which will occupy much of the Senator's time when he reaches Missouri.

Sultan of Egypt Tells of Plan to Free Women

for a great Islamic empire of the future?"

"I doubt that we can again have a temporal power comparable in strength with that of the Occidental nations. Empire moved westward hundreds of years ago, and there is no turning back the pages of history. Rather than look for temporal power we must seek to take the greatest advantage of our religion and build the character of the people. Character, that is what counts. Without it how long does temporal power last? And with character a nation may conquer the earth without touching the sword.

"We have in the East two powerful characteristics whoch make us stronger than Europeans realize. We have a deep sense of the fraternity of mankind and we are democratic. It may sound strange to you, but I must be a democratic ruler to do the best by my people. I must know the problems and be able to suffer the sorrows of the least of them, and that, too, my religion teaches me.

"To know us, to realize our lives and hopes, you must first fathom the essential democracy of Islam. I grant you that Islam is not always at its best. Neither is any other religion. It suffers from contact with humanity and its passions. Men become bloodthirsty and fanatical in the name of Islam. They only express their own brutality and shame Islam with their fanaticism. For the ideal of Islam is humanitarianism. It expresses the brotherhood of man, and the fanatics who murder in its name have not its spirit."

He spoke with such vigor there was no mistaking to what he referred—the massacre of the Armenians by the Turks. You must remember, to appreciate the force of his vehemence, that he is himself the son of a Turkish Khedive, Ismael Pacha.

Again he was emotionally affected by the thoughts, and in that moment I had a picture of him that I carried away with me.

Sitting in a corner of his private audience chamber, the light striking on his intellectual features, he straightened his body in the excess of his emotions, and, placing his left hand on his heart, he pointed upward with the index finger of his right hand, as he concluded.

"We must not let ourselves be carried away by the things of the day. We are not masters of our own destiny. Our fate does not rest in our own hands. I did not know how deeply I felt this until a bomb was thrown at my carriage in Alexandria. It left me undisturbed. It did not kill me, so I was left to go on doing the best I can for my country. I have many problems, more than you can realize, but I am full of confidence in my own people, and I intend to consecrate my efforts toward their greater prosperity and happiness."

I went away impressed by his sincerity. However he had come by his power, he was no figurehead, Sir Henry MacMahon's remark occurred to me then. The verb was well chosen. He is a man you could not help liking.

This interview has a postscript. It was a point of courtesy to send to the Sultan a copy of the remarks I had quoted. It resulted in an invitation to luncheon at the palace, and, though I was in Alexandria by this time, I returned to Cairo for the purpose.

There was no one else there but the members of his staff. The table was excellent, but everyone, including the Sultan, ate sparingly. A glass of sherry was poured for me and I drank it before I realized that I was the only one at table with wine glasses before me. So I refused in turn the hock, chablis, burgundy, champagne and liquors that were offered me. I presumed the abstention was due to the fact that it was a Friday, the Mohammedan Sunday, but I have learned since that His Highness has placed the whole palace on a teetotal basis, respecting, of course, the tastes of foreign visitors. He has done this not as part of the temperance movement in Europe, but for a far older reason. He was simply following the ancient commands of Islam.

Cut This Out

Old English Recipe for Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires a constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear, which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease is driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is equally as dangerous. The following formula, which is used extensively in the damp English climate, is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climate conditions.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the eustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint is used in this way as it acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a slight tonic action that facilitates the recovery of the patient. The preparation is easy to make, costs little and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh should give this treatment a trial.—ADV.

The New Case 40—$1090

Tomorrow's Car Today

Now comes the new Case 40. Born and bred in the midst of Case ideals, it looms forth as a car that is bound to carry the Case standard even higher and higher.

This new car is far advanced in its lines and curves—still it does not plunge into eccentricities. It is designed for the substantial sort of man—for the one who is not swayed by passing innovations—for the man who wants a genuine car.

For 74 years Case executives and workmen have been building according to the Case standards—never leaving that straightaway path called Quality, which has brought such world-wide reputation. Case cars are entirely built by Case-trained workmen in the Case plants.

The new Case 40, at its price of $1090, is an unusual opportunity.

With its 120-inch wheelbase, new method of cantilever spring suspension, both to the frame and rear axle, its three piece steel body, removable upholstery and numerous other features, you can not find its equal in any other car at this price.

May we show you in detail this Tomorrow's Car Today? Your time so spent will bring you good results.

One great automobile expert says, "The Case 40 motor makes extra cylinders unnecessary."

Superfluous Hair Must Be Devitalized

Unlike pastes and rub-on preparations, this wonderful liquid attacks hair under the skin as well as on the skin. It does its work quickly, then evaporates. Results from its use are immediate and lasting: Buy a bottle of the genuine De Miracle today and you will get the original liquid hair remover, which alone has the power to devitalize hair. Well groomed women always use De Miracle for removing hair from the limbs to prevent it from showing through stockings. Also for removing hair from under arms.

Refuse imitations or substitutes. De Miracle never disappoints. TOILETTES says: it "has proved itself superior to electricity, X-ray or anything else." Genuine magazines of the highest character endorse only De Miracle. Beware of so-called endorsements of bogus magazines which are used to exploit the sale of questionable depilatories. Be sure to buy De Miracle by name and you will get the only depilatory that has a binding guarantee in each package which entitles you to your money if it fails. In 50c, $1.00 and $2.00 bottles. If your dealer will not supply you buy a bottle at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., or direct, postpaid in plain wrapper. De Miracle Chemical Co., Dept. P-2, Park Av. and 129th St., New York.—ADV.

1,567,311 RAW FURS SOLD HERE FOR $2,000,000

Largest Auction of Kind Ever Held in America—Exceeds Totals of Sale in London.

The five days' auction of raw furs by Funsten Bros. & Co., at the Funsten Fur Exchange, 115 South Second street, which closed late Friday, brought more than $2,000,000 for 1,567,311 skins, acording to a recapitulation of the business made yesterday by Albert M. Ahern, vice president of the Funsten company. This, Ahern said, was the largest auction sale of furs ever held in America, and exceeds in number and value of skins the sale now in progress in London, where heretofore the largest fur sales in the world have been held.

The selling of these furs, collected into 3334 lots, consumed 50 hours of actual selling time, or an average of 10 hours a day. P. B. Fouke, president of the Funsten company, who has acted as auctioneer for all previous sales of his company, was relieved at intervals during this sale by Ahern.

Ahern said this sale was especially satisfactory because the prices were higher than in the January auction. Advances were from 25 to 100 per cent, he said, and in no instance was there a decline. There were present 400 buyers, representing the largest fur houses of New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Seattle and San Francisco. Paris and Leipzig firms also had representatives here.

The highest price for a single skin was $1500 for an especially fine black silver fox. One polar bear skin sold for $100 and that of a glacier bear for $60. The largest number of furs of one kind was 1,000,300 muskrat skins, which sold for more than $250,000. It required an entire day to auction them.

At the close of the sale Friday about 700 skins were donated to be sold to the highest bidders for the benefit of the war sufferers. Bidding went for beyond the actual value of the furs and a total of $3602.50 was realized.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS' PLANS FOR PEACE REACH AMERICA

Calls for Arbitration, Limitation of Armament and Opposes Loss of Alsace-Lorraine.

NEW YORK, March 25.—An outline of the peace program of the German Social Democratic party has been received here in a letter from Herman Mueller, its secretary, which says German Socialists discussed the subject of peace with representatives of the Socialist parties of Austria-Hungary at Vienna April 12 and 13 in 1915, the decision of the conference being that future durable peace must be based on the following guarantees:

"The institution of a compulsory international court of arbitration for the purpose of adjusting all disputes among nations.

"The submission of all international treaties and compacts to the democratic control of popular representation.

"An international treaty of limitation of armament with a view to eventual general disarmament and the recognition of the right of all nations to self determination."

It also was declared that "the assurance of the political independence and security of the German empire requires the rejection of all programs of conquest of its opponents directed against territorial integrity. This applies also to the demand for the reannexation of Alsace-Lorraine to France no matter in what form such reannexation is sought to be brought out."

WIFE IS TO BE TRIED WITH BROCK IN INSURANCE FRAUD

Accused of False Pretenses in Connection With Disappearance of Husband, Found Later.

STEELVILLE, Mo., March 25.—Mrs. John Alvin Brock, who collected $10,000 insurance on her husband's life after he was supposed to have been burned to death in his barn near Cuba, Mo., but later was discovered alive in Oklahoma and returned in February and made restitution, has been arrested and will have to stand trial, with her husband, on the charge of obtaining money under false pretenses.

She was arrested on the farm near Cuba where the family has continued living since Brock returned. She gave bond and returned to the farm. The preliminary hearing of Brock and his wife is set for next Saturday.

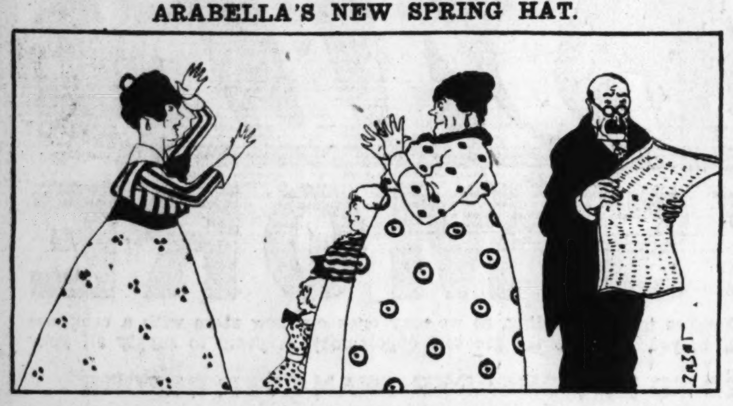
ARABELLA'S NEW SPRING HAT.



MISS ARABELLA SIMPKINS BROWN when sunny is the weather
Will startle all the folks in town with gorgeous hat and feather.
She knows that not on earth or sea there'll be a lid so nifty,
It fell right off the bargain tree and only cost eight-fifty.
As near as we can make it out from her enwrapt description
All other girls will throw, no doubt, the fit that's called conniption
When Arabella puts it on and saunters forth to show it;
'Twill add new hues to rosy dawn, she's told us, and we know it.
Perhaps 'twill have a touch of green, perhaps a dash of yellow,
With ruddy carrots in between two cherries ripe and mellow,
Or like as not a gay rosette of crimson or vermillion,
That never gardener could get if he would spend a billion.
It's only ornament perchance may be a jaunty feather
On which the colors gaily dance in keeping with the weather.
Of course, you know, we haven't seen this wonderful creation
Which when the grass is growing green will cause a big sensation.
We only know what we have heard, and seeing is believing,
And yet we've never found her word untruthful or deceiving,
So confidently we believe that when we gaze upon it
Our homage full it will receive, for it will be SOME BONNET.

HOW TO RAISE POULTRY.

BUY 200 feet of chicken wire from your hardware dealer. Later you will find you have not got enough. Then buy 50 feet more.

String your chicken fence with the posts six feet apart. On the first trial you will not dig the post holes deep enough and the weight of the wire will cause the fence to fall down. Dig the holes deeper next time and put the posts three feet apart.

You will now have a good fence except that it won't keep chickens in. To remedy this you must put baseboards around the bottom. This should have been done before setting the posts. Take up the posts and do it right.

Having built the fence to your satisfaction you should next steal your wife's clothes props when she isn't looking and make roosts of them in the shed.

Carefully whitewash the shed, inside and out and spray with a mixture of rose water and tobacco juice. Sprinkle the floor of the shed with choice chicken feed and leave the door open.

Plant radishes, lettuce and spring onions in your fenced enclosure. When your neighbors' chickens come over to eat the chicken feed in your shed, shut the door and keep them in. This is the best way to raise poultry.

METAPHORICALLY SPEAKING.

THE ship of state with clarion call stands tiptoe on the cliff;
The hand of Fortune hears the cry
And Envy's frozen stiff.

The smoke of battle thunders loud,
The watchfire strikes the hour,
And on my visage bold I feel
A coronet of power.

Now grim Oppression's iron heel
May laugh the world to shame;
While on the ebbing shore I find
Vice presidential fame.

E. W. MAJOR.

KUM KWICK BUD.

YUAN SHIH KAI, that President Man,
Get him in good as fast as can
With living Buddha, Kutuktu
Who's very fine one to be stuck to.

All Mongolia now say: "Joy!
Yuan Shih Kai is candy boy,"
He send chop suey to Kutuktu
And peacock feather from Timbuctoo.

Living Buddha cry: "O, fine,"
And send our President man a line:
All nice wishes from Kutuktu,
Plenty long life and good luck, too.

A LOOK AROUND

By CLARK McADAMS

SOMEHOW there has emanated from allied Europe of late great optimism as to the war. One easily gathers from what is published that the Germans are not winning at Verdun, that the French are able to hold their own, and that in the judgment of all big wigs on the allied side the end of the war in their favor is not far off. Almost all friends of the allies in this country have been quick to catch this cheerful note, and it was therefore a great shock to a considerable circle the other night when we heard the opinion of a former officer in one of the allied armies. This gentleman, an Italian, has not been in Europe since the war began, but he has talked with European military men who have come over, and his conclusions are therefore valuable for having somewhat the advantage of our own. He does not think the Germans are losing the battle at Verdun, but believes on the contrary that they are slowly but surely winning that fight. Hill by hill they are picking up the heights which constitute that great French stronghold. It is in his opinion merely a mathematical process — progressing step by step to what he fears is a certain exhaustion of the French defense. That the Germans are losing more men than the French he does not believe.' That they are done, or anything like done, with that great drive, he utterly scouts. He says there is nothing in the theory so prevalent in this country that the German army is to be worn down by attrition. Upon the contrary, it is the allies who are in the greater danger of that. The flower of the Russian army has been destroyed. The French are fighting with even their old men and boys. The British have lost their trained men in such numbers that their line may be said to be chiefly held by new troops. He admits that the new armies of all the allies improve every day, but he stoutly insists that they are not man for man the equals of the German recruits who have been soldiers from boyhood. This great fallacy as to the effect of time on the opposing armies prevails in our country, he says, because we do not know how soldiers are made.

OF course, this was not at all like we thought it was, and we all sat around looking as if we could not wait to tell it to the marines. However, the officer resumed with his drive. We are deceiving ourselves about Italy. Italy is fighting only her own war. She is seizing upon what she believes to be an opportunity to drive the Austrians out of Italian territory. She has no grievance against Germany. She will never declare war upon the Kaiser's country. If we will examine our consular reports, we shall find that the Italians are still maintaining that same open highway into Germany through their own country and Switzerland that was there before Italy declared war upon Austria. The allies don't dare to stop it. If Italy attacked France, goodnight! Italy will not send a man to reinforce the French line. She is only an aid to the allies because she is holding the cream of the Austrian troops on her northern border at a time when they could be used to great advantage against the allies somewhere else. England? The navy—yes. The army? (One should see this continental shrug. That shrug is eloquent of what he thinks England is going to do with her army on that line in Flanders.) Of the total length of that line—more than 500 miles—the British at last reports were holding thirty-one. Does anybody think she is going to take over 200 miles, or 250 miles, or share half and half with France the brunt of that fighting? It is to laugh. That is, this gentleman says it is. None of us did laugh, but he laughed for us — long — knowingly—bitterly. Most of us could have wept. Not that we are so unneutral, but that we all love France above all others in that great fight. Our skilled tormentor had us there. He gave it to us. We hated England. Did we ever know England to fight another country's battles? Of course, in out state of mind by that time we could not think of any history at all. Probably she never had. We tried not to be swept off our feet by the former army officer's argument, but does anybody believe England is going to halve that burden with France?

NOW, about Russia. We closed the circle a little breathlessly. Certainly we could not be of two minds about Russia. The former army officer smiled even more knowingly than ever. We think the Russians are coming back because they have arms and munitions and men without end. It is not so. The Russians will never come back. Why? Because the only men she had who approximated to any degree the severe European standard which Germany has set for soldiers are either captured or dead. The rest are mere cannon food. They are even worse than the new British troops. One must know that a German soldier is worth twenty such men. The one is made a soldier in a year or a day. The other was born a soldier. Could we only see Von Hindenburg's smile when the Russians start back! It is the smile of —ah—la—the smile of the cat that got the canary.

Gads, what a blow! We had just heart and strength enough left to ask him if he would not sum up. Gladly. The allies are not winning the war. They are not going to win it. The best they can possibly hope for is a draw. How they are to get that draw he cannot quite see. Certainly the French cannot do more than they are doing—cannot even again do what they are doing. Will England starve Germany into submission? Not in a hundred years. Germany has always produced 80 per cent of the food she consumes. Is a 20 per cent saving a serious thing?

So, then, in this gentleman's opinion at least, there is no reason for believing that the allies are about to win the war. It is such stuff as dreams are made of—the pretty illusions with which the allies oppose the military science of the Germans —an enduring and terrible thing, the fear of which caused the war, and the power of which has never been broken.

What should one think of it all? I don't know. I only know we got home mighty quick.

WHAT'S YOUR NAME?
I'M UMPY UMP, THE UMPIRE'S ONLY CHILD.
CRACKING HIS WHIP RUDOLPH URGES THE OX TEAM FORWARD NEVER TOO LATE..
AS THEY STEP OFF THE STREET CAR AT THE BALL PARK THE CROWD IS COMING OUT.
PSHAW, RUDOLPH, THE GAME IS OVER.
RUDOLPH CRANKS UP THE MOTOR TRUCK.
LET'S GO AND GET MARRIED.
SO THEY JUMP ON THEIR BICYCLES AND START FOR THE JUSTICE'S OFFICE...
RUDY DIDN'T OVERLOOK A BET. DID HE?
YES. HE RODE EVERYTHING BUT A GOAT
RUDOLPH LOOKS LIKE CHARLY CHAPLIN'S BROTHER SID IS THERE A HORSE DOCTOR IN THE HOUSE?
THE ONLY SCENE I LIKED WAS THAT MOVING VAN PICTURE
WONDER WHO WON THE GAME?
DON'T BLAME ME. I DIDN'T KNOW WHAT A PUNK SHOW IT WAS THAT HAND CAR FILM WAS CUTE

COW EARNS $1000 IN 2 YEARS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 25.—"Tillie Alcartra," a Holstein Fresien cow owned at Woodland, Cal., already holder of the one year world's record for milk production, has completed a test which gave her the world's record for two years' production.

The cow produced as high as 50 quarts a day of commercial milk. Her world's record for one year is 30,451.4 pounds. The earning power of this cow during the year was approximately $1000, estimating the milk at 8 cents a quart and subtracting the cost of her feed.

MOTHER! LOOK AT YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE

Give "California Syrup of Figs" If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Constipated---They love it

Watch Children! Guard Against Colds, Grippe, Sore Throat and Sickness by Keeping Liver and Bowels Free from Poisons

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to consider their own health, consequently their bowels become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has the grippe or a sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. See that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't merely ask for Syrup of Figs, but ask for "California Syrup of Figs." Remember, "California."—ADV.

PROCEEDINGS TO HAVE E. V. SELLECK DISBARRED BEGUN

Lawyer Charged With Retaining Funds Belonging to Clients and Other Unprofessional Conduct.

SEVEN ALLEGATIONS MADE

He Gets Notice of Bar Association's Action When Arguing a Case in Court.

Seven charges of unprofessional conduct were made in a petition filed in the Circuit Court yesterday by attorneys representing the Executive Committee of the St. Louis Bar Association, asking that Ellroy V. Selleck, an attorney whose professional and domestic affairs have been much in the courts recently, be disbarred.

The allegations include charges that Selleck retained funds belonging to clients, that he solicited business against clients, that he represented both sides in litigation and that he took personal advantage of the trust and confidence reposed in him by a woman client.

The first charge is that he was convicted Feb. 24 and sentenced to imprisonment in the State Penitentiary for two years for obtaining signatures to a deed of trust, in an attempt to defraud two clients.

Other Charges Made.

Another allegation is that he retained $685.45 of the funds of the estate of the late John Link, for which he was attorney, claiming it as a fee.

A third charge is that on Oct. 23, 1913, he settled a suit brought by him for Ethyl Jaco against the United Railways, and retained the $175 received in the settlement, falsely representing to his client that there had been no settlement, and improperly retained the money until Nov. 10, 1915.

The fourth charge is that when attorney for the Link estate in the Probate Court he also represented persons having claims against the estate and collected fees from both sides. Another charge is that Selleck wrongfully entered his appearance as attorney for the defense in a suit against Rudolph Linke and others in a justice court when the defendants had other counsel.

The sixth allegation is that he filed a suit against L. E. Schuck, a client, for Louise S. Hills, who was injured by Schuck's automobile when Selleck was riding in it. The petition charges that he obtained employment from the woman when she was in a semi-conscious condition.

The Final Allegation.

The last allegation is that Selleck took advantage of the confidence and trust imposed in him by Mattie Stolze, also known as Bessie Blake, who was to receive $10,000 from the estate of the late August F. Blesse. It is charged that Selleck wrongfully retained the $10,000.

The suit was filed for the Bar Association by Attorneys John F. Green and Benjamin A. Wood. The members of the executive committee of the Bar Association, which filed the action, are Charles P. Williams, Frank B. Coleman, Breckinridge Long, Richard A. Jones and Alroy S. Philips.

The disbarment proceedings were sent to Judge Taylor's court to be assigned. Selleck was arguing a motion there asking that a client be permitted to prosecute an alienation suit as a poor person instead of securing costs. Judge Taylor interrupted Selleck and notified him of the case. After looking at the petition Selleck proceeded with his argument, saying he would answer the disbarment charges when he had time. The case was assigned to Judge Shields' division.

BOXES FOR WOMAN'S COUNCIL PAGEANT IN MAY ALL SOLD

Large Receipts Assured Even Before Cast Is Assigned or Rehearsals Called.

Activity on the part of the audience is exceeding activity on the part of the producers of the Woman's Council Pageant, according to reports. The pageant is to be given three performances at the Odeon, May 5 and 6.

The various roles in the cast have not been assigned, and no meeting of performers has been called. Yet all the boxes for each performance have been sold or spoken for. The Council now numbers 9700 members. The receipts are to be used for a clubhouse.

Chairmen of Committees of Arrangement were appointed at the most recent meeting of those interested in the production, and were as follows: Finances—Mrs. William H. Allen; Production—Mrs. Grace de Lauzainzhein, with Mrs. Jamison vice chairman; Cast—Mrs. L. M. Ottofy; Dances—Mrs. Louis Aloe; Music—Mrs. John H. Moss; Costumes—Mrs. Henry Niedringhaus and Mrs. E. A. Reton; Stage Management—Mrs. W. H. Sinclair; Properties—Mrs. Louis Dragon; Program—Mrs. H. M. Whelpley; Publicity—Mrs. Walter A. Mitchell; Door—Mrs. Marion E. Begg.

The Misses Jamison are the authors of the Pageant, the theme of which is the progress of woman and her achievements from the dawn of history. Joseph A. Solari has been engaged as Pageant manager.

PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION FINDS WINTER EMPLOYMENT FOR 350

Free Employment Bureau Under Direction of Mrs. A. F. Anderson Makes Report of Work.

Employment for 350 needy men, women and children has been found since last November by the Provident Association Free Employment Bureau under the management of Mrs. A. F. Anderson.

One case was that of a middle-aged man who applied for work under an assumed name. His delicate hands, his bearing and his education were evidence that he had not been accustomed to manual labor. He took a place tending furnace and acting as houseman for a wealthy family, for which he was to get $2.50 a week. Shortly afterward visitors to the house recognized him, when he opened the door for them, as a man they had known in good circumstances in another state. It was learned that a domestic affair had forced him to leave a good position for the sake of his wife. A place at a good salary was found for him.

THIS WEEK'S BILLS IN ST. LOUIS PLAYHOUSES

"A Pair of Silk Stockings," Shubert. English society comedy, with Sam Sothern in leading part.

"Girl of My Dreams," Park, tomorrow night. Musical comedy by Park Opera Co. "Along Came Ruth," by Players, twice today.

"Along Came Ruth," Shenandoah, tomorrow night. "Chinese Honeymoon," twice today.

Vaudeville, Columbia. Ralph Herz, comedian, and "The River of Souls," Chinese play, on bill tomorrow.

Vaudeville, Grand. Playlet, "Which Shall I Marry?" heads bill tomorrow.

Melodrama, Hippodrome. "At Piney Ridge."

Burlesque, Standard. "Mischief Makers."

Burlesque, Gayety. Billy Watson and Ed Lee Wrothe.

PHOTOPLAYS.

"The Birth of a Nation," Olympic. Last week of famous film.

American, "Hoodoo Ann," "The Raiders," and two comedy films.

King's, "Martha's Vindication" and three other films.

New Grand Central. Marie Walcamp in "The Flirt."

SAM SOTHERN, IN HOSIERY COMEDY, HERE THIS WEEK

"A Pair of Silk Stockings," at Shubert, Features Bedroom Scene.

The hosiery (not Hoosiery) comedy, "A Pair of Silk Stockings," which has kept the Chicago loophounds chuckling in its recent prolonged stay at the Princess Theater in that city, will come to the Shubert tonight. Sam Sothern, younger brother of E. H., has the principal role, and the cast is that which appeared in Chicago and, last season, in New York.

Cyril Harcourt is the author of this English society play, which has its chief scene in a divorcee's bedroom. "So light is the touch and so deft the wit," the genial advance agent announces, "that it is extremely humorous without being in the least offensive." Maybe so.

This is the last week of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Olympic. According to the management's figures, a very large majority of the inhabitants of St. Louis, of show-going age, has seen this film since it was first displayed at the Olympic last August. Its total run here will have been 17 weeks, with two performances a day.

Julian Eltinge's "Cousin Lucy" is scheduled for next Sunday night at the Olympic. On the same night "Some Baby," a three-act farce, will be played at the Shubert by a company headed by Jefferson DeAngelis.

"The Girl of My Dreams," a musical comedy, is the Park Theater's bill for tomorrow night. Frank Moulan, Mabel Wilber and Arthur Burckly will have the principal roles, Miss Wilber having the role of the demure Quaker maid, and Moulan appearing as a titled eccentric. "Along came Ruth," with Mary Boland, will be played by the Park Players at the Shenandoah this week.

Tomorrow night's performance at the Park will be a benefit for Central (Women's) College, at Lexington, Mo., arranged for by local alumnae of the school, who are aiding in the raising of an endowment fund. Mrs. Sam H. Barnett of 5899 Cates avenue and Miss Josephine Price of 5928 Maple avenue are in charge of the ticket sale.

Two features on this week's bill at the Columbia will be the appearance of Ralph Herz, a successful comedian, who has appeared both in musical comedy and in "straight" comedy, most recently in the title role of "Ruggles of Red Gap," and the presentation of a Chinese drama, "The River of Souls," described as "a thumbnail incident of the Orient." The play was written by John R. Golden for the Lambs' Club Gambol in New York, and because of its success, was put into "vode."

Tomorrow night's performance of "The Mischief Makers," at the Standard Theater, will be Manager Reichenbach's annual benefit, and an amateur contest is announced as one of the added attractions.

Prize-Winning Plays in Park Theater Contest Being Chosen.

An announcement will probably be made late in April of the award of the two prizes offered in the Park Theater play contest. The prizes are $100 and $50, and the prize plays are to be produced at the Park and Shenandoah Theaters. The contest has closed and the judges are at work.

More than 100 manuscripts have been entered, some of the contestants living in places a considerable distance from St. Louis, as the contest was not restricted to this city. The judges are Dr. Otto Heller, president of the local branch of the Drama League; Melville Burke, secretary of the league; William Marion Reedy, James Hagerman Jr. and the director of the Park Players. The plays submitted ranged from farces to problem plays and heavy tragedies.

TWO CLUBS IN A CONCERT

Morning Choral and Apollo Program on May 1.

The Morning Choral Club and the Apollo Club announce a combination concert at the Odeon on the evening of May 1, with Paul Althaus, a notable tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, as soloist. He is an American by birth and training, his teacher having been the celebrated Oscar Saenger of New York.

The two choral clubs will sing separate numbers, and unite in a rendition of Goring Thomas' cantata, "The Swan and the Skylark." The soloists for the cantata will be chosen from the membership of the two organizations. Charles Galloway will conduct the concert, and members of the Symphony Orchestra will assist.

All Merchandise Purchased During the Remainder of This Month Will Be Charged on Your April Bill and Account Rendered May 1st.

Every Woman Will Start Her Final Preparations Tomorrow for the Complete "Dress-up" for Spring—Let Vandervoort's Supply You

Spring is here! Spring styles are fixed, and our various Women's Wear Stocks are largest and most complete right now.

These are the days when the stylish woman most enjoys wearing new apparel. New styles are always most effective at the time when they are NEW — when they give individuality and prestige to their wearers. To lose the enjoyment of their possession during these early Spring days means, also, that you will lose a large part of the service that these garments should give.

All of Saint Louis will soon be appareled, as correct "Dress-Up" requires, and any woman who delays securing the newest styles will pay a high price in her loss of self-esteem in being behind her friends and neighbors in wearing Spring's newest fashions.

You will find it particularly gratifying to choose now — at Vandervoort's — while all of the styles are new, while our lines are complete, and while the best of everything is here for choice. Note the style-suggestions on this page.

Alluring New Millinery for Spring Will Be Ready Monday

Millinery was never more alluring than now, and never have we offered a better selected stock. Among the new things shown for Spring are:

Mushroom and Poke Hats

Hats in the smart mushroom shapes and the quaint small-poke effects. These are of Milan, Milan-hemp, Horsehair and Lisere straws, and are trimmed with high ribbon bows, flowers and novelty wings.

The wide-brim Sailors of beautiful, shiny lisere straw, have very effective flat trimmings of fancy shaped Goura and Paradise, or tight clusters of flowers. These hats are admirably suited for afternoon wear with silk suits.

Prices $15 to $35

Our Inexpensive Dress Shop Is Proving a Great Favorite

There is a tremendous amount of interest being shown in the wonderful display in our Inexpensive Dress Shop, because we are showing an exceptionally wide range of styles for choice and the values are out of the ordinary.

Spring Dresses at $14.75, $16.75 and $19.75

We have new Spring Dresses of taffeta, meteor, crepe de chine, Georgette, silk faille, foulards and other wanted materials, as well as novelties in plaids, checks and stripes, in all the wanted color-combinations.

These have the full Breton gathered skirts and have the popular Bishop sleeves. They are priced at but $14.75, $16.75 and $19.75

A Special Lot of Frocks at $19.75

We shall feature—for Monday—a lot of 50 new Afternoon and Street Frocks, which have just arrived.

They include the always-popular black-and-white striped Summer taffeta, combined with Georgette; also taffeta frocks made on tailored lines, and some dressy models of Georgette in various shades and all-white.

Exceptional values at $19.75

Inspect Our Extremely Varied New Display of Suits for Women

Many new modes find expression in our display of Spring Suits for women, chief amongst which are the bouffant skirt, Leg-o'-mutton sleeves, and the Bishop collar, as well as the very effectively appliqued panel-revers.

We have models suitable for street, afternoon and general wear, of plain, striped and fancy taffeta, silk faille, gros de Londres, wool poplin, serge and fancy checks—in all the shades which have received Dame Fashion's stamp of approval.

At $27.50 to $48.50

At the above prices you may select from a number of distinctive tailored, semi-tailored and dressy Suits, including those with the mannish Norfolk coat, flaring godet coat or fancy blouse effects. The skirts are all made full-flare, with belt and full-gathered back; choice of gabardine, serge, poplin or taffeta.

At $50.00 to $90.00

Among our many ultra-smart Suits are those with the dressy Eton, fancy blouse and flaring-hip, tailored coats.

They have the new sleeves, collars and skirts; trimmings of suede, hand-embroidery or silk.

The materials include taffeta, wool velour, men's-wear serge, fancy checks and plaids.

Spring Coats for Every Purpose

The new Spring Coats for Women express a smartness of character that has rarely been reached in past seasons. They will give a finish to the outfit that will be most gratifying to their fortunate possessors.

There are styles for every occasion in tailored, semi-tailored and the dressy, flaring effects, made in the three-quarter and seven-eighths lengths. These have the new sleeves and some have quaint cape-effect collars.

We have Coats of serge, faille, taffeta, Bolivia cloth and Tussah silk, in plain colors and unusual plaids and checks.

Laces Are Again in High Favor and Our Stock of Them Is at Its Best

As both exclusive and popular fashions favor laces for trimming, the lace vogue is firmly established for the new season. This is but natural, as lace is not only dainty and dressy, but can be cleaned and used again and always gives a softening appearance.

Soft Evening Gowns, stylish Day Frocks and Net Dresses for Summer will all be lace trimmed—the latter with many ruffles, edged with narrow lace.

We have narrow Filet, Venise, Cluny and Val. Laces—the kind needed for edging these many ruffles—at, the yard 5c to 75c

Cotton Nets—72 inches wide—in white, cream and ecru, are priced, the yard 50c to $1.50

Platte Val. and Normandy Lace Flounces are shown in a splendid assortment of patterns. These are 15 to 27 inches wide and are exceptional values at, the yard 50c

Our Display of Spring Curtains Is Particularly Attractive

Our showing of Spring Curtains—both foreign and domestic — embodies more new ideas than any we have ever assembled. These were contracted for before the great advance in prices, and are, therefore, fifteen to twenty-five per cent less than the prices that we would have to ask if they were bought from the wholesaler today.

Linen-thread Arabian Curtains

Our real linen-thread Arabian Curtains are highly recommended, because of their laundering qualities. They are made from fine-quality nets and edged with wide or narrow linen laces. The pair $3.75 to $9.50

Of Striped Net

The new Striped Net Curtains have both wide and narrow stripes and are edged with real Cluny laces. Prices, the pair $4.50 to $6

Scrim Curtains

The "New Towyne" Curtain is made from an excellent quality of scrim with filet lace edge and has hemstitched hem down the front. It has a wide bottom-border formed by additional insertions of filet lace and eyelet bands; a separate vallance joins the two side curtains. The pair $2.50 to $4

Of Scotch Madras

Scotch Madras Curtains are very popular for Spring and Summer, because they require no stretching, but may be washed and ironed and then hung. They come in ecru color with pretty, bright colored flowers scattered throughout. The pair $1.65 and $1.75

Other New Curtains

In addition to the above, we have a seemingly endless variety of Nottingham, Filet, Scrim, Marquisette, Irish Point, Point de Gene, Point Milan, Muslin and Swiss Curtains—at prices which will appeal to all.

GERMAN CROWN PRINCE TO POSE

BERNE, Switzerland, March 25.—Prof. R. Junker, German painter, has just arrived at the headquarters of the German Crown Prince, where he is going to have a series of sittings from the Prince, according to dispatches received here.

Swiss newspapers state that the Professor's visit forms part of a great publicity campaign in favor of the Crown Prince, in progress in Germany. Photographs depicting the Prince performing acts of kindness to French peasant children are now on sale in Berlin.

TELEPHONE RAISE PROTEST

A meeting of representatives of commercial and civic bodies will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the Mid-City Club, 322 North Grand avenue, to plan a protest against the raise of commercial telephone rates by the Bell Telephone Co., effective April 1.

Among those scheduled to speak at the gathering are Alderman Barney L. Schwartz, president Tenth Ward Improvement Association; Arthur Stoehr, Dr. B. W. Clark and John E. Turner, president of West End Business Men's Association.

Says That She Was Saved From Operating Table

Brother and Sister Both Relieved by Simple Remedy Available to Any One.

Mrs. Carrie Heflin

In her gratitude for a remedy that saved her from the possible necessity for an operation, Mrs. Carrie Heflin, of Coats, Kan., writes: "Had it not been for Fruitola and Traxo I might have been on the operating table by now. It relieved me of at least one hundred and fifty gallstones. It surely does work wonders. My brother also had suffered for years and has been greatly benefited by Fruitola and Traxo."

Fruitola is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs and one dose is usually sufficient to give ample evidence of its efficacy. It is a great system cleanser. Following a dose of Fruitola, Traxo should be taken three or four times a day in order to rebuild and restore the system that has been weakened and run down by constant suffering.

Fruitola and Traxo are prepared in the Pinus laboratories at Monticello, Ill., and arrangements have been made to supply them through representative druggists. In St. Louis they can be obtained at Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 6th St. and Washington Av.

BOSTON TERRIERS MOST NUMEROUS FOR DOG SHOW

Airedales and Collies Crowding Them Close for Mississippi Kennel Exhibit.

As in several previous dog shows, Boston Terriers will outnumber any other breed of dogs in the Mississippi Valley Kennel Club bench show, at the First Regiment Armory, 220 South Grand avenue, April 3 to 6. Airedales and Collies are crowding them close and the fox terriers, taking the smooth and wire haired together, are well up.

Hunting dogs, adding all the breeds into which they are divided, comprise the largest representation. Irish and bull terriers are well represented.

Pomeranians will present some of the closest contests of the bench, as a number of Easterners are coming to try to take back the honors which Mrs. T. W. Sessinghaus of 3878 Hickory street wrested from them in New York recently with her dog "Offley Kew Marco" by which he became a champion. He heads her string in the coming show. Some other crack St. Louis "Poms," which also will stand between the outsiders and victory, are Mrs. Gerald O'Reilly's imported "Redhill Medallion's Shadow," Miss Elizabeth Nulsen's "Bogota Dazzler," Mrs. B. A. Leftwich's "Dainty Ebony Princess" and Mrs. J. C. Schwinbeck's "Sammy."

Among the Bostons.

Among the many Bostons entered by local owners is "Woodrow," pet of Mrs. Arthur C. Goessling, and who as a puppy, in the last show held here, carried off first honors. He will go for the big prize in the open class against all comers. "Woodrow" is of the Derby Blue strain of Bostons, which has been a great prize-winning set wherever shown.

The principal outside competition in the Boston class will come from the dogs of the Kill Kare Kennels, Lexington, Mass., the largest Boston kennels in the country, which is sending a string of crack dogs, headed by "Kill Kare Waggles," a noted prize winner; Dr. H. Bond-Snee's dogs, from Indianapolis, led by "Coote Hill Sweetheart;" Ellis and Reynolds' "Missouri Boy," from Vandalia, Mo., winner at the Kansas City show; "Lady Belle," head of the list of Eoff & Wagener of Kansas City. and "The Major," leading the entries of A. T. Kovarik of Chicago and a big winner in the Eastern shows.

Prominent among the local Bostons that will contest with the outsiders and one another are Mrs. C. A. Delporte's "Teddy," Mrs. Herbert Williams' "Derby Blue's Baby Doll," Mrs. Dickson Cook's "Wychmere Tot," Mrs. Phil Hetzel's "Patsy," Mrs. B. E. Rashcoe's "Papa's Girl," Mrs. Julia Garvey's "Davis' Little Man," Mrs. D. J. Neenan's "Chow Me," Miss Florence Teschemacher's "West End Trixie," Mrs. Fred Wischmeyer's "Derby Blue's Dazzler," Mrs. Rose Moloney's "Schilling's Dot," and Mrs. G. O. Lassauer's "Peg-o'-My-Heart."

In the Collie Contests.

In the collie contests there will be a sharp rivalry between Miss May Thomson of 3805 Lindell boulevard, who is bringing her string of rough-coated collies up from her kennels at Arcadia, Mo., and Miss M. E. Bullock of the Imna Kennels, West Simsbury, Conn., whose string is headed by the collie champion, "Knocklyde King." Both will be given a run by Miss May McCurdy of Pinewood Kennels, New Brunswick, N. J., with her famous Seedley collies, headed by the champion, "Seedley Stirling," so far the biggest winner among collies at this year's Eastern shows.

In the airedale class Miss Lily Gardner of Baden, whose dog, Cyrus Xerxes III, won as a puppy at the last show and which she will show again, will have local competition, to say nothing of that from outsiders, as the aires have become very popular in the last few years and present a well-filled class. Among local entrants are Dr. Paul Fletcher, Mrs. Oliver Kluefer, Mrs. Richard Kring, Miss Marie Messmer, Miss Emily Phelips, Dr. E. A. Scott, W. F. Kappel, Harold Wilson and C. A. Albright.

Several Rare Entries.

Liberal entries have come in of all the other of the 63 breeds entered for the show, except German boxers, of which there are few in this country and of which only two are entered for the St. Louis show, "Monday" and "Boxer," entered by Louis Reifeiss, and the Chesapeake Bay dogs, of which rare and purely American breed there is only one, "Brownie," entry of Joseph Pulitzer Jr.

RECITAL BY MISCHA ELMAN

Violinist to Appear at Odeon Thursday Night.

Mischa Elman, violinist, will give a recital Thursday night at the Odeon. His program includes numbers ranging from the early Italian masters to modern composers, some of them arranged by Elman himself. Vivaldi's concerto in G minor, Ernst's concerto in F sharp minor, Scolero's variations on a theme by Mozart, Bach's Arioso, the Wieniawski-Kreisler Caprice, the Michiels-Elman "Nuit de Mai," the Weber-Elman "Country Dance" and Sarasate's "Zizeunerweisen," are the numbers announced. Elman uses a Stradivarius which is said to be of almost incredible value.

GERMAN BOYS TOO YOUNG TO BE IN ARMY SQUANDER WAGES

Earning Big Pay in War Industries, Some Light Cigarettes With Paper Money.

BERLIN, March 25.—Compulsory saving has been introduced on a small scale in at least one district of Germany. This is revealed in an order issued by the military commander of the district of Cassel, famed as the early schooling place of Emperor William.

The order is aimed at the extravagance of young men and boys who are earning high wages in war industries. The order recites that young men in receipt of swollen war earnings have in many cases been leading profligate lives and sometimes neglecting to support dependent relatives. Some boys have been seen lighting their cigarettes with paper money.

As this class of youth has not desisted from its practices after repeated warnings, the commanding General threatens that they will not be allowed further to collect their wages. Instead, their money will be handed over to a trustee, who will withhold such amount as he sees fit for deposit in a savings bank until after the war.

Sachs School Pupils' Recital.

A pupils' recital of intermediate and advanced grades of the Sachs School of Music will be given tomorrow evening at the Toy Theater, 453 North Boyle avenue.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—ADV.

To Wives of Drinking Men

ORRINE is the standard remedy and is everywhere recognized as the successful and reliable home treatment for the "Drink Habit." It is highly praised by thousands of women, because it has restored their loved ones to lives of sobriety and usefulness, and the weekly wages which at one time were spent for "Drink" are now used to purchase the necessaries and many comforts for home. Any wife or mother who wants to save her husband or son from "Drink" will be glad to know that she can purchase ORRINE at our store, and if no benefit is obtained after a trial the money will be refunded. Can be given secretly.

ORRINE is prepared in two forms: No. 1, a powder, tasteless and colorless, can be given secretly in food or drink; ORRINE No. 2, in pill form, is for those who wish to cure themselves. ORRINE costs only $1.00 a box. Ask us for free booklet. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 6th street and Washington av., St. Louis, Mo. Chas. F. Me[illegible]er, East St. Louis, Ill. ADV.

2 PERFORMANCES AT SAME TIME ON THE W. U. CAMPUS

Audiences Will Exchange Seats and See Both at the Shakspeare Celebration.

Two outdoor dramatic performances will be given at the same time, in the Shakspeare tercentenary celebration, at the Washington University campus, April 27 and 29.

Two quadrangles have been set apart for the two productions, and after the first performance of each is finished, the two audiences will exchange places and both productions will be repeated.

One of the productions, Peele's "Old Wives' Tale," requires a stage, and it will be given on a specially constructed Elizabethan stage in the first quadrangle. The other production of two plays, which do not require a stage, will be given in the quadrangle of McMillan Hall. Each quadrangle will seat about 2000 persons.

The Elizabethan stage will extend into the audience, so that there will be boxes and seats on the "boards" on either side, and the audience will view the performance from three sides.

The "Old Wives' Tale" consists of a number of pageant-like scenes, and is based on folk tales. This play has been given only once in recent years. Melville A. Burke is directing this production.

"The Revesby Sword Play" is a folk play which includes the Morris dance and the sword dance. The roles are all taken by men. "The Hue and Cry After Cupid" is one of Ben Jonson's briefer masques. All the roles are taken by women. Miss Florence Grant is directing these two plays.

The first performance, Thursday, April 27, will be an invitation affair for delegates to the convention of the Drama League of America, for members of the St. Louis branch of the Drama League and for the university community. The second performance, Saturday, April 29, will be open to the public.

Sixteen Persons Selected to Demonstrate Shakspearean Dances.

Ten Washington University students, six men and four girls, and six Y. W. C. A. girls have been selected by Miss Florence Grant, physical director at Washington University, at the request of Cecil J. Sharp of London, to assist Sharp in demonstrating in public, tomorrow night at the Central High School Auditorium, and Tuesday night at the Grover Cleveland High School Auditorium, dances of the Shakspearean period that will be taught this week by Sharp to dancing groups of men and women for the community production of "As You Like It," at Forest Park, June 5 to 11, inclusive, under the auspices of the St. Louis Pageant Drama Association, in commemoration of the Shakspeare tercentenary.

The six Y. W. C. A. girls, to whom Miss Grant has taught two morris dances, are the Misses Marjorie Hutchinson, Melba Reher, Lucy Reynolds, Georgia Spaulding, Kathryn Todd and Dorothy Trieselman. The Washington University students, Misses Margaret Ewing, Mary Hope, Dorothy Jackes and Grace Woods, and Willis Bliss, Irwin Cozzens, Bruce Dolch, Harold Knight, Ray Leinkuehler and Harry Reikert, are prepared to give jointly two country dances. Two sword dances also have been taught by Miss Grant to the six men.

Beside dancing, Sharp will lecture on English folk song, tale and dance, sing some of the old songs and play a tune on an original pipe and tabor, and show moving pictures and magic lantern slides of folk dancers, singers, fiddlers, etc.

Sharp has been engaged by the Pageant Drama Association to give free instruction in the old dances to those men and women chosen to dance them in the "As You Like It" performances. Applications for the instruction are being received by the association at its headquarters, 513 Security Building. Those already accepted are to meet Sharp at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the assembly hall at Central Library. Classes will assemble there each afternoon during the week and each evening, from Wednesday to Saturday.

RUSSIA LIKELY TO BUY BACK SOME WARSHIPS FROM JAPAN

Three of the Prizes of War Mentioned in Deal Involving More Than $7,500,000.

By Associated Press.

TOKIO, March 25.—As reported by cable, negotiations are in progress between Japan and Russia for the purchase by Russia of several warships which fell into the hands of the Japanese during the Russo-Japanese War.

Russia wished to have Russian warships participate with those of Japan and Great Britain in the bombardment of the German fortress of Tsingtau, and to that end opened negotiations with Japan for the return of some of her old ships. The negotiations, which fell through at the time, were reopened a few weeks ago, with every prospect that several ships, probably three, will be turned over to Russia.

Japan took about 14 Russian warships as a result of the Russo-Japanese War. The vessels mentioned as likely to be transferred include the cruiser Soya, formerly the Varyag; the battleship Tango, formerly the Russian warship Poltava, and the Sagami, which, during the war with Russia, was known as the Peresviet.

It is likely that a modern dreadnought would be constructed with the proceeds of the sale, which are placed at from fifteen to twenty million yen, or from about $7,500,000 to $10,000,000.

Woman, 84, Killed by a Fall.

DECATUR, Ill., March 25.—While raising the window of her room in the second story of her residence here early this morning, Mrs. R. E. Darrow, 84 year old, fell through the window to the pavement, 20 feet below, and suffered a fractured skull. She died half an hour later.

TOMORROW MORNING AT 8:30 THE LINDELL BEGINS A ROUSING

WHERE MUSIC IS SWEETEST

The

Mason & Hamlin

Tension Resonator

is the only device which permanently maintains the sounding-board arch, upon which the TONE of a Piano principally depends.

It gives to the MASON & HAMLIN Piano extraordinary beauty of tone, together with a hitherto unknown responsiveness, and a permanence of tone quality never before approached.

It is not found, and, being patented, it cannot be used in any other Piano.

We are now showing the finest Pianos the MASON & HAMLIN factory has ever produced. We invite a hearing of them—the one test of musical excellence.

The Doctor's Advice

By Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Sickly" writes: "What may I use to relieve a chronic cough and a bad cold?"

Answer: I always prescribe for coughs and colds a very effective cough syrup which you may easily prepare with 2½ oz. concentrated essence mentho-laxene and one pint of simple sugar syrup. This, taken regularly, should overcome very severe coughs and colds. It is laxative in its action, and cleanses the system by driving out the cold inflammation.

"Busy" writes: "I have had a very bad case of kidney trouble for four months. I feel so bad I can hardly work."

Answer: You did not state your symptoms, but if they are headache, chills and fever, sallow, complexion, puffs under the eyes, then I suggest that you start at once using balmwort tablets. They are harmless and seldom fail to relieve kindey trouble. They come in sealed tubes with directions.

"John" writes: "I have had bad colds. Now I am over the colds, but my system seems run down. I get tired after the least exertion and I'm losing weight rapidly. I have to take laxatives regularly, but was never before bothered with constipation. What will I do?"

Answer: Get a tube of three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur), and take regularly. Your blood is in bad condition and much of the cold inflammation remains in your system. These tablets should relieve constipation, clean your blood and build up your health.

"Actress" writes: "I have a very bad case of dandruff and itching scalp. I cannot use liquid tonics containing alcohol, as they dry my hair."

Answer: Tonics for the hair containing alcohol are not good for the scalp. Use plain yellow minyol. This is a kind of pomade, which cleans and invigorates the scalp and promotes growth of the hair.

"Tired" writes: "I'm a very nervous person, tired and worn out before my time. My sleep and food do not nourish my system as they should, and I am weak, tottery, fearful and unable to do my work. I am restless and much dissatisfied all the time."

Answer: Get a tube of three-grain cadomene tablets and take regularly according to directions. They cause proper assimilation of the food you eat, and act on the blood and nerves in a stimulating and healthful manner. Try to cultivate regular habits, avoid excesses, and you should soon be restored to complete health and vitality.

"Man" writes: "I notice many little pustular sores on my body. I am anemic, have fever and my tonsils swell, and I am much worried. Is there a cure for this particular phase of bad blood?"

Answer: Your symptoms indicate a well-developed case of vitiated blood. With careful treatment you should recover within a reasonable time. Start at once using Elixir Chin-cea compound to purify the blood and act on the eliminative organs. It is the greatest alterative known, and can be obtained of any well-stocked pharmacy in eight-ounce sealed bottles with directions.

"C. W. R." writes: "Outside of being very muscular, I notice I am accumulating a lot of excess fat. What will reduce me safely?"

Answer: Use five-grain arbolone tablets. They are a "tried and satisfied" flesh reducer. Many persons use them regularly to keep down weight; both men and woman.

"Fred" asks: "How may I increase my weight and improve my color? I am anaemic, weak and tired all the time."

Answer: Begin at once taking three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets. Continued use of these tablets, taken with your meals, should increase your weight, overcome anaemic condition and improve your general health and color.

"Patron" writes: "Please tell me what to do for rheumatism. The mentho-laxene syrup you prescribed for cold and cough did me a world of good and relieved a cough I had two years."

Answer: I am glad you found so much relief in the mentho-laxene. You should obtain just as good results in the following prescription for rheumatism: 2 drams of iodide of potassium, 4 drams sodium salicylate, ½ oz. wine of colchicum, 1 oz. comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz. comp. fluid balmwort and 5 ozs. syrup sarsaparilla comp. Mix and take a teaspoonful at meal times and again before going to bed—ADVERTISEMENT.

COUNTRY TO ENJOY GENERALLY MILD DAYS NEXT WEEK

Rain Storms Are Predicted, but They Will Be of Short Duration.

WASHINGTON, March 25. — The Weather Bureau's forecast for the week beginning Sunday, says:

"Comparatively mild weather will prevail throughout the coming week generally in the Mississippi Valley and in the district east thereof, although there will be a reaction Sunday and Monday from the abnormally high temperatures that now prevail in the great central valleys and the gulf states. This change to cooler weather will be of short duration, however.

"West of the Mississippi River low temperatures at the beginning of the week will be followed by a general change to warmer weather Monday and Tuesday and moderate temperatures thereafter during the remainder of the week.

"A disturbance that is now over the Mississippi Valley will advance northeastward and be attended by general rains Sunday over much of the country east of the Mississippi River with thunderstorms in the southeastern states and showers on Monday in the Atlantic states and the lower lake region.

"Another storm will advance inland from the Pacific Monday or Tuesday, pass eastward to the middle plains states and the upper Mississippi Valley, the middle of the week and to the eastern states about Thursday. This disturbance will be preceded by a general change to warmer weather over western and southwestern districts and be attended by general rains in the north Pacific states and the northern and middle states east of the Rocky Mountains. It will be followed by cooler weather over the northern half of the country.

"The weather during the week will be generally fair in the gulf states, the southern plateau and southern Rocky Mountain regions and California."

14-INCH DEFENSE GUNS FOR PANAMA CANAL ON ISTHMUS

16-Inch Gun for Perico Island Yet to Arrive; Engineers to Have Problem Mounting It.

PANAMA, March 25.—All the large 14-inch guns for the Panama Canal defenses are now on the Isthmus and soon will be in place at either end of the waterway. The single 16-inch gun for the top of Perico Island has not yet been shipped from the United States. All the fortifications now under way are rapidly nearing completion.

Transporting and mounting the gun on Perico Island will furnish the engineers with an interesting problem. The island is more than 100 feet above sea level and conical in shape. It has a railway line twice about its circumference at a very sharp curvature. A special railway car with swivel trucks will be constructed to take the 110-ton gun up.

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large quantity of plain syrup. A pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes, gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

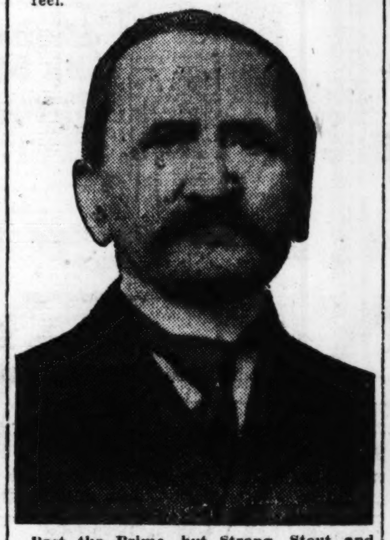
It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the membranes in the case of a painful cough.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

67 YEARS OF AGE GAINS 22 POUNDS IN 23 DAYS

Remarkable Experience of F. Gagnon. Builds Up Weight Wonderfully.

I am a man 67 years of age and was all run down to the very bottom, writes F. Gagnon, whose picture appears below. I had to quit work I was so weak. Now, thanks to Sargol, I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds with 23 days' treatment. I cannot tell you how happy I feel.



Past the Prime, but Strong, Stout and Vigorous.

"I received the sample box of Sargol, then bought a $1.00 box," writes Miss Hazel Roff. "In nine days I gained six pounds. Could scarcely believe until trying two different scales." "Have gained 12 pounds in 18 days," adds J. A. Murphy.

Would you, too, like to quickly put from 10 to 30 lbs. of good, solid, "stay-there" flesh, fat and muscular tissue between your skin and bones?

Don't say it can't be done. Try it. Let us send you free a 50c package of Sargol to prove what it can do for you.

More than half a million thin men and women have gladly made this test, and that Sargol does succeed, does make thin folks fat even where all else has failed, is conclusively proven, in our opinion, by the tremendous business we have done. DIRECTION OF THE ST. LOUIS PLAYGROUNDS IS PRAISED

President of New York City Park Board Says Cunliff and Davis Have Done Much for City.

Cabot Ward, President of the New York City Park Board, who has been attending a convention of park directors held in St. Louis, yesterday highly complimented Park Commissioner Cunliff and his predecessor, Dwight F. Davis, for the manner in which the St. Louis playgrounds have been directed.

"Many people think playgrounds are new-fangled devices of the twentieth century, when in fact Plato seriously discussed them centuries ago," he said to a reporter for the Post-Dispatch.

"Their activities should be well directed and the recreations not overbalanced. For instance, folk dances are a good thing; but recently many cities have allowed folk dances to predominate to such a degree that other activities have been overshadowed.

"I find that the St. Louis playgrounds are well directed and intensively used. That is good. Both Davis and Cunliff have done much there for the St. Louis of the future."

PEACE ATTITUDES OF THE SOCIALIST GROUPS IN EUROPE

Huysmans, Secretary of International, Discusses Outlook for the Future.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, March 12.—The secretary of the famous Socialist International, Camille Huysmans, in an interview with a correspondent of the Associated Press, has described the present position of that body and the various national European groups which it comprises in regard to the war, pointing out the obstacles which still prevent united actiono anad dealing with the outlook for the future.

While the executive of the international has decided to refrain from calling an international congress at present owing to the irreconciliable attitude which the French party maintains in view of the presence of a German army on French soil, its representatives are nevertheless to have a conference with the British Socialist leaders in London, in a few weeks, and subsequently with the French Socialists in Paris and with the Russian Socialists, after having already acquainted themselves with the position in other belligerent countries from German, Hungarian and Belgian Socialist Deputies who recently visited The Hague for the purpose.

Hope of ultimately bringing the various branches of the International together again has thus by no means been abandoned. The position is that the Central organization is still in complete touch with all the affiliated groups, but that those groups are not all in touch with one another. An international congress could be held tomorrow, said M. Huysmans, but he maintained that, without complete representation, it would be useless and even dangerous, as tending to sow suspicion.

Question of Alsace-Lorraine.

Alsace-Lorraine is, he stated, still the stumbling block, but a compromise on this subject is, in his poinion, essential, or another war is inevitable within a few years. His personal view of what the nature of that compromise should be, however, he thought it wise to withhold.

"The German Socialist party," declared the Secretary of the International to the Associated Press representative, "wants a speedy peace, but, unlike the Socialists of France and Britain, they have no determinate voice in the empire-s councils, having to rely perforce on whatever indirect influence they may be able to wield through the medium of public opinion." His estimate of their power in regard to hastening the end of the war is, in fact, not a high one. And as regards the split in the German Socialist ranks, Huysmans thinks there is danger of a definite cleavage if the majority persist in supporting the Imperial Government's policy.

The attitude of the Hungarian party is an interesting one. "Not only do they think a speedy peace is necessary," said Huysmans, who has just conferred with some of their number, "but they are of opinion that a bridge can be built between the different belligerents. They further take the position that, even supposing the war could have been at first considered a defensive one on Germany's part, it has now become for her an aggressive one, and they hold the view that the whole German Socialist party ought now to vote against the war credits, thus furthering a settlement."

Independence of Belgium.

All Socialists, including the German party itself as a whole, are, it seems, in favor of the political and economic independence of Belgium. "The one or two possible individual exceptions," remarked Huysmans, who is himself a Belgian, "have no influence. Out of a million votes we should have 999,000 in favor of an independent Belgium; so that, if the German Socialists have influence, Belgium is free."

"Germans know very well the military position of Germany does not correspond to their economic position. Moreover, we Belgians are not a people easily subjected, and the eGrmans are discovering that. They have never seen such a people. We have had some experience in this kind of thing. The Spaniards occupied Belgium, and the Spaniards disappeared. We have had the Austrians—disappeared. The French—disappeared. Our good friends the Dutch—disappeared. And we are also sure that the Germans will disappear. The Shooting of the eBlgians, the terrorist policy, has no influence on us. A large number of Socialists and others have been shot in Belgium, and the German Government thought it would make an impression; they were wrong. It makes no impression whatever."

Unity of Small Neutrals.

The establishment of a third bloc in Europe, composed of the small western neutral nations, whose task it would be to keep the peace between the other combinations, was a point incidentally urged very emphatically by this Socialist leader. "If they do not thus unite," he declared, "they will assuredly disappear."

The memory of the International's collapse at the outbreak of war might make many people pessimistic, but Huysmans is convinced that the present struggle will have a good influence on the future of Socialism. "The people," he said, "will be very poor. The war has shown to all the world the need of organizing against war, and that the Socialists are the only party which has, as a whole, fought against war in Europe. Morevor, during this struggle all the belligenertn nations have been obliged to act on Socialist principles to some extent. In Belgium, for instance, private trade almost disappeared, private industry failed, and at the most difficult moment the only solution was the collective organization of society. That will not be forgotten by anybody.

"The moment of peace depends on the armies, but the nature of the peace depends on us," he remarked. "We Socialists will only hasten peace if that peace is to be a lasting one, with no seeds of fresh wars bound up therein."

GOAL OF THE MODERN WOMAN

It Includes Love, Service and Creation, Says Mrs. O'Hare.

Mrs. Kate Richards O'Hare, editor of the Ripsaw, a St. Louis Socialist publication and former Socialist candidate for President, told 150 members and friends of the Town Club, at a luncheon yesterday noon at the American Annex, that the goal toward which the modern woman is looking includes love, service and creation.

The feudal serf gained the right to spend what he earned, the right to organize and the franchise, Mrs. O'Hare said. "All these rights are needed by women," she added, "and I believe that the 'woman movement' is a divine urge to a broader life." Women are demanding more, the speaker said, of the men who propose marriage. "Women today are vitally interested in a man's ability to earn and his bill of health.

BUILDING RAILWAY HIMSELF

Kansan Using Four Mules and Scraper—Needs More Funds.

VALLEY FALLS, Kan., March 25.—Rudolph Meyers, the farmer who, single-handed, is building a railway 80 miles long from here to Jetmore, is in need of funds and has offered his farm near here for sale.

Meyers has obtained right of way for seven miles of the line, and has done three miles of grading by himself, using two pairs of mules and a slip scraper in the work.

PERUNA in Your Home

A housewife must give the first aid in colds, coughs and other ailments. Her promptness in applying the remedy often saves a serious illness. Her experience with remedies has led her to know that PERUNA is always reliable, that she should have it on hand for the immediate treatment of coughs and colds, and that it is always to her

Mrs. George Parker, 419 Water St., Menasha, Wis., writes: "We have used Peruna in our family for a number of years, aud have found it a perfectly reliable medicine. It soon rids the system of any traces of a cold, and prevents serious consequences. "I began using it for catarrh, which I suffered with a good many years, but had not been very serious until recently. Since I have taken Peruna the dropping in my throat has discontinued, and my head and nose are not so stopped up in the morning. I am pleased with the results, and shall continue to use it until I am entirely rid of catarrh. "I heartily recommend it as an honest medicine." What it does for her it is ready to do for you

The Family Safeguard

The experience of one woman, given herewith, is typical of thousands of letters that reach the Peruna Company from grateful friends who have found their homes incomplete, and their family safety in danger without PERUNA.

Colds and Catarrh

The great weight of testimony that has accumulated in the 44 years that PERUNA has been on the market proves it, beyond question, to be the reliable family remedy, ever ready to take, preventing the serious effects of colds, coughs, grip and derangements of the digestive organs. This proof is published from time to time and many families have profited by it.

PERUNA TONIC

Remember you can obtain PERUNA in tablet form for your convenience. Carry it with you and be fortified against sudden attacks.

SMALL PIMPLES ON BABY'S HANDS

And Feet. Grew Larger and Spread Rapidly to Limbs. Itched and Burned. Caused Disfigurement.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"When my baby was about one year old, small pimples appeared on her hands and feet. They grew larger and spread rapidly to her limbs until it seemed that her whole body would be covered. The pimples were hard and red, and seemed to have clear watery heads which oozed out water that hardened, and formed scales. They itched and burned and were very much aggravated by her clothing. Wherever the eruptions appeared, it caused great disfigurement.

"We began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In a week she was entirely healed." (Signed) Mrs. W. G. Carpenter, Amelia, Neb., July 14, 1915.

METZ TO ADOPT BABY BOY

METZ, Germany, March 25.—A Metz company of reservists—most of them middle-aged and the heads of families—who recently found a 1½-year-old baby boy lying near their trenches in the East, probably left by some mother driven from her home by the Russians in retreating, adopted the infant on sight.

The reservists chose the Kaiser's birthday as the opportune time to christen the lad, and bestowed on him the name of Wilhelm Metz. The city of Metz, it is understood, intends officially to adopt the child and provide for its education and rearing.

POLAR RELIEF SHIP LEFT 10 MEN BESIDES PARTY OF LIEUT. SHACKLETON BEHIND

Official Details Given to Post-Dispatch of How Aurora, Dragged by Pack Ice, Lost Her Rudder—Rescue Unlikely for 11 Months.

In accordance with arrangements made by the New York World and Post-Dispatch with Sir Ernest Shackleton before the Shackleton Antarctic expedition left England for the exclusive personal narratives of the achievements and adventures of the expedition, the Post-Dispatch herewith publishes the personal story of J. R. Stenhouse, R. N. R., second in command of the ship Aurora, the relief ship which was to have awaited Lieut. Shackleton and his party at Ross Sea, should the party succeed in crossing the Antarctic Continent. This dispatch was sent by wireless from the Aurora to New Zealand, whence the Post-Dispatch received it by way of London.

(Copyright, 1916, by Press Pub. Co.)

LONDON, March 25.—The following wireless dispatch has been received from the Antarctic relief steamer Aurora at the Awarura radio station in New Zealand from J. R. Stenhouse, R. N. R., second in command of the ship:

"On her voyage to the South the Aurora called at Macquarie Island, arriving there Dec. 30, 1914. She landed some stores she had brought for the islanders and sailed the following day for the ice.

Could Not Land at Cape Crozier.

"Cape Crozier was reached on Jan. 9, 1915. It had been intended to establish a depot here for the winter journeys from our base, but the conditions were so bad that it was impossible to make a landing.

"The Aurora accordingly proceeded east along the ice barrier and up the sound. We encountered great difficulties from the ice, but managed eventually to make a landing.

"On Jan. 24 a party of three men with dogs set out for the bluff to lay out a depot, taking stores with them. Next day Capt. Aeneas Mackintosh, accompanied by two members of the party, left the ship for a sledge trip with the dogs. On Jan. 31 the six men started on a journey to the south. They took with them a motor sledge with an aeroplane engine.

"All this time the Aurora was lying at moorings off Cape Evans. Although many attempts were made to find a safe harbor, they failed, owing to the extremely bad seas. The party of six who made the journey to the south returned and on March 4 were embarked from Hut Point.

"A week later, the ship still being moored off Cape Evans, four of the staff went ashore to do scientific work. A violent blizzard occurred on March 6 and drove the Aurora from the moorings she had taken up for the winter. At this time Capt. Mackintosh and two companions, as well as the three men who had gone to the bluff to establish a depot and the four members of the scientific staff, were ashore. We saw no more of them.

Pack Ice Takes Ship Away.

"When the Aurora was driven from her moorings she became locked in the pack ice. This set north along the coast around Cape Adare and to the west of Ballany Islands (outside Ross Sea).

"After escaping serious injury for over 10 weeks, misfortunes overtook her on July 21, 1915. We were then about ninety miles south of Coulman Island (showing a drift back into Ross Sea). The Aurora was heavily nipped by the enormous ice pressure. She lost her rudder and her hull was heavily strained.

"It was not until March 14 of this year that the ship was released from the ice. This was in latitude 64 degrees and 30 minutes south, longtitude 18 degrees east, after a drift south and eastward of 1200 miles.

"The names of those who are ashore on the barrier are: Capt. Mackintosh, in command of the Ross Sea side of the expedition; H. E. Wild, dog and sledging expert, a brother of Frank Wild, who is with Capt. Shackleton; Ernest Joyce, J. L. Cope, A. Stevens, Spencer Smith, Richard Hayward and Jack Gaze.

"We sent a wireless appeal for relief from the ship during the winter, but I cannot say if it was received. We had no acknowledgment.

"The Aurora is now proceeding to a port in New Zealand with a jury rudder. We have lost our anchors and are short of fuel. We expect to arrive in port early in April. STENHOUSE.

London Much Concerned Over Safety of Shackleton Party.

The unfavorable tidings from the Ross Sea and of the Shackleton Antarctic expedition caused a sensation. Lieut. Shackleton is the most ambitious of all the experts in Arctic exploration and news of his successful passage across the 1700 miles of the Antarctic continent was hoped for within a few days.

The carrying away of the Aurora in the drift ice of the Ross Sea leaves not only 10 men of her landing party marooned without any chance of relief for another 11 months, but if Lieut. Shackleton has arrived or arrives after the rigors of his long journey, at Ross Sea, he too, must wait for succor until the sea again becomes practicable. There is a chance that Shackleton has gone back to the Weddell Sea and will be able to return to Buenos Aires this month, but that presumes the failure of this attempt to get to the place, which there is no reason to expect in view of his own and his companions' experience and resolution and the perfection with which every working detail of the expedition was thought out and provided for.

If Shackleton got to the Pole it is taken for granted that he would continue on his journey to Ross Sea, not only because it was his original plan, but because it is believed to be an easier journey than the return to Weddell Sea. Should he have reached Ross Sea according to schedule, after his unexampled achievement, the disappointment of finding the Aurora gone and 10 of her crew marooned must be severe and it will take a man of Shackleton's virile self-control to face the ordeal.

May Have Ample Stores.

Of course, the possibility that Shackleton might not reach Ross Sea in time to catch the Aurora, which would have been compelled to leave on her return to New Zealand, anyway, early in March, may have been provided against and ample stores had been taken out in the Aurora to leave behind for the transantarctic party. But it is not known absolutely that these stores had been landed before the Aurora broke adrift, although undoubtedly she would have cached sufficient for her own expeditionary party when it left the ship.

The position therefore is full of possibilities on which the world can only speculate for the next 11 months, always with the firm hope that Shackleton and his heroic companions may eventually win through.

If Shackleton's party has reached Ross Sea the men would certainly have no surplus food, but once on the coast here they can find an abundance of seals, penguins and gulls, and, as the whole 16 men, assuming that they have joined hands, are experienced explorers, there is every reason for believing that under the leadership of Shackleton they will find a way of fighting their way through the dangers and difficulties which now confront them.

Commander Evans, R. N. C. B., who took command of the Scott expedition after the death of Capt. Scott, had just come ashore last night, and expressed considerable anxiety when told what had happened to the Aurora.

Evans Hopeful of Outcome.

"I had not expected to hear definite news from the Shackleton expedition until the end of the month," he said. "But this is the thing one didn't expect to happen. The Antartic is always full of surprises. If Shackleton has succeeded in accomplishing his magnificent march across the pole and taken the route he followed on his previous expedition, long before this he will have reached Cape Evans and found Capt. Scott's hut.

"There we left an abundance of food and fuel when we sealed it up before coming away, but I am afraid they will not find very much clothing if they are badly off in that respect.

"However, with his own resourceful nature and with the material he will find, I have little doubt Sir Ernest and his companions will survive one winter, providing they reach Cape Evans in reasonable health. But of course succor must be sent to them.

"No ship can reach the Ross Sea base until the end of December this year. There is much to be done, however, before a relief expedition can be organized and it will be necessary to put the movement on foot almost at once. Should it be decided to send out a vessel from this country she must leave not later than the beginning of August.

GIRLS! BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR WITH "DANDERINE"

Get a 25-Cent Bottle! Freshen Your Scalp! Stop Falling Hair! Remove Dandruff! Grow Lots of Wavy, Glossy, Beautiful Hair—You Can!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—ADV.

DISPATCH SKATERS CAPTURED

Teutons Formed Company to Carry Messages Across Lakes.

KIEV, Mar. 25—Among German prisoners recently captured were a number of men who called themselves "dispatch skaters." From them it was learned that a whole company of expert skaters had been equipped early in the winter to carry dispatches by short cuts across the lakes among which the Germans have taken up winter quarters in various sections of the front.

The organizer was said to be a Vienna prize skater and racer of local renown. The prisoners, including this man, were captured at Volini, near Vladimir Volynsk.

YOUR FRECKLES

Need Attention in March or Face May Stay Covered.

Now is the time to take special care of the complexion if you wish it to look well the rest of the year. The March winds have a strong tendency to bring out freckles that may stay all Summer unless removed. Now is the time to use othine—double strength.

This prescription for the removal of freckles was written by a prominent physician and is usually so successful that it is sold by druggists under guarantee to refund the money if it fails. Get an ounce of othine—double strength, and even a few applications should show a wonderful improvement, some of the smaller freckles even vanishing entirely.—ADV.

CARDINAL SERAFANI NAMED PREFECT OF PROPAGANDA

Former Apostolic Delegate to Mexico Succeeds Cardinal Gotti Who Died Last Week.

ROME, March 25.—Pope Benedict has appointed Cardinal Domenico Serafani to be Prefect of the Sacred Congregation of the Propaganda.

The position of Prefect of the Propaganda, the important Roman congregation which had charge of the administration of Catholic Church affairs in mission countries, became vacant with the death of Cardinal Gotti last week.

Cardinal Serafini, who is a monk of the Order of St. Benedict, was born in Rome in 1852, and created Cardinal in May, 1914. He was Apostolic Delegate to Mexico for a few years during the presidency of Porfirio Diaz.

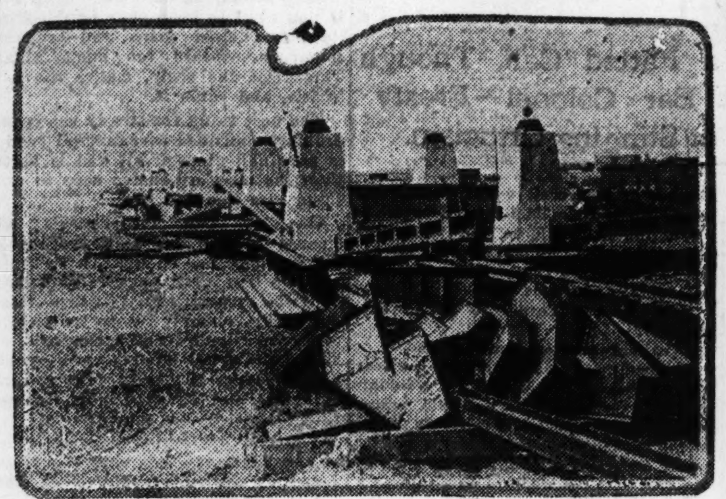
Concrete Piers and Steel at East End of Municipal Bridge



FIRST SECTION OF EAST SIDE BRIDGE SPANS COMPLETED

Highway Approach to Municipal Structure Expected to Be Finished in October.

The first section of the Illinois highway approach to the free bridge, a stretch of 300 feet between Baker street and the Illinois Central Railway tracks, has been completed, and city officials announced today that the steel highway approach would be finished by October, as planned, barring unforeseen interruptions.

The railway approach in Illinois about two miles longer, will not be finished before the spring of 1917, President Kinsey of the Board of Public Service said.

Construction of the river piers of the bridge began in June, 1910, under former Mayor Kriesmann, and the last stroke of work will not be added to the $7,250,000 bridge until nearly seven years after it was actually started.

Public Holiday in October.

Mayor Kiel has announced there will be a public holiday in October to celebrate the opening of the highway deck of the bridge to interurban trolleys, vehicles and pedestrians. The upper deck will be 9002 feet long, extending from Seventh and Papin streets in St. Louis to Tenth street and Piggott avenue in East St. Louis. It will be about twice the length of any other bridge across the Mississippi River at St. Louis. The topography necessitated the great length to the highway approach, but the railroad approach in Illinois was extended two miles beyond the length necessary to give an easy gradient, in the hope of landing the bridge in "neutral" territory, where roads in competition with the Terminal Railroad Association could reach it.

Clinton H. Fisk, chief engineer of construction for the city, said 219 men were now at work on the bridge. There are 90 common laborers, 35 structural iron workers, 30 concrete workmen, 20 carpenters, 14 watchmen, and an office force of 20.

There were as many as 300 men at work on the bridge at one time last fall when concrete piling was being driven for the foundations of both approaches, and by June it is expected that more than 300 men will be at work erecting the steel that is partly delivered now from the Pittsburg foundry at which it was fabricated.

Difficult Work Beginning.

The most difficult part of the highway approach construction—a span across the Illinois Central tracks, 263 feet in length—will be started this week. A two-boom steel-mule traveling crane, operated on top of the approach now erected, will place the heavy steel on the remainder of the approach. William F. Collar, assistant engineer in charge of the work, reported yesterday that the falsework of the big span was being erected.

There remain to be driven about 700 concrete piers before the foundations of both approaches will be complete. The foundations at the river front have been put in since the flood waters of last January subsided, and a concrete retaining wall at the river will serve to keep out water that might undermine these piers.

The city has undertaken to complete the bridge approaches without letting the work to contractors. A bond issue of $2,750,000 was voted in 1914, for this purpose, and President Kinsey has said it would be ample to complete the work, which includes paving of the river spans and the approaches in St. Louis.

How Cost of Bridge Grew.

In June, 1906, St. Louisans voted $3,500,000 of bonds for the construction of a free bridge, on the advice of engineers that a first-class steel bridge, of two decks, could be constructed here at that cost. After several years of wrangling in legislative halls over the proper location of approaches on both sides the river, it was finally decided to build the approaches in such a manner that it would cost the additional $2,750,000 to finish the structure. All but $200,000 of the original bond issue was spent in constructing the river piers, the approaches on this side the river, and in the acquisition of land for approaches in East St. Louis.

PASTOR, CALLED A SHIRKER, OFFERS TO FIGHT ALL COMERS

Englishman Invites Writers of Anonymous Letters to Put on Gloves With Him.

LONDON, March 25.—A challenge to don the boxing gloves with all individuals who have been calling him a shirker in the present crisis has been made by the Rev. J. H. Evans, vicar of the Somerset mining village of Coleford, near Bath. He has been receiving anonymous letters urging him to practice what he preaches and join the army.

Here are his own words in his parish magazine: "The vicar of this parish has hit upon the following measures to meet his own case: 'In school, college and curate days he was supposed to defend himself ably in the boxing ring, and does not remember being beaten under fairly equal conditions. He is now ready to put on the gloves with any of these unknown persons, if they will reveal themselves in public. Further, in order to relieve any likely miner recruit who may have a conscientious reason, as for instance, the support of a widowed mother, he is not ashamed or afraid, but willing to take his place in the mine and give the wages to dependent, if piecework can be arranged which will not interfere with clerical duties."

CIGARETTES DESTROY MIND

DETROIT, Mich., March 25.—One hundred cigarettes a day were too much for Frank Winters, aged 46. He was declared to have been mentally affected by excessive cigarette smoking in a certificate filed in the Probate Court by Dr. M. A. Layton.

Winters' strange actions had made his associates think him insane. Dr. Layton declared in his report that he was unable to find well defined symptoms of insanity, but that cigarettes had made him simple minded. Winters was born in Germany.

TWO NEW PORTRAITS ACQUIRED BY THE CITY ART MUSEUM

One Is Painting of Charles I of England by Daniel Mytens Tapestries Can Be Seen Thursday Evening.

The tapestry exhibit at the City Art Museum, in Forest Park, is attracting unprecedented numbers to the galleries. Almost 1000 school children, with their teachers, visited the exhibition last week.

Another night opening for the public will be held Thursday from 7:30 to 10 p. m. The members of the Town Club, an organization of St. Louis business women, are planning to attend in a body. Members of the museum staff will act as guides and jitney service will be provided from the De Baliviere entrance to the park to the museum building for a fare of 10 cents each way.

The museum last week made two important acquisitions, one of which is a portrait by the Dutch artist, Gerard Ter Borch. The other is a portrait of Charles I of England by Daniel Mytens, who was appointed court painter at London in 1625. This portrait, which was executed from life, is a full-length representation of the ill-fated Stuart who was beheaded for his stubborn adherence to the doctrine of the divine rights of Kings.

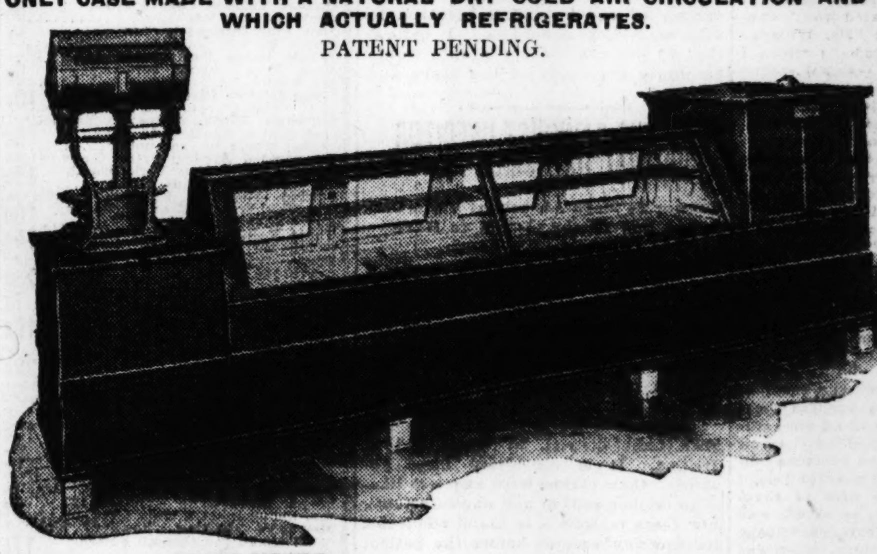
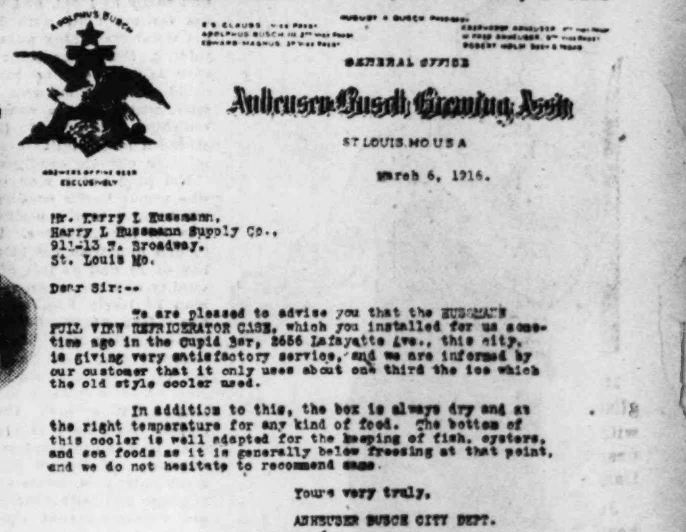
HUSSMANN'S IMPROVED REFRIGERATOR CASE

For the Butcher, Grocer, Delicatessen, Restaurant, & Cafe

ONLY CASE MADE WITH A NATURAL DRY COLD AIR CIRCULATION AND WHICH ACTUALLY REFRIGERATES.
PATENT PENDING.





GENERAL OFFICE
Anheuser-Busch Brewing Ass'n
ST. LOUIS, MO. U. S. A.

March 6, 1916.

Mr. Harry L Hussmann,
Harry L Hussmann Supply Co.,
911-13 N. Broadway,
St. Louis Mo.

Dear Sir:—

We are pleased to advise you that the HUSSMANN FULL VIEW REFRIGERATOR CASE, which you installed for us sometime ago in the Cupid Bar, 2656 Lafayette Ave., this city, is giving very satisfactory service, and we are informed by our customer that it only uses about one third the ice which the old style cooler used.

In addition to this, the box is always dry and at the right temperature for any kind of food. The bottom of this cooler is well adapted for the keeping of fish, oysters, and sea foods as it is generally below freezing at that point, and we do not hesitate to recommend same.

Yours very truly,
ANHEUSER BUSCH CITY DEPT.
By Chas Klotermeyer

TEMPERATURE—Regulate below freezing if wanted.
SANITARY—Conforms with all State laws.
ATTRACTIVE—Sells the goods.
DURABLE—Will last for years.
PRACTICAL—Displays right before your eyes.
CONVENIENT—No Stooping.
POPULAR PRICE—Based on highest quality.
DON'T BUY UNTIL YOU INVESTIGATE—WRITE FOR CATALOGUE.

Gentlemen: I would have written you before this, but I waited to give your Refrigerator a three month test. Having done so, permit me to say that, in all my eight years' experience as a cook and lunchman at Tony Faust's Restaurant and other places, I have never seen the equal of your Improved Full View Refrigerator.

Refer anyone to me and I can give them an instant demonstration that will convince the most skeptical that it is the Refrigerator we have all been looking for, both from the standpoint of economy and usefulness.

You are at liberty to use all or part of this letter.

Wishing you success, I am yours truly, REINHOLD WURST, Cupid Bar and Cafe, Lafayette and Ohio, City.

"In regard to Box we bought of you, I am glad to say that it works fine and has given us entire satisfaction, and anyone that you wish to refer to us, would be glad to show or tell them anything concerning it. Yours truly, O'KEEFE BROS., "1015 S. Taylor Av., City."

"In regard to the Counter Display Box which was made by you, wish to say that I am very much pleased with it. It serves two purposes at one time. Goods are kept in the finest condition and are displayed at the same time. Yours truly, AL. J. KRAUS, "6649 Alabama Av., City."

"Only a few words, that is all that is needed, to let you know that I am more than satisfied, and find the Improved Full View Refrigerator does what you said it would. A pleased customer. Yours truly, "FRED HARIG, "4446 N. Broadway, City."

"We are using one of your Improved Refrigerators for over a year, and are very well satisfied with it. We think it is the most sanitary Refrigerator Case we have ever used. Yours truly, "JOHN VAN GELS & SONS, "Russell & De Kalb, City."

This Wife and Mother Wishes To Tell You FREE How She Stopped Her Husband's Drinking

By all Means Write to Her and Learn how She did it.

For over 20 years Jas. Anderson of 10 Pearl Ave., Hillburn, N. Y., was a confirmed drunkard. His case was about as bad as it could be, but a little over twelve years ago his devoted wife, after years of trying, finally succeeded in stopping his drinking entirely.

Write to this woman if you have a relative or friend who drinks

Not only did she save Mr. Anderson but she stopped the drinking of her brother and several of her neighbors as well. All this she accomplished by simple home treatment which she now desires every man and woman who has a relative or friend who drinks, to know all about, for she feels that others can do just as she did.

The treatment can be given secretly if desired and without cost she will gladly and willingly tell what it is. Therefore every reader of this notice who is interested in curing a dear one of drinking should write to Mrs. Anderson at once. Her reply will come by return mail in a sealed envelope. She does this gladly in hopes that others will be benefited as she was. One thing she asks however, and that is that you do not send money for she has nothing to sell. Simply address your letter with all confidence, to Mrs. Margaret Anderson at the address given above and she will reply by return mail in a sealed envelope.

HUNT FOR SERGEANT EXTENDED

Towns Along Border Asked to Search for John Arnold.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., March 24.—Officers of the Sixth United States Artillery appealed today to the civil authorities of towns along the border to aid them in searching for John Arnold, Quartermaster-Sergeant. Sergeant Arnold disappeared Sunday afternoon.

April 1 Sergeant Arnold would have completed his 30 years of service in the army. His retirement papers already have been sent to Washington with the approval of his ranking officer. His home is in Fort Riley, Kan.

Stomach Troubles Duc to Acidity

So Says New York Physician.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, wind, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that fermentation is taking place in the food contents of the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acids. Wind distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excessive secretion of acid and the fermentation of food. Such fermentation is unnatural, and may involve harmful consequences if not corrected. To stop or prevent fermentation of food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and render it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, perhaps the best and most effective corrector of acid stomach known, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water immediately after eating, or whenever wind or acidity is felt. This stops the fermentation and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments. Fermentation, wind and acidity are unnecessary. Stop or prevent them by the use of a proper antacid, such as bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and thus enable the stomach to do its work properly without being hindered by gas and excessive acids. —ADV.

JESS WILLARD SAYS "TAKE NUXATED IRON

If you want plenty of 'stay there' Strength and Endurance and Health and Muscles like mine"

A hitherto untold Secret of his Great Victory over Jack Johnson

Ordinary nuxated iron will often increase the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent in two weeks' time.

I consider that plenty of iron in my blood is the secret of my great strength, power and endurance.

Jess Willard

SPECIAL NOTE.—Dr E. Sauer, a well-known physician of this city, has been specially employed to make a thorough investigation into the real secret of the great strength, power and endurance of Jess Willard, and the marvelous value of organic iron as a strength-builder.

NEW YORK.—Upon being interviewed at his apartment in the Colonial Hotel, Mr. Willard said: "Yes, I have a chemist with me to study the value of different foods and products as to their power to produce great strength and endurance, both of which are so necessary in the prize ring. On his recommendation I have often taken iron and I have particularly advocated the free use of iron by all those who wish to obtain great physical and mental power. Without it I am sure that I should never have been able to whip Jack Johnson so completely and easily as I did, and while now training for my fight with Frank Moran, I am regularly taking nuxated iron." Continuing, Dr. Sauer said: "Mr. Willard's case is only one of hundreds which I could cite from my own personal experience, which proves conclusively the astonishing power of iron to restore strength and vitality even in most complicated chronic conditions."

Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old, and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret, he said, was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 careworn and nearly all in. Now at 50, a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength-builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved, who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run-down people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray, while many another has gone to inglorius defeat simply for the lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M. D.

NOTE.—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Johnson-Enderle-Pauley Drug Co. and all other druggists.—ADV.

PUBLIC RECEPTION TO D. R. FRANCIS HELD AT 'CHANGE

Newly Appointed Ambassador to Russia Shakes Hands With Hundreds.

ONCE BODY'S PRESIDENT

Takes Tributes Tendered to Him as Manifestations of Support of Wilson's Policies.

The last public reception in honor of David R. Francis, newly appointed Ambassador to Russia, before his departure for Petrograd, was held from noon until 2 o'clock yesterday in the Merchants' Exchange, where he began his business career as a messenger boy 42 years ago. Several thousand men and women attended, many of them being friends of years' standing.

Francis appeared on the 'Change floor as the band played a medley of patriotic airs. He took his stand on the platform, between Jacob Schreiner, president of 'Change, and Clarence Howard, president of the Business Men's League. The stars and stripes were draped above him and on all sides.

The crowd filed by and Francis grasped the hand of each. A big cheer went up from the throng when Ned Cross, Francis' negro porter at his office for the past 17 years, went up and said an official good-by to his employer.

"Lor' man, he's been like a daddy to me, he has," Cross said, when he regained the floor.

Wilson Club in Parade.

Breckenridge Long, president of the Wilson Club, preceded by a band, led 500 of the club's members to the reception, and presented Francis with an honorary membership. The only other such membership is held by President Wilson. Henry Giessenbier Jr., president of the Young Men's Progressive Association, headed a delegation of 100 members who filed by.

Francis, when called upon for a speech, said that the first honor ever given him was when the 'Change elected him to membership on its Committee of Appeals in 1879. Five years later he was made its president. He attributed his later election to Mayor of St. Louis and Governor of Missouri partly to the support which the members had given him.

"It is therefore fitting that my last public appearance should be on this floor," he said. Referring to national affairs, he said, "President Wilson has commanded the respect of all nations for our Government and we should uphold his hands in this. He was elected President as a Democrat, but he is President of the entire United States and deserves the hearty support of its citizens—which he is getting."

Makes Reference to War.

Speaking of the receptions tendered him within the past two weeks, and the manifestations of good will shown, he added:

"I take these not so much as personal tributes, but as support given President Wilson in his efforts to guide the nation right.

"We have boasted of our patriotism—I do not think there is great danger of our becoming involved in this war—but should we, I believe that 99 per cent of our people would be under the folds of the stars and stripes."

MOSS AND SAWDUST USED FOR SURGICAL DRESSINGS AT FRONT

Former Is More Absorbant Than Cotton and Latter Is Said to Have Antiseptic Properties.

LONDON, March 25.—The discovery has just been made that Sphagnum moss, which grows wild in the British Isles, and pine wood sawdust are excellent substitutes for the more expensive surgical dressings which are used in great quantities at the front for immediate relief of the wounded.

Sphagnum moss is found in the English Lake district, in Wales and in Ireland. It is considered more absorbent than cotton wool and less likely to become sodden and uncomfortable. For these reasons it is found admirable for dressing wounds before the patient starts on the journey to the hospital. Pine wood sawdust is said to be antiseptic and when put up in gauze bags is particularly efficacious for the first dressing of head wounds.

JAPAN HOLDS AUSTRIAN OFFICER

YOKOHAMA, Japan, March 25.—Capt. von Moraveck, an Austrian artillery officer, was arrested here as he was stepping from the steamer Tamba Maru, which had just arrived from Seattle. He was sent to a detention camp.

According to the police, the Austrian was traveling under the name of Guegenin, describing himself as a Swiss merchant. Later he admitted his identity as an Austrian officer who was wounded at the front and taken prisoner by the Russians last April. Sent to Siberia, he escaped and, making his way through Manchuria, arrived at Tientsin, where he is alleged to have obtained a passport from the acting Swiss Consul at that place. He succeeded in returning to Austria, but departed from his country and proceeded to New York by way of Amsterdam. He refused to explain his mission to the Japanese authorities.

NO BRASS BANDS FOR T. R. IF HE VISITS GERMANY

Neither Will There Be a Fatted Calf, Though Government Will Not Bar Colonel—Frosty Atmosphere Because of Stinging Criticism.

By Karl H. von Wiegand,

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.

(Copyright, 1916, by the Press Pub. Co.)

BERLIN, March 23, via Amsterdam, March 25.—The German Government, I understand, will place no obstacles in the way of former President Roosevelt if he desires to visit Germany, but no fatted calf will be killed for him; no band will greet him at the border; The Kaiser won't come from headquarters personally to greet his one-time favorite in Berlin and the Colonel is likely to find the atmosphere around zero, which even his "delighted!" can't warm up.

But the Colonel may come. There will be no bars up against him at Bentheim or Warnemunde, two of the five doors to Germany, and he can be pretty certain of arousing interest and attention, some of which may make his ears burn.

The reports that friends of the Colonel have been feeling sentiment here as to whether he might visit Germany to study the cituation of the central Powers at first hand, or whether he would be barred as an undesirable in view of his attacks and stinging criticism of Germany, was confirmed by me today in governmental circles.

There was no disposition to say by whom these feelers had been made, but I know at least two of the sources.

"Yes, it's true that we have been sounded from several directions whether there would be any objection to Roosevelt visiting Germany," said a high Government official in answer to my query.

"There is absolutely no objection to Col. Roosevelt coming to Germany as a private person to study conditions here, the same as any other private person, if he desires to do so," the official continued. "Certainly, after the impulsive and unjust manner in which he has attacked and passed judgment on Germany and the German people in this struggle for existence, an attitude that hardly was consistent with so high an official as the ex-President of a friendly nation, the German Government has no reason to extend him a very warm invitation.

"But neither is the German Government so small or narrow-minded as to wish to bar America's former executive at the border or deny him the privilege of entering our country. He will receive no official attention or recognition. Not in my official capacity, but as a private German citizen, I will in fact be glad to receive him."

There was a gleam in the athletic official's eyes, and he rubbed his hands as if with gleeful anticipation.

"Your Excellency, may I be referee?" I asked.

"No, no; we won't go quite so far," he replied.

I asked if Roosevelt would be allowed to see anything. This official said:

"The Colonel would be given an opportunity to study things here if he desired, and to see things any other private person may see."

"Will he be allowed to go to Belgium?"

"I cannot answer that offhand."

In other governmental circles the fear was expressed that Roosevelt wouldn't receive a very popular welcome, which might make him an even more bitter enemy of Germany, and if any small incident occurred, it might be resented in America. On the whole, I encountered a rather neutral feeling in official circles.

The Colonel may come or he can stay away, just as he pleases.

HAIR OFTEN RUINED BY WASHING WITH SOAP

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

"THE COMING BOOM OF 1916-1917"

"I have made a great study of the mining question and have statistics not only of North America and Africa, but of the world, carefully compiled, relative to this proposition, so that I might not be in error.

"My investigation shows that mining has always offered greater inducements than any other business in the world to make quick and great wealth. This investigation further shows that farming is more risky than mining; that 29% more people lose money and fail in the mercantile business than in mining; that 41% more lose money in the manufacturing business than in mining, and 17% more men lose money in any other business than in mining.

"Mining is the backbone of wealth and the spinal column of all certainty. I believe that investment in good mining stocks is the most profitable investment and very much the safest, and it is the safest because the security is the ore itself, and the raw material of money is the security of one's money in a good mining proposition.

At present there is a big oncoming boom in Gold, Copper, Silver and Lead, owing to the depletion of Gold and Silver reserves in Europe and the great need for copper and lead for war munitions. If you are an investor and have $10, $20, $50, $500 or more idle funds, write today for the little Red Book I issue almost monthly called the "Investor's Bulletin." It is free. SUNDAY POST-DISPATCH'S REVIEW OF MARKET CONDITIONS

LOWER QUOTATIONS ARE THE RULE IN THE NEW YORK STOCK SPECULATION

Foreign Developments Give the Bears the Advantage on the Week.

PEACE TALK A FACTOR

Expert Opinion Differs as to Price Movement Should War End.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"It is not apparent exactly how the Stock Exchange interpreted M. Ribot's statement that 'the end of the war is in sight.' If that declaration was the primary cause of disturbance in this week's early market, it was slow in having its effect; for the French Finance Minister made his speech on Friday of last week and the collapse of 'war munition shares' began at precisely 2:45 p. m. Monday, on the New York Stock Exchange. Nor is it altogether clear what was the market's actual attitude towards the reported outline of terms of peace by the German Chancellor to Ambassador Gerard, and the communication of those terms by the Ambassador to Washington.

"The publication of this news, and of the inference that the Berlin authorities wished the United States to help in getting the proposals before the allied Governments, had no direct chance to upset the market. The dispatch containing that information and inference was published after the market's close on Tuesday, and before it opened again on Wednesday, official Washington had denied that Germany had asked our services as mediator.

The War Stocks Drop.

"To speculators for the rise in the munition shares, the incident chiefly resembled an exceedingly bad dream; or, to put the matter in Wall street vernacular, the speculators merely spent the intervening night in walking the floor with the war babies. Nobody seemed to trouble himself to examine Bethmann-Hollweg's alleged terms of peace. If this had been done, some doubt might have arisen, as to whether France and England would promptly lay down their arms, upon Germany's declaration that she would consent to exact no war indemnity from Belgium.

"There are even neutral communities which cannot rightly appreciate this magnanimity. That the reported offer to withdraw from Northeastern France if a money penalty were paid, and the intimation of willingness to release England from the iron grip of the German sea power, if the captured German colonies should be returned, might not inspire an instantaneous break of the allies to close with the Chancellor's proposal, did not seem to be very carefully considered. The main thing was, from professional Wall street's point of view, that a very disagreeable reminder had been made that some day the war might end. There were those who insisted that the correspondent, who suggested such a thing, either had been or ought to be discharged by his newspaper.

The Future Markets.

"Yet, after all, there are certain familiar traditions as to the attitude of investment markets towards the ending of a disastrous war. It is not all guesswork; we have precedent also. When one recalls what Wall street itself said about the war as an economic influence in August, 1914, this shrinking and shuddering at the prospect of its termination is at least a bit anomalous.

"Most people can understand how certain industries—powder factories, wagon and locomotive shops converted into war munition producers, metal mining concerns—will have doubts as to whether the process of readjustment to ordinary business will be altogether easy. But when even the ending of the Spanish War, of the Boer War, and of the Manchurian War, was received with an outburst of jubilation and rising prices on the stock exchanges, there will be somebody to ask whether the ending of this present prodigiously disastrous conflict will not make for financial hope and reassurance throughout the world.

"Perhaps we shall have to wait until experience tests the matter. As to whether that experience will be within our reach this summer or next autumn, or not for another year or two, that is still anybody's conjecture.

"Stocks closed the week rather sharply under the week's opening. Yesterday's market was uncertain at small declines."

LONDON REVIEW

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, March 25.—Financial London's attitude on the talk of immediate "peace overtures" by Germany is one of skepticism. Nevertheless, it is well known, by houses in touch with international affairs, that the deadlock at Verdun, after the German army's terrific losses, and after the magnifying of its initial successes, is producing great effect on the German public mind. But whether this will result in a popular determination that the war ought to be ended, and further loss of life averted, it is impossible to say.

Concerning your Stock Exchange attitude toward the peace rumors, the city believes that the time is at least approaching when peace, if concluded on a proper basis, will distinctly favor the economic interests of the United States. But an inconclusive and makeshift peace would, in our judgment, be disastrous—not least to the business communities of the civilized world.

The pending conference of the allies at Paris is important. But in the most influential and conservative quarters, a sharp distinction is drawn between the policies discussed. A program designed to further the trade interests of the allies, while preventing future German aggression, based on combined political and commercial activity, is distinctly favored. On the other hand any program based on the mere idea of revenge, through trade hostility, on return of peace, is deprecated.

England's Position Strong.

The most interesting fact in our own finance is the strong position shown by the national account for the fiscal year, which ends March 31.

It is likely to show total public revenue for the period £40,000,000 above the estimates. Even without further revenue from imports, the coming year is likely to show that the war taxation is yielding at the rate of £250,000,000 beyond the previous annual revenue.

Our financial problems naturally become more complex as the size of the army increases. That part of the situation, however, is receiving adequate attention. Moreover, the financing through loans is proceeding well. The daily demand for exchequer bonds may, in fact, render issue of another large loan unnecessary for a considerable period.

In some well-posted quarters, modification of Germany's submarine barbarities is anticipated. That opinion is partly based on the quantity of German shipping interned in neutral ports, especially those of South America. These, it is believed, may be seized on the argument of shortage in ocean tonnage, and the floating of these ships would make indiscriminate torpedo outrage awkward, because loss of a German ship under such conditions would invalidate Germany's claim for compensation.

This week's reduction of the rate on treasury bills, and the consequent decline of the London money market, should not be regarded as a policy preparatory to a new loan, but as indicating the desire to turn investors from treasury bills to bonds. Furthermore, the moderate decline in money rates—which will not go further at present—is justified by the improvement in the general position.

Irregularity marked trading on the local Stock Exchange yesterday, St. Louis Union Trust stock was sharply lower on transfers at $371, while Wagner Electric stock gained 1½ points on transfers at $224.50. National Bank of Commerce was firm at $101.50 bid, after a small sale at $102.50. Other bank and trust issues were quiet and steady.

United Railways 4s sold unchanged at $62 between sessions, but on the Exchange lost to $61.75 and closed with $61.50 bid, $62 asked. United Railways stocks were about steady on the quotations established. Cotton Compress sold at $35, or unchanged from the preceding transfer. Other miscellaneous shares were steady. Bonds reflected a fair investment demand at steady figures.

CATTLE PRICES SHARPLY HIGHER; SHEEP ALSO UP

Week's Trade in Livestock Is Active—Hogs Are in Demand.

RECEIPTS AT NATIONAL STOCKYARDS.

	Last. Week.	Prev. Week.	Year. Ago.

Buyers were disappointed last week because they were again unable to get enough beef. The runs were exceedingly light even for this season of the year, and the beef steers supply was far insufficient to fill available orders. There was a strong trade all week, and the market generally advanced 15c to 25c.

Best steers sold at $9.50, with several droves selling above $9.00, and the bulk of the sales made in the range of $7.50 to $8.50. Only medium quality steers predominated. The clearance of steers for the week was thorough.

There was also a good trade in butcher cattle. The buying contingent were strong operators and sellers consequently took advantage of the opportunity to push prices a little. At the close all grades of good cows and heifers were 15c higher and the only kinds suffering lack of competition were canners and cutters, which sold a big 15c lower than the close a week ago. Best choice heifers sold up to $9.00, with the bulk going from $7.00 to $8.00. Cows sold as high as $8.25, with good kinds going from $6.00 to $7.50.

There was a lower trade in vealers and the general decline amounted to about 50c. Top for the late week was $10.00, with bulk going from $9.00 to the top. Only a moderate supply of bulls found way to market last week. The demand was good and sellers encountered no trouble whatever getting steady to strong prices. The offering of stockers and feeders was light and with a strong, healthy demand for the quality kinds, prices were stronger. Best feeders sold up to $7.85, with stocker steers at $7.50. She-stuff also sold strong and the clearance for the week was thorough.

Southern Cattle Steady.

Southern cattle supply was light. The rank and file of the cattle came from Southeastern States, and only one load of Texans arrived. These sold steady. The string brought $8.20. Alabama steers at $7.60 were about the best Southeastern steers in this division, but a small bunch of Mississippi natives sold at $9.00, thereby establishing a new record on fed Mississippi steers. Steers sold strong all week and buyers gave them a warm reception, which naturally aided sellers in making a good market.

The common classes of miscellaneous stuff sold stronger for the week. The yearlings late lost some of the steam they put on early and closed a little lower than the opening, but are about steady with the corresponding time the previous week. Bulk of the yearlings sold from $4.50 to $4.75. Canners sold largely at $4.75, with cutters around a nickel a pound all week. There was strong active movement throughout the week, and sellers encountered no serious trouble turning their cattle at any period.

Just a moderate supply of hogs was received each day, and as the buyers were in need of the hogs the market was active at all times and prices averaged higher than the previous week. At the opening of the week the top of the market was $9.70, while the bulk of the hogs sold at $9.45@9.65. Later the top was up to $9.95, while the bulk of the hogs went at $9.65@9.85.

Butchers and shippers were good buyers most of the week, and the packers also displayed considerable eagerness for hogs at times. Southern hogs, especially the ear marked ones and of grades, were extremely poor sellers at all times. Real good, heavy hogs, weighing 240 pounds and over, were pretty scarce most days.

The good smooth hogs over 200 pounds, as a rule, sold at $9.65 and higher, while the plain and mixed grades went at $9.25@9.75; the throw-out rough packers, $8.75@9.00; best grade of lights, weighing less than 165 pounds, $9.35@9.75; fair offerings, $8.50@9.25; best pigs, under 125 pounds, $8.25@8.85; fair to medium offerings, $7.50@8.20, and the poorer grades at $6.75@7.40.

Sheep Receipts Small.

Sheep receipts were small and as there was a good demand the market was active and prices were on the highest basis ever known in this market. Very few sheep arrived and yearlings were scarce. Most of the lambs offered were from Colorado, although there were several loads of Western lambs on the market, fed in Missouri and Iowa.

Thursday a string of 509 head of lambs from the Poudre Valley, Colo., arrived, which weighed 80 pounds, and they brought $11.70, which is the highest price ever paid on this market for wool lambs. Other good lambs during the week went at $11.40@11.65, fair to medium grades $10.50@11.25, and the culls and others that were not any better than culls went at $9.50@10.25.

What few sheep were offered went at $8.25@8.50, and it was a great disappointment to buyers that the supply was not several times larger than it was. Bucks as a rule sold at $7.

Buyers for all classes of stock attended the auction last week, and numerous high-priced drafts as well as good Southern stock sold to advantage. Eastern buyers were the strongest contenders and paid as high as $250 per head for extra choice drafts, which was the week's extreme top. A good deal of Southern stuff, which was not in demand the preceding week, met fair inquiry and sold in a radius of $100 to $120. The big end of the receipts went to foreign agents, who took in the neighborhood of 1500 head, with demand for additional animals had they been available.

Prices on superior grade mules, 15 hands and up, were steady and owing to quality being a good deal better than common, all material was readily disposed of. According to dealers receipts this month are heavier than ever received during March.

COTTON MARKET PRICE RANGE IS SLIGHTLY LOWER

Trade on the Week Shows Uncertain Tone—Spots Are Firm.

The domestic situation in the cotton market seems to be taking care of itself, but the export outlook continues to hold attention to its uncertainty and its unsatisfactory volume. Reparts from New Orleans have been telling of considerable buying by Japanese, and this, of course, will not show up in the export figures at once.

So far as this country is concerned, the export movement as a rule tells of business that has already been consummated, of cotton that has already passed out of the reach of buyers. Just now the interest in export figures is to gauge what surplus may be left in this country at the end of the season.

During last week of the total exports of 87,149 bales, there were forwarded to France 29,042 bales, to the rest of the Continent 29,382 bales, to Great Britain 15,505 bales, and to China and Japan 13,220 bales. There is a considerable change here in the distribution of the cotton. For a while Great Britain has been getting the bulk of the cotton; the system of distribution insures regularity, apparently, and the cotton is going forward as needed. There is reason to hope, therefore, that exports will not fall much below an average of 100,000 bales per week, in spite of last week's small movement.

Liverpool Trade Is Quiet.

Liverpool, which seems to be the pulse of the foreign demand just now, is reporting small sales. For the week ending Friday the 24th, the total sales were 34,000 bales, of which 27,250 bales were American. These figures would seem to be discouraging enough without the weekly Manchester report of the cloth and yarn markets, which reads: "Cloth depressed, with more looms stopping; yarn dull and spinners losing ground."

This is a typical Manchester report, but the edge is taken off it and the small Liverpool sales by the report that 121,000 bales were forwarded to spinners, of which sum 98,000 bales were American; these are the greatest forwardings for some time, and indicate an activity that belies the sales and the gloomy Manchester report.

Prices in Liverpool have declined during the week. On Saturday, March 18, middling uplands were quoted at 7.81d., and yesterday at 7.69d., about $1.20 per bale less. This decline in price in Liverpool is probably due to cheaper ocean freights, which are reported from day to day. While there is denial from buyers of any material reduction in ocean rates, at the same time the rumors of cheaper rates are so persistent that there must be some ground for them. If the decline is due to cheaper freights, the price of cotton in this country should in no wise decline in sympathy with Liverpool. On the contrary, a cheapening of rates should prove a stimulus.

Spot Markets Active.

Spot markets in the United States have been fairly active. Reports of a slackening demand in the last few days have been circulated, but sellers of cotton claim that they have no difficulty in disposing of their offerings at full prices. Several days during last week the sales were quite large in such markets as Memphis and New Orleans, Houston and Savannah, while the smaller interior markets were active generally.

Prices during the week have changed but little, and there is an air of steadiness in all the markets. Quotations at the close of business yesterday were as follows: Galveston market quiet, middling 12.35c; New Orleans steady, 12c; Mobile steady, 11.69c; Savannah steady, 12c; Charleston steady, 11⅝c to 11¾c; Norfolk steady, 11.81c; Wilmington steady, 11⅝c; Little Rock steady, 12.13c; Houston steady, 12.30c; Augusta steady, 11.82c; Memphis steady, 12c; St. Louis steady, 12c.

Shedding some light on the strength of the spot situation is the New York quotation, which generally follows very closely all the fluctuations in the future market. On March 1 the quotation for middling in New York was 11.45c, while the closing price for the October option was 11.83c, and for December 11.97c. On March 25 the price for middling was 12.05c, while the closing quotation on October was 12.12c, and for December 12.27c. This is an enhancement in the proportionate value of spot cotton of 25 or 26 points in less than 4 weeks.

Winter Wheat Crop Is Damaged, Expert Finds.

Crop Expert George Le Count was on the Merchants' Exchange yesterday, after an extended trip over the Southwest winter wheat belt. He said that wheat in Texas has been reduced one-third by winter killing and that the remainder of the crop, while in fair condition, will need good weather until harvest. In Kansas and Oklahoma, the outlook is good, and rains of the last few days have relieved a drouth area in both states, where conditions were becoming a menace to good growth. In Missouri the crop is decidedly spotted, but is below the average on the acreage sown, and considerable wheat has been pulled from the ground by thawing and freezing. This wheat, however, may take root, Le Count declared, if warm, moist weather is general. The spring wheat condition is an uncertain one, as only 10 per cent of plowing in the Northwest and Canada was done last fall, and recent rains have added to the chances of a materially reduced acreage. All things considered, Le Count, as a long-range forecast, estimated the next wheat crop at about 750,000,000 bushels. This would compare with 1,000,000,000 bushels, the last crop.

Torpedoing of vessels with Americans aboard resulted yesterday in lower prices for wheat. The market closed unsettled, ⅛c to ⅝c down, at $1.05 for May and $1.03⅛@¼ for July. Corn gained ⅛c. Oats finished steady.

Wheat had rallied from an early decline, but when attention was turned to the notable increase of hostilities against shipping, the market headed sharply downgrade. The weakness at the outset was due chiefly to rains in the Southwest, where the lack of adequate moisture of late has been impending growth.

Advices, however, that prolonged winter conditions in Canada and a scarcity of labor there, were virtually certain to cause a big decrease in the extent of seeded acreage led afterward to an advance above yesterday's closing prices. It was explained that help from soldiers had not been obtained and that farm work on last year's scale appeared to be a physical impossibility.

Aggressive selling and a lack of support characterized the wheat market in the final hour of the session. In addition to the bearish effect of the destruction of vessels and of the chances of renewed tension between the United States and Germany, the influence of the breaking of the drouth seemed to be gaining in force, as many reports coming in from all sections of the rain-soaked territory, told of the revival of the crop.

Weather of a kind to retard the movement of the corn crop brought about strength in the corn market. A prospect of smaller receipts made speculative short sellers unusually inclined to week-end evening up of trades.

Trade Sentiment Bearish.

While sentiment in wheat has been bearish for some time, there are many good traders who think that unless peace should come in Europe that the recent decline has more than discounted the weak factors in the market.

These traders point out that while last year the actual supplies of wheat in the visible and on the farms were much less than now, the acreage was a record-breaker and conditions of the growing plant almost perfect. Now with supplies in sight and on the farms much larger, the winter wheat acreage is 11.3 per cent less than last year, or 115,000,000 bushels under last year's harvest, and since these figures were compiled by the Government winter killing has materially lowered the prospect over a wide area of the winter wheat belt.

It is also exceedingly unlikely that the spring wheat crop can equal anywhere near that of last year's record crop, especially as only about 10 per cent of plowing was done last fall, and wet weather in the Northwest the past 10 days is steadily interfering with the preparation for sowing the new crop.

In Canada the season also is backward, in the face of a light fall plowing, and indications are that it will be difficult to obtain hands to sow the crop, owing to the demands of the European war for men.

The season for crop scares also is at hand, and it will no doubt be found that the high-paid experts of Chicago commission houses will be sent into the fields to earn their salaries, as soon as the season is a little further advanced. Every year has its crop scares at the hands of these experts, and there is no reason to expect this year to be an exception to the rule.

SUSSEX LOSS OF LIFE PUT AT 50, INCLUDING SOME AMERICANS

French Ministry of Marine Issues Statement Declaring That Vessel Was Torpedoed.

SAME BELIEF EXPRESSED BY MANY OF PASSENGERS

11 of 25 Americans on Board Landed, Young Woman Is Declared to Have Been Killed, and 13 Others Unaccounted For.

PARIS, March 26.—The Ministry of Marine, in an official statement issued tonight, declared that the British Channel Steamer Sussex, damaged by an explosion yesterday afternoon on the way from Folkstone to Dieppe, was torpedoed and estimates the number of dead at about fifty, out of a total of 380 passenger and a crew of about 50 men.

Scarcely any doubt exists at the American Embassy tonight that the lives of some of the 25 Americans on the Sussex were lost. Twelve of them are unaccounted for. Mrs. Elizabeth Baldwin, of Baltimore, is reported to have been killed.

One hundred and forty-three survivors of the Sussex have arrived here and more are expected.

The text of the Ministry of Marine statement says:

"The British steamer Sussex, which carried about 380 passengers, was torpedoed in the channel on the 24th by an enemy submarine.

The captain observed a torpedo about 200 metres from the side and maneuvered to avoid it, but the vessel was struck in the forward part, which was destroyed.

"The vessel, however, remained afloat. The fall of the mast destroyed part of the antennae of the wireless; moreover, when an aerial wire was improvised the operator, by an error, reported an incorrect position, which misled the torpedo boats and patrol boats, and as a result retarded the arrival of help.

Found by Patrol Boat.

"The patrol boat Maria Therese, nevertheless, managed to find the distressed vessel, and brought back to Boulogne a majority of the passengers. Others were taken to England by British torpedo boat destroyers, which had arrived at the scene of the disaster at about the same time as the Marie Therese.

"The Sussex was towed to Boulogne by a steamer from that port and now is there in security.

"Unhappily, the explosion and the beginning of a panic among the passengers resulted in some victims. The exact number at this hour is not known, but it is estimated to be about 50."

The American Ambassador, William G. Sharp, sent Naval Lieutenant Bernard L. Smith by automobile to Boulogne this afternoon to investigate the cause of the disaster and assist any Americans who may need help.

The depositions of some of the American survivors who have arrived at Paris are being taken by the embassy; they will be forwarded to the State Department at Washington.

The weight of testimony is that the Sussex was torpedoed by a submarine without warning.

Woman's Saloon Forward.

The women's and children's saloon was forward where the vessel was struck. A single narrow companionway led from this saloon. There were only five private cabins on the boat—four on the deck and one between decks—hence the public saloons were crowded. The cross-channel steamers always are full because there are only three crossings each way weekly.

The officers of the Sussex warned the passengers quickly not to be alarmed, but a number of persons, mostly women, are said to have jumped overboard. Some were drowned and others with life preservers were picked up after considerable delay, in a few cases as much as four hours later.

13 of 25 Americans Unaccounted for; Miss Baldwin Is Said to Be Dead

LONDON, March 25.—There were six Americans among the 70 survivors of the Sussex who reached Dover today on a British destroyer. The majority of the survivors agree with the opinion of the French Admiralty that the Sussex was torpedoed by a submarine.

The Americans landed at Dover were Francis E. Drake, Edward H. Huxley, Edward Marshall, Charles T. Crocker, George H. Crocker and Wilder G. Penfield. G. H. Crocker and Mr. Penfield are in a hospital with fractured skulls.

The American survivors reported that Mrs. D. W. Hilton, T. W. Culbertson and Daniel Sargent had been rescued. Dispatches from Boulogne report the safe arrival there of John W. Hearley.

Miss Elizabeth Baldwin was killed by the explosion, according to those arriving at Dover, who state also that Miss Edna Hilton is missing.

Nothing has been heard of the other 12 Americans who were aboard the Sussex. However, as a great majority of the rescued passengers were landed at Boulogne, it is possible they may be among them.

It is estimated officially that the loss of life will reach 50. These were either killed by the explosion or drowned when one of the lifeboats capsized. Two passengers, a man and a woman, both Belgians, died in a hospital at Dover tonight.

It had been reported that Robert W. Bliss, secretary of the United States Embassy at Paris, and his wife were aboard the Sussex, but they are still in London.

American Survivor of Sussex Tells of Scenes on Board After Explosion

DOVER, March 25.—Edward Huxley, president of the United States Rubber Export Co., and Francis E. Drake, European manager of the company, are among the Americans rescued from the Sussex.

Huxley, who witnessed the catastrophe from the beginning to end, states that several passengers and a number of members of the crew undoubtedly were blown to atoms by the explosion.

Huxley told the Associated Press a remarkable story of the manner in which the forward part of the Sussex was torn off at the Captain's bridge. The remainder of the vessel was so little damaged that even the electric lights continued to burn.

Huxley described the scene on the Sussex after the explosion as horrible. He could give no estimate of the number of persons killed, further than to say that many lives were lost. He would venture no opinion whether the disaster was caused by a mine or a torpedo.

Says Ship Was Cut in Two.

"We left Folkestone at 10:30 p. m.," Huxley said. "The sea was smooth, the sun was shining and the steamer made good time.

"I was standing on deck, just aft of the Captain's bridge, chatting with Mr. Drake. I had just looked at my watch and noticed that it was 3:05 p. m. when suddenly there was a muffled explosion. The whole forward part of the ship seemed to rise in the air and was torn away completely from the rest of the steamer. The Sussex had been cut in two at the bridge as cleanly as though it had been done with a knife.

"For a short time there was pandemonium. Shrieks of women mingled with cries of the wounded.

WILLARD DEFEATS MORAN DECISIVELY, AFTER HARD FIGHT

Champion Retains His Title by Winning Seven Rounds Out of Ten.

WINNER INJURES HIS HAND

Neither Fighter Scores a Knockdown, but Challenger Bleeds From Cut.

EXPERT OPINIONS ON RESULT OF BIG BOUT

NEW YORK, March 25.

FOLLOWING are some opinions of the fight expressed tonight by experts present:

HARRY SHARPE, St. Louis Post-Dispatch—Willard won all the way in every department. He might even have knocked out Moran had he been extended.

BILL BROWN, official referee New York Boxing Commission—Willard won on points.

BOB FITZSIMMONS—Willard easily defeated Moran. The latter had no right to be in the same ring with the champion.

JAMES J. CORBETT: It was easily Willard's fight all the way. It was simply the old story of a good, big, clever man against a smaller and less scientific opponent.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN: Moran won by a mile. Willard is a counterfeit champion. Up there, with 58 pounds advantage in weight, he let a little man with a fighting heart bring the battle to him from the first tap of the first gong until the end of the final round. I can only see Willard is entitled to one round, the sixth, and in that he had only a slight shade.

Of the sporting writers of the various New York papers, not one gave Moran as good as a draw.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Jess Willard is still the heavyweight pugilistic champion of the world. In 10 rounds of fast fighting he defeated Frank Moran of Pittsburgh here tonight on points.

A crowd of about 13,000 persons paid approximately $150,000 to see the fight, and went away apparently satisfied with the result.

It was the greatest gathering Madison Square Garden had ever seen. Many women were in the throng. Willard broke his right hand in the third round, but blows from his fighting left kept Moran at a distance. Moran's best round was the third and his worst probably was the seventh. He was bleeding after the fifth round, and his left eye was almost closed at the end.

Willard was rushed to the ropes in the third round and received blow after blow on his face. The crowd sensed a knockout, but the finishing punch was lacking.

Moran put up a game fight. Most of the time he crouched and forced the fighting. Willard seemed slower on his feet than the challenger and appeared to have an unlimited capacity to take punishment. Moran scowled as he fought, but Willard smiled.

Moran Displays Pluck.

The chief feature of Moran's battle was his gameness. Although he could make no impression on Willard with his hardest swings, he fought steadily and courageously under a hail of left jabs and hooks which battered his face and almost closed his left eye toward the end of the bout. Several times Moran was dazed by the champion's smashes, but Willard, fighting with his usual lack of aggressiveness, did not appear to try particularly for a knockout.

Referee Charley White said after the bout that it was one of the cleanest at which he ever officiated and he had to caution the boxers only once. Moran landed dangerously low on Willard at one time in infighting, but the blow was unintentional and did not appear to distress Willard seriously. Willard, whose weight was announced as 259½ pounds in ring costume, towered over Moran, who weighed only 201¼ pounds.

Willard held Moran off with another straight left and uppercut with his right. The champion was cool and grinned at Moran's futile attempts to reach his jaw.

Moran worked industriously in the second session, boring in and trying to land overhead swings, either right or left, while the big fellow jabbed him hard and hooked a short right to the head. Moran found great difficulty in reaching the champion, but was persistent, taking several stiff lefts in the face, one of which cut his right eye.

Moran Flashes in Third.

The third and only round in which Moran had the advantage opened with the Pittsburger landing a hard left on the body. Willard sent his right with full force to Moran's ribs and put a straight left on the latter's nose. Frank rushed in again with three swings, landing his right three times over-hand on the head, but he did not seem to be hurting the cowboy.

Moran then swung his right to the DEAL UNDER WAY TO SELL AMERICAN CENTRAL INS. CO.

Control of Local Concern May Go to London Firm if Agreement Is Ratified.

UP TO THE STOCKHOLDERS

Final Action to Follow Return of President Campbell From the East.

Control of the American Central Insurance Co. of St. Louis, which has a capital stock of $1,000,000, and which does a fire insurance business in all parts of the United States and Canada, will probably be purchased by the Commercial Union Assurance Co. of London, under an agreement made yesterday in New York between Edward T. Campbell, president of the American Central, and Col. A. H. Wray, American manager of the English corporation.

A telegram announcing the agreement was received from Campbell last evening by William A. Blodgett of 4400 Lindell boulevard, vice president of the American Central. Campbell wired that the Commercial Union Assurance Co. had agreed to accept the figure fixed by the directors of the American Central for its stock.

As the stock is in the hands of about 600 individuals, a majority of whom are St. Louisans, the actual transfer of control will depend on whether the stockholders are willing to sell at the price fixed by the directors. The English company will not buy the stock, it is understood, unless it can get at least 51 per cent, to insure control, and it desires to get considerably more than 51 per cent.

Stock Advances on Exchange.

On the strength of rumors of an outside demand, offers for the stock have risen on the St. Louis Stock Exchange in the last week to 200. This means $100 a share, for the reason that the American Central stock is in shares of $50 each. The rise in the last week, in offers, has been about 20 points.

Vice President Blodgett would not say exactly what price had been fixed by the directors, but he indicated that it was about 280, or $140 a share. Alluding to the offers of 200, which he said had not brought any sales of consequence, he said:

"I would advise stockholders not to consider parting with their stock for less than 40 per cent more than the price which has been offered in the past few days."

He said President Campbell would be back in St. Louis this evening or tomorrow and that a circular would probably be issued, notifying stockholders of the exact situation. The annual meeting of stockholders is scheduled for April 19.

Blodgett said the Commercial Union Assurance was known as the largest general insurance company in the world doing insurance business of all classes in England and doing a fire insurance business in the United States. It controls the Ocean Accident and Liability Co. and the California Fire Insurance Co. Its total assets, Blodgett said, are $135,000,000.

For the past year, Blodgett said, the American Central has been working under an agreement with the London company, by which they divided their business. This has enabled the London corporation to assure itself of the volume of the business done by the American Central.

Organized by St. Louisans in 1853.

The American Central, Blodgett said, is one of the three largest fire insurance companies west of New York. It was organized in 1853 by St. Louisans, and has always been controlled by residents of this city. Its annual business is stated as amounting to $3,600,000 in net premiums, and its dividends are 12 per cent annually. A quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share, payable April 1, was recently voted. This is three per cent on a $50 par valuation. The company's assets, Blodgett said, are about $4,000,000, and its net surplus $1,035,000.

The company two years ago reduced its capital stock from $2,000,000 to $1,000,000, but Blodgett said this action had no particular significance. The officers, beside Campbell and Blodgett, are: Secretary, B. G. Chapman Jr.; assistant secretary, Conrad Roeder; directors, John F. Lee, O. H. Peckham, George L. Edwards, H. H. Haeussler, Thomas Wright, R. McK. Jones, A. H. Reller, E. K. Ludington and M. A. Armstrong, the last-named living in Kansas City. The company has 6000 agents.

$25,000 IN JEWELS STOLEN FROM MRS. C. W. WHITELAW

St. Louis Woman Loses Gems in Santa Barbara, Cal., Soon After Arrival From Honolulu.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 25.—A $25,000 jewelry theft, which became known today after efforts to conceal it had been successful for nearly a week, is engaging the attention of a score of detectives here. Mrs. Charles W. Whitelaw of St. Louis discovered the theft after returning from a motor trip. She had placed the jewelry in a trunk the night before.

The family had just returned from Honolulu and were staying here for a couple of weeks. It is believed the thief saw the gems on shipboard and followed the owner here.

President Warns Against Influences Trying to Force Intervention in Mexico

WASHINGTON, March 25.

PRESIDENT WILSON tonight issued a warning that "sinister and unscrupulous influences" are spreading alarmist reports about the Mexican situation with the object of forcing intervention by the United States "in the interest of certain American owners of Mexican properties."

In a formal statement the President told the people of the United States to be on their guard and not to credit such stories. He urged those who disseminate news to test the source and authenticity of every report from the border, and called attention again to the Government's announcement that the sole object of the punitive expedition now in Mexico was to punish Villa and his followers.

The news services supplying newspapers has been asked, the President said, to assist in keeping this view constantly before the Mexican people and the American people, to the end that the expedition should not be given the color of war.

The President's statement follows:

"As has already been announced, the expedition into Mexico was ordered under an agreement with the de facto Government of Mexico for the single purpose of making the bandit Villa, whose forces had actually invaded the territory of the United States, and is in no sense intended as an invasion of that republic or as an infringement of its sovereignty. I have therefore asked the several news services to be good enough to assist the administration in keeping this view of the expedition constantly before both the people of this country and the distressed and sensitive people of Mexico, who are very susceptible indeed to impressions received from the American press, and very ready to believe that those impressions proceed from the views and objects of our Government itself. Such conclusions, it must be said, are not unnatural, because the main, if not the only source of information for the people on both sides of the border is the public press of the United States.

Appeals to News Agencies

"In order to avoid the creation of erroneous and dangerous impressions in this way, I have called upon the several news agencies to use the utmost care not to give news stories regarding this expedition the color of war, to withhold stories of troop movements and military preparations which might be given that interpretation, and to refrain from publishing unverified rumors of unrest in Mexico.

"I feel that it is most desirable to impress upon both our own people and the people of Mexico the fact that the expedition is simply a necessary punitive measure, aimed solely at the elimination of marauders who raided Columbus and who infest an unprotected district near the border which they use as a base in making attacks upon the lives and property of our citizens within our own territory. It is the purpose of our commanders to co-operate in every possible way with the forces of Gen. Carranza in removing this cause of irritation to both Governments and to retire from Mexican territory so soon as that object is accomplished.

"It is my duty to warn the people of the United States that there are persons all along the border who are actively engaged in originating and giving as wide currency as they can to rumors the most sensational and disturbing sort which are wholly unjustified by the facts.

Intervention is Object.

"The object of this traffic in falsehood is obvious. It is to create intolerable friction between the Government of the United States and the de facto Government of Mexico, for the purpose of bringing about intervention in the interest of certain American owners of Mexican properties. This object cannot be obtained so long as sane and honorable men are in control of this Government, but very serious conditions may be created, unnecessary bloodshed may result, and the relations between the two Republics may be very much embarrassed. The people of the United States should know the sinister and unscrupulous influences that are afoot and should be on their guard against crediting any story coming from the border; and those who disseminate the news should make it a matter of patriotism and of conscience to test the source and authenticity of every report they receive from that quarter.

(Signed)

"WOODROW WILSON."

Now They Are "at Home"—Bridegroom Developed Disease Day After Elopment.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson Jr., are at home to their friends today at Staunton, Ill., literally and figuratively.

A month ago the couple slipped away to Carlinville and were married, announcing the wedding to the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hundley, when they returned that evening. Next morning it was discovered that Jackson had smallpox. The Hundley's fled to a hotel and the bride and bridegroom were quarantined in the home.

No charivari parties molested them, and they had the exclusive enjoyment of each other's society for one month. Now the quarantine is lifted and they have rented half of the J. H. Wyatt residence and gone to housekeeping.

MILITARY COMMITTEE STANDS ON SENATE'S ARMY BILL

Will Report Measure Tomorrow and Seek Harmony With House in Conference.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The Senate Military Committee has decided not to attempt to reconcile its army bill with the bill which already has passed the House, but will report the Senate bill as a substitute on Monday, for immediate action.

The differences between the two measures will be adjusted in conference, where the real legislation on the subject really will be agreed upon.

1338 U. S. RECRUITS IN 10 BAYS

Net Result So Far of Campaign to Add 24,000 Men to Army.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—A total of 1338 recruits have been added to the army in the last 10 days, the War Department announced tonight.

The campaign to add some 24,000 men to the fighting forces, bringing them up to maximum strength, began March 15, 10 days after American troops had been ordered into Mexico in pursuit of Villa.

VILLA IS SAID TO HAVE OUTWITTED PURSUERS BY SPLITTING FORCES

Leaves One Body to Check Carranza Troops and With Picked Men Flees Southward.

STRAGGLING PARTY OF HIS BANDITS SIGHTED

U. S. Cavalry Believed to Be Close Behind His Main Force Below Madera and Report of Clash Is Expected From Gen. Pershing at Any Time.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE AMERICAN EXPEDITION, COLONIA DUBLAN, Chihuahua, Mex., March 25.—(Via Wireless to Columbus, N. M.)—A straggling band of Villistas was sighted about 50 miles south of here today by American forces. It was evident, however, that Villa himself was not in the party, which consisted only of a few men and no engagement resulted. There has been no clash involving American troops since the expedition started.

Reports of a battle yesterday between Carranza troops and Villistas at Namiquipa, approximately 75 miles south of here, were received today. There was no indication of the number of men engaged or of the result. Villa is believed to have only a few men with him, possibly some reports indicating that his total force approximates only about 300 men. Army men have expressed their gratification today at the manner in which troops under the direction of Carranza are co-operating with the American column.

EL PASO, Tex., March 25.—Villa has outwitted his pursuers by splitting his forces, leaving one body to hold in check the Carranza troops in the neighborhood of Namiquipa, while he himself, at the head of a picked force, is trying to break through the lines of his enemies south of Madera, according to information brought here today by Americans arriving from Pearson and Casas Grandes.

This information redoubled the interest with which word is awaited from Gen. Pershing that the American troops have clashed with the Villa followers. According to reports from usually reliable sources, coupled with what is officially known as to the progress of the American columns, American cavalry reached Madera yesterday and should be close on the heels of the fugitive bandit today.

From Madera south as far as Tutuaca, a distance of about 30 miles, a mountain trail winds through the Sierra Madres. At Tutuaca it bends sharply to the southeast until it is lost in the wild and barren country south of Minaca.

Known as "Pancho's Road."

This trail was known for years as "Pancho's road." It was popularly believed to have been broken by the bandit, and its intricacies are known to few but him. No wagons possibly can pierce the desolate mountain region through which the road runs. Few Americans are known to have penetrated the district.

Apart from the keen anticipation of news that Mexican soldiers were in reach of their prey, the border was mostly interested today in the report from Washington that an agreement had been reached in substance between the first chief and Washington which would permit Gen. Funston to use the Mexican railroads. At Fort Bliss activity was redoubled to perfect arrangements for the moving of supplies and equipment to Juarez, to be sent south on the Mexican Northwestern Railroad.

Could Start Supplies Quickly.

Officers in the Quartermaster's Department declared today that they could start a tide of supplies of all sorts to Gen. Pershing's base at Casas Grandes within 24 hours after word was received that permission to use the railroad had been granted.

The using of the Mexican lines by the Americans is expected to be the supreme test as to whether friction with the Mexican people is to be averted and real co-operation between the Carranza forces and the United States expedition established.

The alarmists on the border were unusually quiet today. Threats made by the local authorities that persons caught spreading false and alarming reports would be summarily dealt with appeared to have its effect and there are fewer wild stories than usual being circulated in the bar rooms and other haunts of the "rumoristas."

The report that Gen. Luis Herrera is not in accord with Carranza over the American invasion again is brought to the border and has been sent to the state department from here. This time he is reported to be marching toward Parral, his old home, with 1500 of his loyal followers, to retire from active military operations there.

Won't Help Catch Villa.

He is said to have told Gen. Carranza that he never would co-operate with an alien force in catching a fellow countryman and declared that he would refuse to further obey the first chief's order regarding the co-operation with the Americans.

Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, who owns the great Babricora ranches near Madera, has placed at the disposal of the American army all of the cattle, supplies and wagons at this ranch. The offer was made to Gen. Pershing by wireless late yesterday afternoon by John C. Hayes, Mrs. Hearst's manager of her ranch properties.

Permission to Use Mexican Railroad Awaited Impatiently by Funsto

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 25.—Carranza's delay in permitting the movement into Mexico over the Northwestern Railway of supplies for the American troops has created impatience at army headquarters that today was hardly disguised. The Quartermaster Department has proceeded on the assumption that finally Carranza will authorize the use of the railroad and has sent to El Paso a quantity of stores for immediate shipment.

Failure to send supplies through Juarez over the railroad into the country where the troops now are operating would not stop the campaign, but it was admitted that it would materially retard Gen. Pershing's activities.

Already there has been so much change in the positions in the mobile forces dispatched from Casas Grandes that the logical railroad to use f getting supplies to a part of them would be the National, which goes straight from Juarez to Chihuahu instead of making the wide swing to the west that the Northwestern does. The Northwestern is the logical line for supplying troops near Casas Grandes, but since many of them now are more than a hundred miles farther south, Gen. Funston believes that the time could be saved by routing the stores over the National, especially since many repair would have to be made on the Northwestern south of Casas Grandes.

Whether Gen. Funston requests the Government to get permission to use the National, however, will depend upon the answer to the request already made, he said. He admitted the desirability of using the direct route, but recognized also the isability of compounding his request.

There is no confirmation of a report that Gen. Pershing is already using a section of this road.

The utilization of the flying corps in carrying dispatches today between the border and the army base in Mexico was regarded at headquarters with keen satisfaction.

Wireless Not a Success.

The wireless has not been a success and in the absence of telegraph wires, Gen. Pershing has been unable to render detailed reports, and for days a at a time no report of any character.

Uneasiness occasioned by the lack of news from cavalry columns was evident today at Gen. Funston's headquarters, although he displayed an optimistic confidence in Gen. Pershing's campaign methods. His longing for more news, however was unconcealed. Monday Gen. Pershing reported the dispatch of the three cavalry columns southward from Casas Grandes. Friday he reported that two of them were in the vicinity of Namiquipa. That is the net amount of official information that has reached headquarters.

The greater part of the Fifth Cavalry should have reached Columbus by Monday and soon afterward the Twenty-Fourth Infantry is expected. These two bodies with the exception of one battalion will be sent forward immediately and will be used by Gen. Pershing in strengthening his lines of communication.

Further reference to difficulties he is having in getting his supplies was contained in messages from Gen. Pershing to Gen. Funston late today. The messages were brought by aeroplane to Columbus for transmission by wire to headquarters here. Gen. Pershing said that the roads were so heavy along his line of communication that only a small percentage of the supplies the auto trucks could carry was being moved.

The communications from Gen. Pershing were said not to have contained any information regarding the whereabouts of Villa or the operations directed against him.

OFFICIALS PLEASED WITH FUNSTON'S MEXICAN MESSAGE

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—While officials described the military situation in Mexico as serene tonight the day's developments in Washington forecast a political struggle here next week with the administration's Mexican policy as the storm center.

The President had before him today the most reassuring advices received from the border since the American columns began their pursuit of Villa. They were sent by Gen. Funston and they satisfied army officials that the Carranza Government was doing all in its power to aid the pursuit.

At the Capitol, Senate Republicans were called into conference by their leader, Senator Gallinger, to discuss the border situation. They will meet again Monday, but it was admitted by those present today that the sense of the meeting was that steps should be taken to compel the sending of additional troops to guard the border states.

In effect that would mean the calling out of the national guard, as almost all the mobile regulars now are on the border or in Mexico.

Gen. Funston's message was a comprehensive review of that situation on the border and in the region where Gen. Pershing's columns are believed to be closing in on the bandits. Secretary Baker announced that it stated positively, as a matter of military information, that there had been no strengthening of Carranza garrisons at Mexican border towns since March 10, the day after the Columbus raid.

While its text was not made public, it was learned that the message also gave the location and strength of Carranza garrisons, not only along the border, but throughout all the territory involved in the pursuit of Villa. The geographical location of these forces in relation to the American expeditionary columns was made clear and the extent of the co-operation they are giving. Officers, after reading the dispatch, said the situation in Mexico was most satisfactory.

Officials also were impressed by Gen. Obregon's statements, telegraphed to the State Department today. The Carranza War Minister and Military Chief said there was no friction between the two Governments, that adequate Mexican forces were co-operating with Gen. Pershing, but that more would be sent if necessary.

The United States marine transport, Hancock, en route from Philadelphia to Key West, was ordered by wireless today to proceed to Galveston and remain there indefinitely. Naval officers explained that this was done so the Hancock would be available should conditions in Mexico make advisable the removal of Americans. Continued reports of satisfactory conditions in Mexico would make it unnecessary to use the Hancock.

Report of Gen. Herrara's Defection Officially Denied.

QUARETARO, March 25.—The War Department officially denied today the persistent rumors that Gen. Luis Herrera had gone over to Villa. The report of this and other alleged defections is said to be the work of reactionaries for the purpose of complicating the situation.

The pursuit and punishment of Villa [illegible] is becoming more rigorous. Luis Gutierrez today reported the capture and execution at Jiminez of [illegible] Santana, a Villa General. Gutierrez's reports represent that Villa's forces are being closely pressed and that the Mexican troops are tightening the [illegible] around them each day.

BRIDE AND HUSBAND INDICTED

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 25.—Mrs. Charles Harrison, 15-year-old bride and niece by marriage to United States Senator Charles Culberson of Texas, was indicted with her husband today for the murder of William Warren, hotelkeeper, last December.

The indictment followed a grand jury investigation after Mrs. Harrison made, according to the police, a confession of the crime, saying Warren had wronged her.

ARMY IN MEXICO BESET BY SNOW AND SANDSTORM AFTER OPPRESSIVE HEAT

Headquarters Camp Field Hospital Without a Patient, Despite Heavy Marches and Radical Temperature Change.

By B. C. Utecht.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS U. S. ARMY IN MEXICO, March 24, via Aero to Columbus, N. M., March 25.—The United States troops here today battled with a sand and snowstorm. Soldiers were busy cutting boughs and trees with which to build windshields around tents and mess quarters. The sand storm has been so severe that one could see but two yards away, and mess has proceeded under utmost difficulties, sand filling utensils or wind blowing the food away.

There is plenty of wood here, and the men have built fires in all parts of the camp, in an effort to keep warm. The gale, according to natives, is the worst experienced here for many years. Ten newspaper correspondents shivered last night and most of today when they might have been more comfortable. A large, cozy tent had been put up for them, but, not being informed of it, all correspondents slept under a canvas with all sides open to wind and sand. In the middle of the night the tent fell. After shivering around an open fire until noon, they were asked why they had not occupied the tent erected for their comfort.

Followed Oppressive Heat Wave.

Only the day before the camp just north of here was suffering from heat. Despite the great change in temperature there has been no sickness. The cold spell, of course, put a sudden stop to bathing. Many of the soldiers before entering Mexico had been led to believe it to be a land of warmth and sunshine, and as their first few days in this country corroborated this belief, to say they were astonished at the severe cold and snow is putting it mildly. Moreover, as there is no weather man here to say when warmer temperature will come, the troops are preparing for a siege of it. The sand storm has continued for 48 hours, and shows no signs of abating. Officers, men and correspondents today sought out hollow places where the wind had less force and where they built fires and stood around with blankets thrown about their bodies, in the comfortable Mexican fashion.

Brigadier-General Pershing's announcement that United States troops had penetrated 175 miles south of here came as a surprise, as it had been supposed they were but a short distance below here. Officers expressed much satisfaction over the progress of the advance, but they are not expecting any speedy capture of Villa. Gen. Pershing himself says that he does not look for the advance force immediately to find Villa, who is supposed to be gathering forces. Some of the scouts who are with the expedition have told me that Villa is compelling Mexicans to join his army on his southward flight and that he has killed several, their bodies having been found. These scouts also report that Villa is dividing his band. No force of Americans nor any of the supply wagon trains, however, have been molested in the least, every wagon and motor truck either going north empty or running south full of supplies. Every day the traffic between the field headquarters and the Columbus base increases.

Negroes Most Cheerful.

Every regiment and troop is anxious to be the captor of Villa, including the cavalry negroes. The latter are the happiest and most cheerful of the expedition. Every night the negro cavalrymen gather around their campfires and sing good old American airs and plantation melodies that win attention of the entire camp. And the singing usually breaks up with a session at "rolling the bones."

The organization less active than any other at the headquarters camp is the field hospital. It hasn't a single case on hand, which is a remarkably good record in view of the long marches and changes in temperature.

The famous Corralitos Ranch through which I passed with a troop, is deserted save one Mexican attendant. This property is owned by E. D. Morgan of New York, and was looted by Villistas. There is not a horse or cow on the place. It was here that Villa killed a family of five Mexicans and one Russian recently on his flight from Columbus. This ranch has its own little church and is surrounded by homes for employes.

We are passing over the highway where Villa fled to Casas Grandes and evidences of his hurried trip are occasionally seen. Debris of campfire, with remnants of Mexican clothing, a cartridge belt, a note book, perhaps a dead Mexican and other signs, show plainly which way the bandit leader went.

The newspaper men have shared the hardships of the soldiers on the marches. As the main object was speed, all superfluous baggage had to be left behind, and as a result most of the writing has been done by daylight, on account of lack of lights. Sometimes the news has been written by campfire light, occasionally by candles, and rarely by the comparatively luxurious glare of a lantern.

The aeroplane squadron which accompanied Gen. Pershing's expedition has made good thus far in the dangerous work assigned to it. Flying conditions among the Mexican mountains have presented unusual difficulties, and in surmounting them some of the men have had thrilling experiences.

One aviator, finding it advisable to leave his machine to make some topographical investigation, walked 36 miles, part of it at night. He followed a railroad part of the way. He did not care to strike a light, but was able to make some map observations by walking close to a burning railroad tie. His observations being interrupted by someone shouting to him, the aviator slid down the embankment and then proceeded in the darkness.

During the daylight the aviator climbed hills where not another person was visible. From the hills he watched many miles of valleys. Once, when looking for some troops, he saw the dust which they raised many miles away, without the aid of glasses, but even with his glasses he could not penetrate the dust clouds to learn what sort of troops they were until he was several miles closer to them.

Problems in Flying Over Mountains.

Aviation throughout the territory where Villa may hide, differs from the problems which aviators find at home. To begin with, the fliers rise from the ground on table lands, where the altitudes average nearly one mile, so that by the time they are up to the proper scouting height they are working under flying conditions which in lower altitudes would not be encountered in observation. The aviators have found that skillful handling of aeroplanes will overcome many of the difficult aspects of mountain flying.

Mountain air currents have been found more troublesome than plain winds. A good flying day on the plains or the table lands may be a bad day in the mountains. Over the mountain tops the aviators find air currents which shoot high above the peaks, as the wind is deflected upward along the slopes.

Newspapers Limited to 25 Words a Day From Their Correspondents

By Associated Press.

FIELD HEADQUARTERS, United States Army in Mexico, March 24, by aeroplane to Columbus, N. M., March 25.

OWING to limited wire and wireless facilities the total number of words which may be sent from here by correspondents is 250 or 300 daily. This number of words has been divided equally among the correspondents in the field, so that with the present wire limitations, the number of words which any newspaper may receive by wire during a day is about 25.

The censors, in announcing this limitation, said military necessities precluded any larger use for the present of the army wires, which are the only means of communication from the field headquarters or the front.

Except the brief daily dispatches by wireless, all news passing the censor is carried back by army mails.

Brigadier-General Pershing, in a talk to the newspaper men, asked them not to use the names of officers nor of military units. He explained in a general way the movements now being made against Villa. However, he cautioned the correspondents specifically against using any of this information.

GERMANS TELL OF VERDUN BEING FIRED BY SHELLS

Berlin Reports Lively Artillery Duels in the Meuse District.

BERLIN, via London, March 25.—Verdun was in flames today, according to the official statement by the German Army Headquarters.

The official statement says:

"In the Meuse district artillery duels were especially lively and in the course of these engagements Verdun was set on fire.

"Eastern theater: West of Jacobstadt, the Russians again opened an attack after having brought forward fresh Siberian troops and after strong artillery preparation had been made. The attack broke down with heavy losses to the Russians. Minor enemy advances southwest of Jacobstadt and southwest of Dvinsk were easily repulsed."

Paris Reports Artillery Activity at Three Points Near Verdun.

PARIS, March 25.—The official communication issued by the War Office tonight says of the Verdun fighting:

"Quite intense artillery activity has been displayed to the west of the Meuse against our second lines, to the east, in the region of Cote Du Poivre and Douaimont, and in the Woevre in the sectors of the Meuse hills. There was no infantry action during the day.'

Sussex Loss of Life Put at 50, Including Some Americans

Some 15 or 20 persons were drowned by jumping overboard.

"It soon became apparent that the after part of the ship, which was maintaining an even keel and holding steady, was in no immediate danger of sinking and the panic virtually ceased. Passengers then set about giving first aid to the injured and helping to get the boats lowered. A number of injured persons were buried in the debris near the bridge.

"Seven persons, all terribly injured, were dug from the wreckage and several badly mangled bodies were found. Undoubtedly other bodies were torn to pieces.

Five Boats Were Lowered.

"There had just been passengers in the forward part of the ship, which was blown away, and I believe a large number of the crew were below in this section as few of them were seen. All those on the forward part of the ship undoubtedly perished.

"As soon as possible boats were lowered, passengers assisting. Five boats were put over. The first three had about 30 or 40 persons in each, there being about an equal number of men and women. The fourth boat turned over and about 12 persons clambered on top. We threw over chairs, rafts and everything which would float to assist them, but only about four of them were rescued, so far as I know. The fifth boat had only four or five persons aboard and this boat appeared to be waterlogged. These boats stayed near the ship and at the end of an hour the captain called them back and the people were taken on board again.

"It was 11:30 p. m. before we were able to get help. At that time a French trawler came alongside and took off all but three of the women and about half of the men. At about the same time a British torpedo boat came alongside. Her commander came on board and took charge of affairs.

"The passengers did everything possible for the wounded on board the Sussex. An American woman doctor did fine work and Mr. Penfield, although suffering from a badly shattered leg, directed the first aid for others. His heroism was magnificent. He is among the injured in the Dover hospital.

Persons Near Bridge Escape.

"Miss Baldwin was standing near the bridge with Penfield and a young American who was on his way to join the Red Cross when the explosion occurred. Both she and Penfield miraculously escaped death, but their companion, whose name is not known has not been seen since the disaster, so far as I have learned.

"It is remarkable, I think, that the electric light plant was not put out of commission and that there was steam upon the vessel all the time. The engines working the propellers, however, were out of commission. That the after part of the Sussex did not fill probably was due to the fact that many mail bags were piled against the bulkheads when the mail was put on board, the bulkheads thus being reinforced.

"There were six lifeboats on the Sussex. Only two of these were swung out, ready to lower, at the time of the accident. These were the two forward boats.

"As to the cause of the explosion, I would not venture an opinion. As we were leaving Folkestone we passed a transport at her pier. If a submarine was responsible for the damage to the Sussex, it is possible the undersea craft mistook us for this transport. If we struck a mine, we must have hit it full on the prow of the Sussex."

Speaking of the damage to the Sussex, Huxley said that the dining saloon was demolished.

British Steamer 342 Feet Long Is Torpedoed.

LONDON, March 25.—A Lloyd's report says the British steamship Salybia has been sunk and the passengers and crew were saved.

The Salybia was 342 feet long and 45 feet beam. The vessel is reported as having left Barbados March 3 for London.

Four American Survivors Arrive at Dover; Two Go to Hospital.

DOVER, March 25.—Four American survivors of the Sussex mishap have arrived here. They are G. H. Crocker, Charles T. Crocker, Edward Marshall and Wilder G. Penfield. G. H. Crocker and Mr. Penfield are in a hospital with fractured skulls. Charles Crocker and Mr. Marshall are uninjured.

Reports received here say that Mrs. Hilton, Daniel Sargent and T. W. Culbertson were seen aboard a French trawler. It is feared, according to the same reports, that Miss Hilton was drowned when a lifeboat capsized. As to the cause of the disaster, Marshall, a newspaper correspondent, said: "I have no doubt the steamer was torpedoed."

Charles Crocker said that Miss Elizabeth Baldwin was killed by the explosion which partly wrecked the steamship. Crocker said that his cousin, D. H. Crocker, and Miss Baldwin, were standing at the bow leaning over the rail when the vessel was struck. Miss Baldwin was killed and D. H. Crocker badly injured, Crocker stated.

American on Sussex Was on Way to Join Ambulance Corps in France.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 25.—T. W. Culberson, whose name appears in the list of Americans on board the Sussex, left here two weeks ago to join the American Ambulance Corps in France. He was a Princeton graduate of 1913 and a son of the late J. D. Culberson, a leading manufacturer of this district.

CONSUL GIVES NEW LIST OF AMERICANS ON SUSSEX

Among the Names Given Out by the U. S. Consulate in London Is That of Gertrude W. Warren Said to Be of This City.

By Associated Press.

LONDON, March 25.—A corrected list of the American passengers aboard the cross-channel steamer Sussex which was damaged by an explosion on the way from Folkestone, England, to Dieppe, France, yesterday with a possibility of a large loss of life, compiled from the records at the American Consulate in London, is as follows:

Gertrude W. Warren of St. Louis, Mo. J. Mark Baldwin, Elizabeth F. Baldwin and Helen G. Baldwin of Baltimore, Md.; Alice Ruiz of Lyon, Colo.; Edna F. Hilton, Dorothy W. Hilton, Gertrude L. Barnes, Frances E. Drake, Edward H. Huxley, Edna S. Harde, D. S. Harde, Henry S. Beer, Ida Beer, Joshua Dickinson Armitage, Edward Marshall and Edna Hale, all of New York; Calliope Anastasia Fennel, New York; Tingle W. Culbertson, Lewisburg, Pa., Daniel Sargeant of Wellesley, Mass.; John H. Hearley, Albany, N. Y.; Samuel S. Bemis, Bedford, Mass.; Wilder G. Penfield of Hudson, Wis.; Charles Thomas Crocker Jr. and George H. Crocker Jr., Fitchburg, Mass.

Prof. Baldwin's wife and daughter arrived in England on the steamship New York.

Mrs. Hilton is a daughter-in-law of a United States judge. Mr. Sargent is a Harvard man and Mr. Culberson is a Princeton man.

The American referred to as J. Mark Baldwin is undoubtedly Prof. J. Mark Baldwin of Baltimore and Paris. Prof. Baldwin is an author and educator, and formerly occupied chairs in the faculties of Princeton University, Lake Forest (Ill.) University and the University of Toronto.

Wilder Penfield's home is in Hudson, Wis. He won a Rhodes scholarship at Oxford from New Jersey in 1913.

Edward Marshall, who has been connected with various American journals and news syndicates in an editorial capacity and as European correspondent, has been Europe for several months engaged in writing war correspondence for newspapers in this country. He is a New Yorker.

The Miss Barnes mentioned among the Americans on the Sussex is believed to be Miss Gertrude L. Barnes of New York. Miss Barnes sailed for Europe on the Holland-American liner Niew Amsterdam on Feb. 29.

No trace of Gertrude W. Warren could be found in the city directory or otherwise in St. Louis.

HOW TO BE SLIM

If you are too fat and want to reduce your weight 15 or 20 pounds, don't starve and weaken your system, or think you must always be laughed at on account of your fat, but go to Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. or any good druggist and get a box of Oil of Korein capsules, take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week and note what a pleasant and reliable method this is for removing superfluous fat from any part of the body.

It costs little, is absolutely harmless, and a week's trial should convince anyone that it is unnecessary to be burdened with even a single pound of unsightly fat.—ADV.

ENGLISHMAN AND SUSSEXTORPEDOED SAY U. S. CONSULS

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The channel steamer Sussex, damaged yesterday in the English Channel, and the British steamship Englishman, destroyed by an explosion, both carrying American citizens, were torpedoed, according to consular reports received by the State Department today. Flat statements that torpedoes were responsible were made in both cases, but the Consuls did not give the source of their information.

Four Americans, employed as horse handlers, were aboard the Englishman. None was among the rescued landed at a British port.

Coming at a time when the State Department was awaiting the result of an investigation of the sinking of the Dutch liner Tubantia and considering affidavits regarding an alleged submarine attack upon the French ship Patria, the destruction of the Englishman and the damaging of the Sussex raised again the possibility of complications between the United States and the central European Powers.

FIRE DAMAGES BUILDING OF THE BALDWIN PIANO CO.

Firemen Run Aerial Laddder to Fifth Floor When It Is Reported Persons Are in Place.

Fire which started about 9:45 o'clock, last night, in the repair room on the fifth floor of the Baldwin Piano Co., 1111 Olive street, did considerable damage to the building and furnished downtown St. Louis the spectacle of firemen raising an aerial ladder to the fifth floor and bursting into the flaming room when it was reported there were persons up there.

It was learned that about a dozen persons had been in the building attending a rehearsal, on the fourth floor and that all had left the building.

Several engine companies responded to the alarm and street car traffic on Olive street was interrupted for nearly an hour. A big crowd gathered in the street.

When the fire was discovered there were on the first floor two salesmen, the wife of one of them, a chauffeur and the elevator boy. These got out.

O. S. Boyd of Webster Groves is manager of the firm, which has its headquarters in Cincinnati. He thought the damage would be slight because the salvage corps arrived in time to cover all the pianos. The fire was confined to the fifth floor and the damage below was due to water. He said there was insurance on the stock. Fire Chief Henderson estimated the damage to the building at about $1500.

STOP CATARRH! OPEN NOSTRILS AND HEAD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Relieves Head-Colds at Once.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed and you can't breathe freely because of a cold or catarrh, just get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head, soothing and healing the inflamed, swollen mucous membrane and you get instant relief.

Ah! how good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear, no more hawking, snuffling, blowing; no more headache, dryness or struggling for breath. Ely's Cream Balm is just what sufferers from head-colds and catarrh need. It's a delight.—ADV.

SOCIALIST, CALLING FOR PEACE, CREATES ROW IN REICHSTAG

"There'll Be Neither Victors Nor Vanquished in This War," Cries Herr Haase.

WILD SCENE FOLLOWS

Leader of Small Wing Predicts Bankruptcy for Europe in Keeping Up Conflict.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and the New York World.
(Copyright, 1916, by Press Pub. Co.)

BERLIN, March 24, via Amsterdam, March 25.—"There will be neither victors nor vanquished in this war. We cannot bring our enemies to their knees any more than they can Germany. Europe is steering in the direction of utter impoverishment and bankruptcy. What sense is there in a continuation of the war?"

With these words, Herr Haase, successor to Herr Bebel as chairman of the German Social Democratic party, but himself a member of a small minority in the Reichstag, created one of the wildest storms in that body today just before adjournment that the German National Parliament ever has seen.

Free-for-All Fight Threatened.

Herr Haase stole a march on his own party, and not only took the House completely by surprise, but for the time it looked as if it would come to a free-for-all fight between a few Haase followers and a majority of the wing of Socialists who became furious at the trick which they shouted Haase had played on them.

An emergency budget had just been read. Scheidemann, leader of the majority wing of the Socialists, announced that with reservation this could not be construed to have any bearing on the Socialists' attitude toward the main budget. He declared that his party approved this special budget.

Touching upon the censorship and the condition of martial law which had rubbed the fur of the Reichstag, including the Socialists, still more the wrong way, Herr Haase suddenly took up the question of war peace.

"Because of the favorable military situation of the war," Herr Haase said, "it would, a considerable time since, have been possible for the Government to offer a hand in peace, thereby serving the will of the peoples of all countries, which are manifesting that desire more and more." Then he continued by shouting:

"There would not be victor nor vanquished, but only impoverished bankrupt nations and peoples."

Bedlam broke loose as Herr Haase started to paint the military and economical situation in the blackest colors. Heine and Keil of his own party, shouted that he was talking without their approval, and that the Socialist members of the Reichstag therefore had no right whatever to speak for them. Herr David, one of the principal Socialist leaders, shouted:

"Our words tend toward a prolongation of the war and serve the purpose of the enemy."

Is Called a Coward.

Sacse, another Socialist leader, declared to Haase:

"You coward, you did not have the courage to give your views in party conference. It is a contemtible trick."

Members of his own party pressed forward to the speaker, and, with the shouting, wild gesticulations, waving arms and infuriated cries, it had appearance at times as if they were about to rush Haase off his feat. Hisses came from the rest of the house. Through it all the President's bell kept sounding for order.

Herr Haase finally succeeded in making himself heard again, but he did not get far.

"You don't want to hear the truth," he cried. "That long ago it was demonstrated the war was a great miscalculation is not disputed by the capitalists of any of the countries.

"One could assume that only complete fools and conscienceless persons would strive for world dominion."

President Kempf declared Haase out of order and asked the house to decide whether he should be given permission to continue. The house overwhelmingly voted that the privilege of the floor be withdrawn.

Minister Expresses Regret.

Herr Helfferich, the only Minister present, took the floor.

"I can only express my deepest regret and strong resentment before the house and the German people that a man who is representative of the German people can utter words which in this grave hour can have no other effect than to strengthen the heart and backbone of our enemies," he declared. "If there is anyone today, after all of the heavy burdens, but also after all of the big successes and victories we have achieved in the field, who contends that the German people lack confidence that we will be victorious, there is nothing strong enough in which such person can be characterized.

"If you want to know how the German people think about it, ask those who have just subscribed to the 10,600,000 mark ($2,650,000) war loan, who include many workmen and small savers. The German people show thereby that the views and sentiment of Heer Haase are not their views or sentiments."

Herr Scheidmann, one of the principal leaders of the majority Socialists, after saying that the debate on the main budget would afford an opportunity to discuss the censorship, war and peace questions, and that the approval today of the special budget was purely formal, so that the Government could continue business, said:

"I want to declare, and I assume that the majority, through the mouth of Herr Haase, as declaring on our part that we are making good what we always have said, namely, that we will not forsake or abandon the Fatherland in its hour of need."

This declaration was received with great applause by the entire house except the corner of the minority Socialists.

Herr Haase again got to his feet and tried to defend himself against Herr Helfferich's utterance.

"I want to say that they are the best patriots who, after 20 months of carnage, take a stand for the reconciliation of the people and for ending this war."

The tremendous tumult again broke loose. Numerous Socialists, including Dadid, Scheidmann, Heine, Sachse and others, surrounded Haase. In the midst of this scene, being unable to restore order, President Kaempf announced an hour's recess. During the recess rows among the Socialists continued, loud, bitter, intense.

Heer Haase, who is one of the eldest members of the party and belongs to a small radical wing, was severely assailed for not keeping the party confidence agreement and precipitating a row in the party, the possible consequences of which may be far reaching for the solidarity of the Socialists.

FAMILY PLAN TO HAVE DR. WAITE PLEAD GUILTY

Prosecutor to Be Asked to Accept Plea of Second Degree Murder in Poison Case —Singer Makes Statement.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 25.—The family of Dr. Arthur Warren Waite has decided that no defense is possible on the facts alleged by the State in the poisoning of John E. Peck, wealthy father-in-law, of Grand Rapids, Mich., who died of arsenic poisoning when a guest in the Waite home.

Admitting that they considered the evidence of his guilt too conclusive to question, they agreed to employ no counsel to contest the facts for Dr. Waite, but decided to appeal to District Attorney Swann to accept a second-degree plea and save him from the electric chair.

Frank Waite left this conference and as representative of his family, hurried to the offices of Walter Drew, counsel for Miss Catherine A. Peck. He begged the lawyer to assume charge of Dr. Waite's case and do "what there is left to be done to save Arthur."

Result of Conferences.

Drew agreed with Waite and the Waite family that all action must be based upon a full and frank confession by Dr. Waite. This confession, Waite assured Drew he would have no difficulty in getting from his brother as soon as he was in physical condition to make it. With the understanding that this confession was an essential, the results of this and other conferences held during the day were:

That an appeal will be made to District Attorney Swann to accept a plea of second-degree murder. This will be predicated on the ground that Dr. Waite is of defective and abnormal mentality, his youth and extenuating circumstances.

That every members of the Peck family will be urged to unite in presenting to Swann a plea for clemency to this extent.

That Miss Catherine A. Peck will consent to finance the employment of reputable counsel to present Dr. Waite's case to the best advantage.

Should District Attorney Swann be determined to demand the death penalty, counsel will be engaged to present a modification of an insanity or defective mentality defense, with the sole view of saving the defendant from death.

Drew said the Morrison letters convinced him that Dr. Waite is mentally defective.

"It is inconceivable to me," he continued, "that any intelligent man—and Dr. Waite is intelligent—could have written to a reputable attorney asking him how the estate of Mr. Peck was to be divided and telling him in effect that Mr. Peck's death would occur shortly, unless there was some material defect in his mind."

Singer Makes Statement.

From statements made by Mrs. Margaret Horton, a singer, Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling declared tonight that the authorities had reason to believe Waite had designs on the lives of at least four persons.

Mrs. Horton, according to Mr. Dooling, admitted that she shared a "studio" with Waite at a hotel here, and that Waite registered with her as "Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Walters."

Mrs. Horton, who was subjected to an all-day examination, was said by Dooling to have stated that she believed Waite planned to kill her and her husband.

"Mrs. Horton," continued Dooling, "has reason to believe, according to her statement, that Waite was trying to persuade her to take some kind of medicine." Mr. Dooling added that Mrs. Horton was with Waite when he made purchases "the nature of which cannot now be divulged." Mrs. Horton also told him, he said, that Waite believed her to be wealthy, and had questioned her regarding the extent of her finances.

Mrs. Horton was accompanied to the District Attorney's office by her husband.

Married Two Years Ago.

The Hortons were married Feb. 11, 1914, after a brief courtship. Horton had met her while in Cincinnati on business. They came here at once and lived in the Hotel McAlpin, then moved to the little flat in West Eleventh street.

"I never knew anything about the sordid side of life until I came to New York," she remarked in the course of her narrative. "I always believed implicitly in everybody and in what they told me.

"I went to the Berlitz School about Feb. 8 as a private pupil to take up French, German and Italian. There I met Dr. Waite, who, I learned, had entered the school about the same time I did. Dr. Waite also was anxious to get extra practice in the languages. In this way we became acquainted. I found Dr. Waite spoke beautiful French and thought he would be just the one to help me along. He took such a friendly interest in my work and seemed so open and trustworthy, that not a suspicion about him ever entered my head until I learned the District Attorney's office suspected him of the death of Mr. Peck.

"Dr. Waite and I went to restaurants together, to talk French, we danced together in the Hotel Plaza and we took walks together. I soon learned he was an accomplished pianist and he learned I was a singer. He suggested that we engage a room in the Plaza and use it as a studio on afternoons when we had no other engagements. I readily agreed to the plan. There was nothing wrong about it, and no thought of wrong in connection with it ever occurred to me. He said he would fit it up with a piano and books and pictures, and we could use it as a workshop, instead of having to walk about the streets together.

"We were never there at night. There was no bed in the room. It was fitted up just as any artist's studio in a hotel would be. We would go there for an hour or two in the afternoons, sometimes longer. It all depended on what engagements I had with my teachers. It was just a room to study and practice in between classes."

Waite is in the prison ward at Bellevue Hospital, where he was removed last night, after recovering from the effects of drugs that he took Tuesday.

Horton did not know that the man with whom his wife was practicing languages and music was the Dr. Waite under arrest for the death of Mr. Peck until a reporter so informed him.

"I want to express my surprise," Horton said later, "that any suspicions should be raised in respect to Mrs. Horton's connection with this lamentable affair. I knew of Dr. Waite and that he and Mrs. Horton were studying music and languages together. Mrs. Horton told me Dr. Waite had invited her to go to his studio in the Hotel Plaza and I gave her my full permission to do so."

MRS. WAITE WILL NOT AID HUSBAND

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 25.—Mrs. Arthur Waite, wife of the New York dentist, who has been charged with the murder of her father and mother, today issued the following formal signed statement:

"I feel it my duty to the public to make the following statement. No previous statement said to have been made by me is authentic. I have given nothing whatever to the press. When I was informed of the serious charges against my husband, I was so shocked and amazed I could not believe them true. It seemed to me impossible that a man who had been so uniformly gentle and kind to me, and apparently so loyal, could be guilty of the crime with which he is charged.

"My faith in him began to be shaken when it was practically proved to me that Dr. Waite was living with another woman in the Plaza Hotel.

"As the evidence against him increased from day to day, I was compelled against my will and my deepest affection for him, to accept the evidence as true.

"Of course, I cannot and will not say he is guilty, but it certainly looks as if that is the fact. * * *

"As far as I am concerned I must and will permit the law to take its course. I will stand aside and leave the whole matter to those who have the case in charge. * * *

"I have told all I know, frankly and freely, to the authorities and I will not discuss that statement, which is in their hands, to view as they see fit.

"It is all very sad and very terrible. All I ask is that I may be left alone with my friends to bear my sorrow the best I can.

"CLARA PECK WAITE."

BANK CASHIER, TWO ASISTANTS, ARE ARRESTED

Fort Smith (Ark.) Men Charged With Misappropriation of Funds and Embezzlement.

FT. SMITH, Ark., March 25.—P. A. Ball, cashier, and Andrew S. Fown and E. Mayo Dickinson, assistant cashiers, were arrested tonight charged with misappropriation and embezzlement of funds of the American National Bank, one of the largest banking institutions in Arkansas, which closed its doors this morning.

The warrants were issued upon application of J. S. Rogers and H. L. Machen, national bank examiners. The defendants were taken into custody at the bank and arraigned there. They pleaded not guilty and their preliminary hearing was set for April 11.

The warrants do not mention how much money the defendants are alleged to have embezzled or misappropriated.

At a meeting of the bank directors last night its affairs were surrendered to national bank examiners. A deal was commenced a few days ago to dispose of the bank's affairs to another local national bank, but the examiners interposed. Unfavorable reports as to the bank's stability have been in existence a long time and the failure created no excitement. The bank has a capital of $200,000 and deposits totaling $445,000. The loans, it was stated today, amounted to $639,000.

YOUNG BRIDE SAID TO ADMIT FATAL SHOOTING OF A SHERIFF

MUSKOGEE, Ok., March 25.—Held in jail at Eufaula, Ok., charged jointly with her husband, Paul V. Hadley, formerly of Beaumont, Tex. and Kansas City, Mo., with the murder of Sheriff Jake Giles of Beaumont, who was killed on a Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railroad train near Checotah, Ok., early Friday, Ida Lee Hadley, youthful bride, is said to have admitted to reporters today that she fired the shot that killed Giles, who was taking her husband back to Beaumont to answer to a charge of assault with intent to murder.

Mrs. Hadley also admits, it is claimed that she, with a pistol, held back the crowd of passengers after the shooting.

BABY'S DEATH THE THIRD IN SUPPOSED POISON CASE

Inquest in the Deaths of Child's Mother and Her Sister at Vienna, Mo., Continued Till Chemists' Report—Many Rumors Spread.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

VIENNA, Mo., March 25.—Residents of Maries and Pulaski counties, as they drove into Dixon and Vienna today for their weekly shopping, had as their chief topic of conversation the supposed poisoning of Mrs. Thomas Nelson, her 15-months-old baby and her two sisters, Clara and Ella Mathews, at the Mathews farm, on March 15. Mrs. Nelson and Clara Mathews died earlier in the week and the baby expired this afternoon. Ella Mathews is reported as out of danger.

Prosecuting Attorney L. B. Hutchinson told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the authorities might make a move in the case on Monday.

Everything, he said, depended upon the report of the chemists at St. Louis University, to whom the analysis of the viscera of the two young women who died had been intrusted.

Hutchinson was in St. Louis Thursday and yesterday, awaiting a report, but says no definite information was given him. The chemists, however, promised a report by Monday night.

"If the report shows the sisters were poisoned by some substance, the presence of which in their food or the water they drank cannot be explained easily, I shall take some active steps," he said. "I have conducted the preliminary investigation upon the presumption that the sisters were poisoned, as that was the belief of the physicians who attended the cases."

Await Chemists' Report.

While awaiting the chemists' report the residents of the two counties, in which both the Nelson and Mathews families are widely and favorably known, kept their speculations confined largely to the testimony given at the opening of the inquest held by Acting Coroner Peter Terry, at the Nelson home last Wednesday night, an account of the proceedings of which has not been published heretofore.

The witnesses were Thomas Nelson, husband of one of the women supposed to have been poisoned; Dr. John Crider of Brinktown, Dr. M. F. Rollins of Dixon and Mrs. Lucy Huston of Dixon.

From the testimony of Nelson it was shown that the Nelson and Mathews families live upon farms in what is known as Dry Creek, in Maries County. The farms are about four miles apart and the families are well-to-do and have been upon terms of intimate friendship for years. Thomas Mathews has two sons, Thomas Jr. and Albert, both unmarried. On March 15 the members of the Nelson family visited the Mathews farm. On March 18 Mrs. Nelson became ill and on March 20 the two Mathews girls became ill while upon their way to visit their sister, Mrs. Nelson.

According to Nelson, his wife, before death, could recall only one instance on which she and her sisters had taken any food or drink together which was not shared by all the others. She told him that once early in the evening she and her sisters went into a hallway and drank water from a bucket.

Mrs. Hueston testified that her maiden name was Lucy Jones and that her father lived for several years upon a farm near that of the Nelsons and Mathews. She was questioned by Prosecuting Attorney Hutchinson. She testified that she had kept company about four years ago with Albert Mathews. She was then 18 years old and he 24. She testified that she had of her own accord discouraged the attention of Albert after a few months and had married a man she met in Dixon by the name of Hueston.

She said Hueston had not supported her and disappeared about one year after their marriage. Mrs. Hueston testified that she had worked for a time in St. Louis and then returned to Dixon at the time of her fathers' death. She went to visit the Mathews girls on March 15.

She was asked by the prosecutor if she still cherished a fondness for Albert Mathews and if she believed Mathews' sisters were unfriendly toward her. Mrs. Hueston replied that she had no longer any feeling but friendship for Mathews, and that she regarded his sisters as her best friends.

The Prosecuting Attorney told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he had asked Mrs. Hueston these questions because of rumors which had come to him, and that he believed she had answered the questions frankly. Before she testified she was given the customary warning to a witness that what was said might be asked later by the Prosecuting Attorney, and for several minutes she declined to be sworn, but finally withdrew her objections and testified under oath. Dr. Rollins, who was the first physician called upon to attend Mrs. Nelson, testified that he believed her death was due to poison. At the inquest he would not venture an opinion as to the kind of poison, but later informed Prosecutor Hutchinson that in many respects the symptoms indicated poisoning by bichloride of mercury. The inquest will be reopened April 3. The Prosecutor said that the number of witnesses called would depend upon the report of the chemists.

Is Epilepsy Conquered?

Advices from many directions have confirmed previous reports that Dr. Kline's treatment for epilepsy, being administered by well-known physicians is achieving gratifying results. Old and stubborn cases have been greatly benefited and many patients claim to have been wonderfully benefited.

Three Women and Two Children Among Members of Oklahoman's Family to Lose Lives.

DAVIS, Ok., March 25.—Eight members of the family of Alex Edgemond, a farmer, living two miles east of here, were killed last night, when a tornado demolished their home. The dead: Mrs. Alex Edgemond, aged 59; Mrs. Hannah Thomas, her mother, 80; Peter Edgemond, son, 25; Mrs. Peter Edgemond, 25; Alonzo Edgemond, 18; Sam Edgemond, 14; Eulie Edgmond, 6; a child, two.

The town of Davis was not struck by the tornado, although farm houses in the vicinity were damaged or demolished.

Buildings Damaged by Wind at Nevada, Mo., Heavy Rain.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 25.—Heavy rains fell all over this section of Missouri, Kansas and a part of Oklahoma early today. In Southwestern Kansas a changing wind caused a drop in temperature that converted the rain into a driving snowstorm.

A fall of three and one-half inches of rain was reported from Nevada, Mo. One home and several small buildings near Nevada were destroyed by wind.

Two Men and Team Drowned as Result of Rainstorm.

JANESVILLE, Wis., March 25.—Thirty miles of track between Gratiot and Mineral Point on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad was washed out today by a heavy rain storm. Two men and a team of horses were drowned near Gratiot.

VANDIVER QUITS AS A CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

Politicians Believe Announcement Presages Entry of Folk Into Race.

Willard D. Vandiver, Subtreasurer and former member of Congress, announced yesterday that he had withdrawn from the contest for the Democratic nomination for Governor, and that his name would not appear on the primary ballot.

Vandiver's withdrawal was believed by politicians yesterday to be the prelude to an announcement of the candidacy of former Gov. Joseph W. Folk for the nomination. Folk, who is chief counsel for the Interstate Commerce Commission, will arrive in St. Louis today from Washington, and it is anticipated by some of his friends that he will announce his candidacy before leaving.

Vandiver will retain the office of Subtreasurer. He said, in announcing his candidacy Feb. 12, that he would resign before beginning an active campaign and several aspirants for the prospective vacancy appeared.

Fought Gov. Major.

He has been an active opponent of the plan to give Gov. Major the indorsement of the State Democracy for the vice presidential nomination, and he expressed disgust with the outcome of the St. Joseph convention. He alluded to this matter, in a statement which he gave out yesterday, addressed "To the Democrats of Missouri." He said this statement contained all he wished to say for publication. The Vandiver statement is as follows:

"About six weeks ago I announced myself a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. It met a hearty response from any sections of the State, especially among my old neighbors and friends in Southeast Missouri, who have known me for more than 30 years. To say that I feel grateful to them is but a feeble expression of my thoughts.

"For two weeks or more I felt that I would have a pleasant campaign and an easy victory. Now the situation has changed; new issues have been thrust to the front, and the recent efforts of certain misguided politicians to harmonize the party by distributing the more important offices among a few ambitious gentlemen and by swapping honors among themselves have, I fear, created more discord than they have cured.

"It is well known that I have not approved this artificial method of making harmony. But I do not wish to add more fuel to the flame by continuing in the race for Governor, knowing that the kind of campaign I would have to make would only intensify the bitterness.

"I have never wanted the Governorship for its honors nor for its emoluments. I have wanted it only because I felt that certain work should be done which I felt competent to do.

"Now, I fear that I am not an available candidate for the particular kind of campaign which the present conditions call for.

"Therefore, instead of pushing my canvass as I expected to do, I think it better that I withdraw from the race in the interest of party harmony and devote my efforts to helping anyone else who may be able to do the needed work with less friction, and I assure you that my ambition suffers no painful shock when I dismiss the governorship from my mind forever.

"Hence, my name will not appear on the primary ballot."

Would Change Situation.

Politicians say the entrance of Folk into the race would entirely change the situation with respect to the governorship. There are eight candidates in the field, and some have been campaigning for more than a year, but there has not been any pronounced sentiment developed for any of the present group of aspirants.

Folk will be urged by his friends to get into the race on the ground that Gov. Major, through his police, excise and election boards in St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph, has permitted conditions to arise which require a man of Folk's experience and record to eradicate. These conditions, according to the charges freely made in the Democratic State convention in St. Joseph last Tuesday, are the use of the police and election boards of Kansas City and St. Joseph for the control of politics, and non-enforcement of the saloon laws in St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph for the same end.

The reports of violations of the saloon laws and the uses of police and election boards for political purposes has aroused the country element, according to politicians from different sections of the State. The active fight of the Ministerial Alliance of St. Louis against Excise Commissioner Rumsey has had considerable effect.

SPECIAL LENTEN MUSICAL

At a special Lenten musical service at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Lindell boulevard and Spring avenue, at 8 o'clock tonight the church choir will sing "The Message From the Cross," by Will MacFarlane. This Lenten Cantata was written about three years ago and is said to be one of the finest musical compositions of recent years.

receiving a cashier's check for $1,250,000 from Lorimer, of paying currency for the check, of seeing the money counted by a State Bank Examiner and then of receiving the money back from Lorimer and giving him the check in return.

"In all that transaction, Mr. Dawes, was there anything done that was in any way improper?" was asked. "No, sir," replied the witness.

John H. Rife, former State Bank Examiner, said that in his business with the bank he never came across an illegal or dishonest transaction in which Lorimer was connected.

"You called the bank a 'one-man' bank," said counsel for the defense. "Who was that one man?"

"Mr. Munday; everything was referred to him," said the witness.

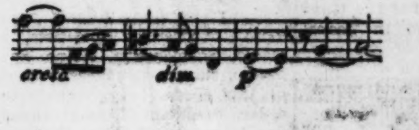
Sounding the Prayer of Genius from his Immortal Bow

Solemn and rapt he stands, the master. Solemn he draws his bow—"that immortal bow"—across the strings. Solemn the sound comes forth—a prayer, a supplication!

AVE MARIA



WHAT feeling, moving chords he sounds—Eugen Ysaye—the genius of the Violin! Deep, low they come and soft; tender they come and deeply suppliant. It is the heart of great humanity that speaks the prayer of genius from his magic bow!

Ah! If we could but hear Ysaye at home. If but his mystic bow could sound for us those deep emotions we have longed to hear! If we could hear reproduced for us at our own fireside every suggestion of those beauties—in their very finest subtleties, their profoundest shades. What wonderful home-evenings we might enjoy.

No, let us say can enjoy!

The Aeolian-Vocalion makes them possible. By it—this wonderful new phonograph—Ysaye's great art is made to live again in the very vividness and color of life itself. Through it we recognize every subtle tonal tint, every half shade of color, in the bowing of that unequalled master. Every exquisite "timbred sweetness" of his bow becomes so fresh as to be startling. The string, the wood tone—delicate, characteristic effects which are the final proof of a phonograph's effectiveness—are retained in all their touching purity. The deep moving low tones of that violin are preserved in a roundness so full, so vibrant, as to stir the soul. You are hearing tonal beauties actually buried in the records till the Vocalion called them forth.

These achievements are new to the phonographic art and are characteristic alone of the Vocalion. They are only possible now because of new scientific discoveries in sound reproduction—incorporated exclusively in

The Aeolian-Vocalion

"THE PHONOGRAPH THAT CALLS FORTH HIDDEN BEAUTIES FROM YOUR RECORDS"

Thus its Sound Box of novel construction has a range and a power to reproduce deep tones hitherto impossible to any phonograph. Its Symphonetic Horn—revolutionary both as to its material and its shape—delicately preserves the characteristic tones of any instrument—from the high, high piccolo to the bass tuba itself.

Its Graduola patented device, for the first time, makes it possible for each old record to sound new by a simple hand pressure. Thus you may melt tones down, down to a whisper, graduated delicately to the strength of your touch, or allow them to swell to full, rich force again. You are varying on this wonderful Vocalion a single record just as you may have heard the artist vary his single performance. You are forever banishing "record monotony" with the Vocalion.

While beautiful art models of exclusive design are available for those who wish them, other models, relatively as fine, may be purchased from $90 upwards and on payments as low as $5 monthly.

AN INVITATION

We cordially invite you to call at Aeolian Hall; hear the Vocalion for yourself, or even try some of your own records upon it. You will find that it will actually draw out beauties from them that had been lying dormant. You are under no obligation whatever; but after these tests, listeners often voluntarily desire and actually arrange with us exchange arrangements for their own instruments.

PIPE ORGAN FOR HIGH SCHOOL

South Side Patrons' Associations to Start Movement Wednesday Night.

A general meeting of South Side school patrons' associations will be held Wednesday evening in the auditorium of the Grover Cleveland High School, to launch a movement to raise $6000 for the purchase of a pipe organ for that high school. Moses Hartmann, president of the School Patrons' Alliance, will preside. The meeting will be attended by members of the School Board and Ben Blewett, Superintendent of Instruction. Former Judge William Zachritz will discuss plans for improving the new South Side high school, the largest and most costly in the city.

MAID TESTIFIES MRS. HAYS CALLED HUSBAND A "PUP"

Says Employer Frequently Drank Straight Whisky After Meals.

Negro maids gave the principal testimony yesterday in the separate maintenance suit at Clayton of Mrs. Nella S. Hays of the Windermere Hotel against William T. Hays, Webster Groves, general superintendent of the Scullin-Gallagher Steel Co. One of them testified that Mrs. Hays drank whisky and gin and smoked cigarettes in her room, and the other said that Mrs. Hays had given her extra pay to spy on Hays and had urged her to complain of the food he brought home, so that he might get irritable in such a way that the maid could testify to it afterward in legal proceedings.

The first one, Mabel Taylor, said she worked in the Hays home at Webster from Jan. 4 to some time in May, 1915. She declared she ran many errands to drug stores and other places to get cigarettes for her mistress; that for five or six weeks she took Mrs. Hays' breakfast to her bed as late as 12:30 p. m., and that it was Mrs. Hays' custom frequently to take a drink of straight whisky after the meal.

Called Husband a "D—— Pup."

Mabel also testified that Mrs. Hays called her husband a "damned pup," and that she once tried to remove the license tag from his auto to keep him from going downtown in it.

Mary Burns, who said she was maid at the Hays home after the Taylor woman quit, declared that Mrs. Hays gave her $1.40 a week for expenses in following and observing the husband, and told her she would get $2 a day for every day she had to appear in court and testify.

On two occasions, she said, her mistress complained because she wasn't doing her extra assignment properly, and quoted Mrs. Hays as saying: "I was told you were smart as h——, but I think I got the wrong maid." After the second complaint Mary tesified that she retorted that Mrs. Hays was "doing all the fussing" herself.

In answer to questions about a paper bearing Mary's signature, introduced several days ago, in which vile remarks Hays was alleged to have made about his wife were set forth, the maid said Mrs. Hays brought her the paper all written out and that she signed it in ignorance of its contents.

She also testified that Mrs. Hays drank straight whisky in her room and said that her mistress often drank rum in her tea at lunch. She declared that once Mrs. Hays ran to her crying excitedly, "Mary, I'm dying What shall I do?"

Scullin Character Witness.

Harry Scullin, president of the Scullin Steel Co., testified he had known Hays eight years and that he had been promoted until he was general superintendent, with from 1000 to 1300 men under him. He never saw Hays drunk, he said, or detected liquor on his breath. Hays would not have been kept on the plant's payroll, Scullin declared, if he had been intemperate.

The hearing was adjourned until Monday. Mrs. Hays has asked for $250 a month for separate maintenance. Hays has filed a divorce suit, which is pending. The matrimonial affairs of this couple, from the day of their wedding in January, 1915, to midsummer of the same year, have been fruitful of litigation of many kinds.

OKLAHOMA EXHIBIT OPEN HERE

In Car at Seventeenth and Clark; Free to Public.

A car equipped by business men of Oklahoma for exhibiting resources of their State is in St. Louis and will be open to the public from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. for several days. The car is at Seventeenth street and Clark avenue, in the Terminal yards.

The exhibitions are expected to stimulate interest in the coming sales of land in Oklahoma by the Government. These lands are in the Chickasaw and Choctaw reservations. It is claimed they contain great mineral deposits and are in the fruit and oil belts. Similar lands have been selling for from $1 to $2 an acre.

CAMPAIGN BEGUN TO MAKE SCHOOL BOARD APPOINTIVE

Civic League Names Committee to Solicit Support for Bill to Be Introduced in Legislature.

The first move in a campaign to make the St. Louis Board of Education appointive by the Mayor was taken yesterday by the Civic League, with the announcement of a Campaign Committee, headed by E. M. Grossman, a former member of the School Board and until recently its attorney. The league plans to get support for a bill to be introduced in the next Legislature, giving the Mayor the power to appoint the members of the School Board in groups of four every two years as at present. It is probable that the bill also will include a provision to require the Mayor to announce his prospective appointees a month in advance of the official appointment in order to give opportunity for discussion and criticism, and a provision for the recall of School Board members by a vote of the people in cases where the Mayor might fail to remove a faithless member.

The league points out that the School Board is in constant danger of control by politicians just so long as the selection of its members is dependent upon a convention called by the Central Committee of the two leading parties.

Man Seriously Hurt in Fight.

Mike Kaufman, 38 years old, 2921 Baden street, and Roy Stallman, 25 years old, address unknown, had a fight yesterday morning at the Colonial Cabinet Co., 2616 North Fifteenth street, where both were employed. They went out on the sidewalk and Kaufman was knocked down, his head striking a stone step. He was taken to the city hospital suffering from concussion of the brain. Stallman escaped.

The Jeffery Six

Introducing a Spectacular Six to St. Louis

A few months ago we announced that we had gone into the automobile business as distributors of Jeffery cars.

We now announce our removal to newer, larger quarters to 2638 Locust street, where we can better take care of our rapidly increasing business.

At the same time we announce the introduction to St. Louis of a spectacular Six, the dominant car of its class—the JEFFERY SIX.

OUR CHALLENGE

We offer to demonstrate this car against any car in St. Louis.

We do not qualify this challenge in any way—we do not limit it even to "Sixes." We include "Eights," "Twelves"—anything and everything in St. Louis.

We do not exclude cars built chiefly for boulevard travel nor those built mainly for country road performance. We wish to demonstrate the Jeffery Six against any car in its price class or out of it.

We want you to look it over from head-light to tail-light, from the ground to the top. Compare it with others point by point; ask what it will do in this way and that way, and then ask us to demonstrate every claim we make or demonstrate them yourself.

The price is $1450, and every dollar of it represents more value than you ever saw in a car before!

We do not qualify that statement any more than we qualify our challenge.

We stand ready to demonstrate the Jeffery Six against any car in St. Louis—and demonstration is the one thing that really counts.

We advise you, Mr. Automobile Prospect, in justice to yourself, to examine this car before you close for your new car.

$400,000 BEING PUT IN BUNGALOWS ON LAFAYETTE AVENUE

Development of That Section of Shaw's Addition Held to Be Unusually Advanced for the Season—Five Realty Corporations Being Engaged in Its Promotion.

NEW RECORD LIKELY IN SOUTHAMPTON

Hillcrest, Ames Place and Maryland Terrace Leading Centers of Lot Sales and Home Building in West End—Subdivision Interests Generally Are Elated.

Realty circles are in a cheerful state of mind over the prevalent and prospective interest in the subdivision fields, as well as for acreage and for large tracts in St. Louis County.

The movement is viewed as unusually advanced for the season in Shaw's Lafayette addition, where bungalow construction promises to keep pace with that of apartments. The Sam Koplar Real Estate Co., composed of former Mayor Kreismann, Sam Koplar and Sam Hamburg Jr., the Anderson-Stocke-Bierman Real Estate Co. and the Albert G. Blanke Real Estate Co., are the moving forces in the upbuilding of this tract. The Koplar company has 40 bungalows under construction on Lafayette avenue, between Klemm and Tower Grove avenues, the operation, exclusive of the cost of the ground, involving $400,000.

Although this tract embraces all the territory from Grand to Tower Grove avenue and from McRea to Shaw avenue, and was subdivided only three years ago, it is more than half absorbed. Should the building operations continue at the present rate, there will not be a vacant lot in the subdivision at the end of the summer, real estate agents predict.

Operations have opened with a flourish in Tower Grove Heights and in Southampton, flat and apartment building predominating in the former and small homes in the latter. The record of 1913 in Southampton, unprecedented in the history of the subdivision field in St. Louis, probably will, according to R. C. Buchanan, subdivision manager of the Mercantile Trust Co., agent for the Southampton Realty Co., be eclipsed in 1916.

South St. Louis in Marked Favor.

In the extreme sections of the South Side, and in Southwest St. Louis especially, subdivisions are being developed from which the real estate interests which are promoting them are expecting to derive splendid returns because of their eligibility and popular favor.

Improved and unimproved lots on Flora boulevard, an ultra high-class thoroughfare lying between Russell and Flad avenue and extending to Tower Grove avenue, are also a feature of the South Side activity. Lots on this boulevard are being purchased for homes ranging in price from $10,000 to $25,000. One of the handsomest of these is being erected by John Hoerr, vice president of the American Bakery Co. Flora boulevard, which was laid out by the late Henry Shaw and is now held in trust by the Missouri Botanical Association, of which A. D. Cunningham is secretary, is exquisitely parked with trees and exotic plants.

Hillcrest, Ames place and Maryland terrace are the leading centers of activity in the West End, according to reports. Plans are being drawn for twenty or more houses for Hillcrest, located on Skinker road, just west of the Art Museum, in Forest Park, the indications being that twice that number will develop before summer arrives. The condition of Skinker road, which is torn up preparatory to being improved, however, is retarding the development of this tract.

About 100 houses, costing from $7500 to $25,000 each, have been erected in Hillcrest, which was disposed of two years ago at public sale in lots to suit, by John S. Harris.

Sales of lots in Ames place and in Maryland terrace, both units of University City, are noteworthy, more especially as most of the purchases are forerunners of the erection of handsome homes.

Sure of $1,000,000 of Sales.

John S. Carter & Co., as exclusive agents, sold the last lot in University City of the University Heights Realty Co., a subsidiary of the Lewis company, of which Judge Matt G. Reynolds is receiver, and whose sales in this addition total more than $1,000,000.

Frederick H. Britton, an editorial writer for the Post-Dispatch, has purchased a new house on Harvard avenue, built by A. G. Pasquier, and Senter M. Jones one on Washington avenue, between Pennsylvaia avenue ad Williams street, in the Jackson Johnson block.

Contracts have been closed with the Preiss Building Co., it is understood, for the erection of several houses in West Portland place. This company has just finished six attractive houses in this addition, two of which were disposed of from the plans by Mayhew & Haverstick, the Laclede Building, the agents.

The demand for modern houses in University City is already beyond the supply, and builders are accordingly pushing plans for new construction.

All the unsold lots in Glenn Echo Park subdivision probably will be disposed of this spring, on terms and prices that will doubtless excite both homeseekers and investors. The subdivision is one mile west of Wellston, on high ground, overlooking the city to the east, but beyond its smoke, and is shaded by magnificent maples. It has granitoid walks and telford street paving. In the improved part of the tract there are 100 lots, each fronting on a made street and having county water, gas and electric light, all ready for the home builder to make his connections.

Area for Moderate-Priced Homes.

The trend of real estate development of moderate-priced homes in future must be westward between the St. Charles rock road and the Natural Bridge road, as from the Olive Street road south beyond the Clayton road the entire district has been pre-empted for high-priced development by restrictions.

Judging from inquiries received for property during the last two weeks the real estate market is getting back to a normal footing and it will only be a question of a short time when values commence going up, according to L. William Gerling.

"The greatest increase in value will naturally be in St. Louis County, especially in that ground adjoining the city," he said. "Lots at present can be bought cheap. The county will get permanent roads, the water and gas facilities are being extended daily and the Public Service Commission has ordered the extension of several city street car lines.

"McDermott's Edgewood Park is a beautiful subdivision, with large oak trees, only about 500 feet from the city limits on the Jennings road, with practically city conveniences and where the ground values are bound to improve.

"This ground will be sold on April 2, by L. William Gerling Realty Co., on easy terms.

SCHIELE, BUTTS AND DOWLING FOR REALTY EXCHANGE BOARD

Several Others Being Urged to Enter Contest; McDonald Unopposed for Presidency.

Sidney Schiele, W. W. Butts and John J. Dowling have been nominated for directors of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, and petitions for several others are being circulated. A. H. Kolas, Charles H. Anderson, Joseph A. Burdenheier, E. A. Bokern and Paul Jones are also being urged to enter the contest for the directory.

Schiele was secretary of the exchange for 10 years and played a prominent part in the upbuilding of the organization.

C. M. McDonald, vice president of the exchange, will probably succeed to the presidency without opposition.

The election will be held April 20.

W. C. Wissmath Sales Manager.

W. C. Wissmath, formerly with Charles F. Vogel, has accepted a position with Franciscus & Kunz as sales manager. Wissmath, who has been identified with the realty fraternity for many years, has a splendid record as a salesman.

Lime-Loss in Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (January 17, 1914) was the following:

"It has been many times stated that in tuberculosis or in the pretuberculosis stage an increased amount of calcium (lime) is lost. In fact, a demineralization has been thought to be a forerunner of the development of tuberculosis."

If tuberculosis is due to lime loss, the success of Eckman's Alterative in its treatment may be due, in part, to its content of a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Always we have urged consumptives to attend strictly to matters of food, but often some effective remedial agent is needed. In many cases of apparent recovery, Eckman's Alterative seems to have supplied this need. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. From your druggist or direct. Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia.

KRESGE CO. GETS ANOTHER LEASE ON WASHINGTON AV.

Only One More Plot Remains to be Obtained to Complete Site for New Building of Detroit Concern.

The S. S. Kresge Co. of Detroit, represented by the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., yesterday acquired a 99-year lease of 27x75 feet at 518 Washington avenue, owned by Rodin H. Scudder of Pasadena, Cal. The lease, beginning June 1, 1918, provides for an annual net rental of $8000, or four per cent on a valuation of $200,000.

The Weisels-Gerhart Co. is negotiating for a plot at 520 Washington avenue owned by the Hart estate, the acquisition of which will complete the site for the 12-story building to be erected by the Kresge Co. at the southeast corner of Washington avenue and Sixth street.

The Hart estate, it is understood, is asking an annual net rental of $9000, while the Kresge Co. is offering only $8000.

The Kresge Company has acquired the property owned by the Margaret Hitchcock Estate at the southeast corner of Sixth and Washington, under lease to the Wolff-Wilson Leasehold and Realty Co., for 99 years, the lease having been acquired by the Kresge Co., by purchase. A plot owned by Daniel C. Nugent at 519 St. Charles street, under 99-year lease to the Edna Realty Co., which leasehold also was purchased by the Kresge Co., and a lot at 516 Washington avenue, owned by Frank Nagel and leased for 99 years. The total area now controlled by the Kresge Co., on Washington commencing at Sixth street and running eastwardly, fronts 44 feet, thence south 75 feet, east 27 feet, north 75 feet, around the Hart property, thence east 50 feet, thence south 150 feet to St. Charles and thence west 121 feet on St. Charles street to Sixth.

On June 1, 1918, the Kresge Co. will wreck the present buildings on the site and erect a fireproof building of from 4 to 10 stories, the first and second floors to be occupied by the Kresge Co., and the upper floors to be leased. The Weisels-Gerhart Co. is negotiating for the leasing of two of the upper floors to a large business concern.

JOHN S. BLAKE & BRO.

The John S. Blake & Bro. Realty Co. report the following sales:

5838 Waterman avenue, lot 35x130. It has seven rooms, finished sleeping porch, large solarium, hardwood floors, hot-water heat. Sold for the account of S. R. O'Reilly to Mrs. Elizabeth Sankey; purchased for a home.

TO SAVE EYES

Is the Object of This Free Prescription—Try It if Your Eyes Give You Trouble.

Thousands of people suffer all the time with their eyes simply because they don't know what to do. They know a home remedy for every other ill, but none for their eyes. They abuse their eyes and neglect them, the trouble being too slight to drive them to an eye specialist, who would, anyway, charge more than they could afford to pay. Finally they may go to an optician or some cheap store, and often get glasses they do not need or which after being worn two or three months do their eyes more harm than good.

Here is a simple prescription for such cases: 5 grains optona dissolved in 2 ounces of water, use three or four times a day to bathe the eyes. This makes a healing, cooling, soothing lotion that should be used daily to cleanse, strengthen and preserve the eyes. It sharpens the vision and quickly overcomes inflammation and irritation. Weak, watery, overworked, tired eyes are greatly benefited by its use.

Many reports show that wearers of glasses have discarded them after a few weeks' use. It is good for the eyes and contains no ingredient which can injure the most sensitive eyes of infant or aged. Any druggist can fill this prescription; any physician who knows the formula will tell you it is absolutely harmless.—ADV.

NORTH PARKVIEW SITES REPORTED TO BE IN DEMAND

Addition to Be Sold at Auction April 15 by John S. Harris.

The demand for sites for apartment buildings in the West End, notably in North Parkview Addition, which is to be sold at auction April 15 by John S. Harris, has already begun.

As a site for a three-story apartment building, Andrew J. Craig, one of the largest operators in the West End, yesterday purchased 40 feet frontage on the south side of Von Versen avenue, just west of East Gate avenue.

The price paid was not disclosed, but it is said that Craig outbid several other builders for the site. The purchase was arranged by Owen J. McAuley, a member of the Hildebrand-Noble Real Estate Co., which is making the loan for the building.

There will be three apartments with all up-to-date features, including sleeping porches, sunrooms, and garages for the use of tenants.

Demand in North Parkview.

Another purchase in North Parkview was that of the corner on Von Versen and East Gate, by Victor E. Rhodes who has broken ground for a six-family building. Rhodes already has built several large apartment buildings in North Parkview, including one at Von Versen and Limit avenues. Owing to increasing demand for apartments in this addition, he is extending his operations.

A third purchase in North Parkview during the week was that of the 40-foot lot on the south side of Clemens avenue, to E. L. Wagner, a client of J. I. Epstein's, who has ordered plans for a handsome apartment building.

Harris has opened downtown quarters for North Parkview at 707 Olive street, where plats and literature of the property are available.

Salesmen Guests at Theater.

The sale of the North Parkview lots will be without limit or reserve, Harris' instructions from the Delmar Improvement Co., the owner, being to make a clean sweep of the holdings.

One hundred real estate agents and salesmen were the guests Thursday night of John S. Harris at the Columbia Theater, and afterward at a dinner at Lippe's. The object was to get the fraternity together for the advancement of real estate interests and to start matters for the North Parkview auction. A. R. Schollmeyer was toastmaster. Speeches were made by James P. Blake, John W. Gibson, Clark H. Whiteside, Eugene Altheimer, John J. Dowling and others.

BUILDING AT 14TH AND CASS IS PURCHASED FOR $65,000

Maule - Graham Improvement Co. Adds Structure to Its Holdings in St. Louis.

The Ben Altheimer Jr. Realty Co. has announced the sale of the northwest corner of Cass avenue and Fourteenth street, a building consisting of seven stores, a moving picture theater and 33-room tenement house, paying a rental of $7000 per year. The property was sold for Bertha Horowitz, represented by Frank Obear & Son Realty Co. The purchaser, the Maule-Graham Improvement Co., a corporation of which Henry B. Graham is president, and Ben Altheimer Jr. secretary, was represented by the Ben Altheimer Jr. Realty Co. The price paid for the property was $65,000.

The Maule-Graham Improvement Co. has made a number of investments in St. Louis in the last few years. They purchased about 12 months ago the northeast corner of Jefferson avenue and Olive street.

HAYDEN BOULEVARD IS BECOMING HOME CENTER

Hayden's boulevard, adjoining Southampton, bids fair to be a home center of the first class. Bungalows of the California type are being built in this addition and sold at special prices and on easy terms.

A number of up-to-date flat buildings also are being built in the addition. These, too, are for sale on easy terms.

Lots in the subdivision are being sold on monthly payments. The property which is being handled by John S. Blake & Bro., is improved with sidewalks and streets.

SITE BOUGHT FOR $60,000 WEST END APARTMENT HOUSE

Three-Family Building to Be Erected Near Euclid and West Pine Boulevard.

The feature of the week in the apartment building field was the purchase by the Hasgall Realty and Investment Co., of which Sigmund Hasgall is president, of 224x213 feet on the north side of West Pine boulevard, 219 feet west of Euclid avenue, owned by Mrs. Kate Wainright Baker.

The sale was effected by the Weisels-Gerhart Realty Co. in conjunction with the F. H. & C. B. Gerhart Real Estate Co., representing Mrs. Baker.

A three-family apartment building will be erected on the east 60 feet of the ground, at cost of $60,000. The proposed building will be in the Colonial style, with the appearance of a residence. Each apartment will have nine rooms and three baths, with sun parlors on the east side, giving it the advantage of direct southern exposure. It will be the only three-family building in St. Louis on a 60-foot lot, thereby affording special advantages for light and ventilation.

Another Sale Completed.

Another sale completed by the Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co., in this block was that of a lot 70x213 feet on the north side of West Pine boulevard about 215 feet east of King's highway, as a site for a model 6-family apartment building, each of which will have 6 rooms, 2 baths, sun parlor and sleeping porch. This lot was sold for M. J. Kauffman to Herman C. Metz, represented by Leigh Bros. The building including ground will entail an investment of $40,000.

Hasgall, according to Weisels, wanted only the 60 feet to be occupied by the building, but Mrs. Baker's residence at 4915 West Pine, adjoins the purchase, and she refused to sell the lot without an embargo on apartments, until he agreed to take the entire 224 feet.

The remaining 164 feet will be offered in 40-foot lots by the Weisels-Gerhart Co.

A sale exemplifying the widespread demand for St. Louis realty on the part of large investors was that whereby E. S Down, chief cattle salesman for Clay, Robinson & Co. of the National Stockyards of East St. Louis, acquired the Florence Apartments at 5335-37 Delmar boulevard. The price paid was $47,500.

This is a two-story building of recent construction, occupying a lot 75x105 feet. There are six apartments of six rooms each, with front porches. The location is just east of the Masonic Home. The property was owned by R. J. Dyas of R. J. Dyas & Sons, real estate agents, who purchased it about six months ago. The sale yesterday yielded him a snug profit.

The Dyas Realty Co., in conjunction with R. J. Dyas & Sons, sold to Patrick Hanlon a three-story apartment building at 4057 West Pine boulevard. The consideration was not made public. The annual rental of the building is $1320. This building comprises three apartments of five rooms each, exclusive of sun parlors and sleeping porches.

The best sale of the week was that by the Guardian Realty Co., of which James T. Campbell is president, of the southeast corner of Delmar and Hamilton avenues, a three-story block of stores and apartments, to Jackson Johnson, president of the International Shoe Co. The price paid, according to Paul Jones & Co., was $100,000. The property has a frontage of 100 feet on Delmar boulevard by a depth of 150 feet to an alley. This district, of which the Park Theater is the center, is the busiest west of King's highway.

As part payment Johnson deeded 500 feet on Delmar avenue and 250 feet on Washington, in University City, in the Jackson Johnson block. Four of the latter lots are improved with 10-room houses.

CHRISTIAN BRINKOP R. E. CO.

The Christian Brinkop Real Estate Co. reports having sold 1314-1316 Walton avenue, a modern double flat of four apartments of three rooms and bath each, renting for $792 a year, for a client of Dyas Realty Co. to a client of Brinkop's, for investment.

Also sold 200 feet of vacant ground on the north side of Utah place, west of Gustine avenue, to G. H. Davis, who was represented by John S. Blake & Bro. Mr. Davis is improving this ground with modern single flats.

Also sold two modern single flats at 6923 and 6927 Garner avenue, each being four and five rooms, modern throughout. Sold for the account of Joseph Slater and wife to a client of John S. Blake & Bro. Realty Co., for investment.

Also sold 3427 Oregon avenue, a single flat of four and five rooms. Sold for Lisetta Real Estate and Investment Co. to Gustav V. Koenig and wife, who were represented by the Dyas Realty Co.

Also sold the southwest corner of Chippewa street and Michigan avenue, being lot 35x125, with streets and alley made, to John G. Broeckelmann, who was represented by Roettger-Masek-Jehle Realty Co. Fred G. Frey and wife were the sellers. Mr. Broeckelmann is improving this corner with a modern store building, in which he will have a modern drug store.

Also sold 1054 feet of vacant ground on the south side of Humphrey street, extending eastwardly and westwardly from Oak Hill avenue. The lots are all 124 feet deep and all streets are made, sewers, water and gas are all in the property. The property was sold for the Russell Real Estate and Investment Co., who were represented by Charles F. Vogel Real Estate Co., to Ola Realty Co., who were represented by the Brinkop company. The Ola Realty Co. has already started 14 modern brick bungalow cottages on part of the ground. All of the lots will be built up with cottages, to have tile baths, furnaces, brick porches, etc., and will be under the management of the Brinkop company.

Also sold to 3010 Lawton avenue, a three-story, stone-front brick dwelling of 11 rooms, baths, etc. Sold to Abe Arbiter for investment.

Also sold 3532 Missouri avenue, a modern single flat of three rooms and bath each family, on lot 25x125. Sold for Matthew Pon to a client for investment.

Also sold 2913 Wisconsin avenue, a two-story brick dwelling for two families, each having three rooms, etc.; lot 27 feet 6 inches by 125 feet. Sold for Lisetta Real Estate and Investment Co. to a client.

Also sold the northwest corner of Gasconade street and Oregon avenue, being lot 64 feet 9 inches by 100 feet, with streets all made. Sold for Herman Schmidt, trustee for Henrietta Scott to South Side Building Co., who will improve same with a modern double and a modern single flat.

Also sold lot 30x125 on the south side of Kingsland court, lying east of Grand avenue and just south of Meramec street, to Frank McInerney, who will improve same with a modern seven-room, hot-water heated residence.

AUTO BUILDER IS NEGOTIATING FOR PLANT SITE HERE

Wants 25 Acres for Assembling Factory—Property Adjoins West Walnut Manor.

One of the largest automobile manufacturers in the United States is negotiating for 25 acres, adjoining West Walnut Manor, as a site for an assembling plant, according to David P. Leahy.

The site lies along the Wabash Railroad and is two blocks west of Goodfellow avenue, in Jennings.

The plant, if located there, will employ between 1500 and 2000 men. Its establishment is being promoted by the Business Men's Association of Jennings, which is offering special inducements for factories to be located in that district.

The extension of the St. Louis & Jennings Railway from Florissant avenue, in West Walnut Manor, to Edgewood, just north of the Natural Bridge road and Suburban Garden, has been completed, thus opening a vast territory which, heretofore, has been inaccessible.

As reflecting the wholesome effect of the railway, 65 bungalows, along with several stores, churches and schools, are in course of construction in West Walnut Manor.

This subdivision, comprises 2400 lots, two-thirds of which have been sold to home-builders.

BANK BUILDING AT GRAND AND HEBERT SELLS FOR $52,000

The week's transfers show the purchase by the North St. Louis Savings Trust Co. of the three-story bank and office building, at the northeast corner of Grand avenue and Hebert street, for $52,000. The trust company has occupied the building for more than five years.

The aggregate rental is $6250. Besides the banking quarters, the ground floor consists of two other storerooms. The second floor consists of offices occupied chiefly by professional men.

The third story is occupied by the John Hancock Life Insurance Co. Four car lines pass the property. The lot is 80x100.

Out-of-Town Athletes Win Feature Races in M. A. A. Indoor Athletic Carnival

LOOMIS BREAKS 50-YARD RECORD, DEFEATING MAHL

Chicago Flyer Negotiates Distance in 5 1-5 Seconds in Feature Race of M. A. A. Games.

JOSEPH LOOMIS, sporting the colors of the Chicago Athletic Association, established a new American indoor record for the 50-yard dash last night at the Coliseum when he breasted the tape ahead of Irwin Mahl, the local flier, in 5 1-5 seconds, and won the feature event of the Missouri Athletic Associations games. The former record was held by Knight, of Chicago University, who covered the distance in 5 2-5 seconds at the Western Intercollegiate meet in 1915.

Loomis met a worthy foe in Mahl. Their start was fair and they stepped it off, shoulder to shoulder, until the last 10 feet. Loomis then threw himself forward with such momentum that he crashed into the wooden backstop and hurt his nose, although not seriously.

Hohman of Illinois U. just did nose out Gus Aronson of the South Broadway A. C. for third place in this event.

Two shattered world's records and a host of performances that were little short of the championship class, featured the meet, which embraced such a galaxy of athletic stars, representative of nationally reputed universities, athletic clubs and scholastic institutions as has not been assembled in this city since the Olympic Game of 1904.

In keeping with the entertainment, the audience that witnessed the worthy event created a spectacle that has never been seen at an athletic affair of its kind in this city. Close to 4000 persons attended. The stands were divided into sections in which the various schools, clubs and universities were alloted place for their adherents. The Illinois University band of 100 pieces furnished music.

Delaney's Team Wins.

The Chicago Athletic Association simply romped away with the honors of the evening. Martin Delaney's pets took everything in sight, winning supremacy by worthy margins in both the handicap and invitation divisions. The point total in the handicap event was as follows: Chicago A. C., 26; Columbian A. C., 4; Kansas Aggies, 3; Illinois A. C., 3; Missouri A. A., Missouri University and Kansas University, 1 each.

In the invitation events the results were as follows: Chicago A. A., 9; Illinois U., 6; Missouri U., 5; Illinois A. C., 6; Pennsylvania U., 6; Columbian A. C., Cornell U. and Missouri A. A., 3 each. This tabulation does not include the relay events.

Ted Meredith, of the University of Pennsylvania, was forced to run against time in the 440-yard invitation, when Daggy of M. U., Campbell, Kansas University, and Clark of Chicago University, refused to compete against the Quaker flyer in the man-killing quarter. The Western runners blandly refused to run against Meredith, stating that the Pennsylvania man was in a class by himself. Meredith, without anyone to pace him, stepped the distance in 51 2-5s.

A two-foot handicap of Harry Goelitz, the Chicago A. A. sprinter, enabled him to nose out Gus Aronson, the C. A. C. athlete, in the finals of the 50-yard handicap event. It was a matter of inches between these two contestants at the finish. Eugene Irwin, the former Soldan High School youth, running for the Missouri A. A., took third place. Irwin Mahl, Bob Simpson and Joe Loomis failed to compete in this event.

Mason Wins "Ball Mile" in Almost Record Time; Jayhawkers Beat Tigers

Mike Mason, the long-legged Illinois University miler, was the first athlete to win the distinction of having his name inscribed on the trophy donated by Phil de Catesby Ball for supremacy in the mile run. It was a duel between Mason and Joie Ray of the Illinois A. C., the present National A. A. U. titleholder at this distance, from the start of the grind to five yards from the finishing tape, when Ray collapsed and recovered only in time to regain fourth position.

Mason traversed the 12 laps in 4m. 21s., which is 4s. shy of the world's indoor mark. B. F. Potter of Cornell University scampered over the finish some 10 yards behind the winner, closely followed by Ivan Myers of the Illinois A. C., a protege of John P. Nicholson. Such stars as Herriott of Kansas University, Marceau of the Chicago A. A. and Windnagle of Cornell also competed in this event.

Relays Keenly Contested.

Keenly contested races resulted in the two special collegiate one-mile relay races. Kansas runners defeated Missouri University team in the Valley Conference struggles, while Coach Stagg's quarter-milers outdistanced the Illini in the Big Nine event.

The Missouri-Kansas race was a thriller to witness. Elliott, the first Kansas man, gained a large lead on Eaton, the Tigers' starter, only to have Campbell, his successor, drop it to Daggy of the Columbia quartette. Wyatt and Rodky, opened the third quarter on even terms and after each having gained and relinquished the lead, completed the stretch as they had started. O'Leary, however, proved a trifle too fast for Pittam, giving the Jayhawkers a 10-yard advantage in the race.

The Midway 440 team took the jump from the Illinois runners on the first lap and retained it throughout the race. The spectacle of the event was the wonderful work of Binga Dismond, the colored flyer of Chicago. Dismond, a splendidly-built athlete, opened the last quarter of the mile with a seemingly 100-yard dash pace and hardly let up during the whole distance. According to authorities of the meet the Ethiopian demonstrated well-nigh perfect form.

Simpson Sets New Mark.

Bob Simpson created what was announced to be a new world's record in the 50-yard high hurdle race, Simpson going over the sticks in the remarkable time of 6 1-5 seconds, leaving Harry Goelitz, of C. A. A., and Reidel, of the same organization, several strides behind. Simpson won in his heat over McKeown and Starr, of Cornell University. The big Missourian only tripped two hurdles in the event.

The summaries:

First heat; 50-yards dash, handicap—E. J. Renick, M. U., 4 feet handicap, first; Chas. Steele, C. St. T., 4 feet, second. Time, 6 1-5s.

Second heat—A. L. Gray, C. A. C., 5 feet, first; J. B. Leaton, Un., 6 feet, second. Time, 5 4-5s.

Third heat—Eugene Irwin, M. A. A., 5 feet, first; Virgil Bailey, Un., 5 feet, second. Time, 5 4-5s.

Fourth heat—Gus Aronsen, C. A. C., scratch, first; O. V. Vancamp, I. A. C., 2 feet. Time, 5 4-5s.

Fifth heat—McKeown, C. A. A., 2 feet, first, J. V. Scholz, M. U., 3 feet, second. Time, 5 4-5s.

Sixth heat—Harry Goelitz, C. A. A., 2 feet, first; Guy Kirksey, M. A. A., 4 feet, second. Time, 5 4-5s.

Semi-finals, first heat—A. L. Gray, C. A. C., 5 feet, first; Eugene Irwin, M. A. A., 5 feet, second. Time, 5 4-5s.

Second heat, semi-finals—Harry Goelitz, C. A. A., 2 feet, first; Gus Aronson, C. A. C., scratch, second. Time, 5 3-5s.

Finals, 50-yard handicap—Harry Goelitz, C. A. A., 2 feet, first; Gus Aronson, C. A. C., scratch, second; Eugene Irwin, M. A. A., 5 feet, third. Time—5 3-5s.

600-yard handicap—L. Eby, C. A. C., scratch, first; Harry Irons, C. A. A., 4 yards, second; J. E. Minton, M. U., 9 yards, third. Time, 1m. 15 2-5s.

50 yards dash; invitation; first heat—Irwin Mahl, C. A. C., first; Pershing, Chicago, Unversity, second. Time, 5 2-5s.

Second heat—Joe G. Loomis, Chicago C. A. A., first; Hohman, Illinois University, second. Time, 5 4-5s.

Fifty-yard dash (invitation) final—Loomis, first; Mahl, second; Hohman, third. Time, 5 1-5s, new (indoor record).

50-yard high hurdles (invitation)—First heat—Robert Simpson, Missouri University, first; McKeown, Chicago A. A., second; Starr, Cornell University, third. Time—6 2-5.

Second heat—H. Goelitz, Chicago A. A., first; Reidel, Chicago A. A. second; Renick, Missouri University, third. Time—6 1-5. Renick disqualified for knocking over three hurdles.

50-yard dash (junior interscholastic): Reed, McKinley High School, first; William Phillips, Soldan High School, second; Brugnonce, Soldan High School, third. Time 6s. flat.

Final 50-yard interscholastic—Irland, W. H. S., first; Lefler, McKinley High School, second; McCandless, Principia Academy, third. Time, 5 4-5s.

Turnverein relay race—Olympic T. V. first, St. Louis second, Tower Grove third. Time, 1m. 10 3-5s.

Junior interscholastic relay race—Soldan High School first, McKinley High School second, Yeatman High School third. Time, 1m 44s.

"Hess" 880-yard invitation; interscholastic—Schuster, McKinley High School, first; Talty O'Connor, Central High School, second; Bailey, Yeatman High School, third. Time, 2m. 11 2-5s.

Missouri Valley Conference relay race—Kansas U. (Elliott, Campbell, O'Leary, Rodky), first; Missouri (Eaton, Daggy, Wyatt, Pittam), second. Time, 3m. 31 2-5s.

Ball one-mile invitation—Mike Mason, Illinois University, first; D. F. Potter, Cornell University, second; Myers, I. A. C., third. Time—4m. 21s.

600-yard interscholastic: Lamont, McKinley High School, first; Colona, Soldan High School, second; Eades, Smith-Manual, third. Time 1m. 23 1-5s.

1000-yard run handicap—Eby, C. A. A., scratch, first; Joie Ray, I. A. C., scratch, second; Levi Asikainen, C. A. C., 20 yards, third. Time—2m. 22s.

Grammar school boys' relay race, six boys to run, each contestant to run one lap; Meramec School, first; Mann School, second; Fanning School, third. Time 2m. 58s.

St. Louis High School relay race, four to run, each contestant to run two laps: McKinley High School (Schuster, Lamont, Leffler, Murchison), first; Central High School (Kershaw, O'Connor, Osborne, Taggart), second; Yeatman (Cox, Shanley, Bools, Woods), third. Time 2m. 21 4-5s.

Chicago University vs. Illinois University, special relay race—Chicago (Clark, Cornwall, Merrill, Dismond), first; Illinois (Gildner, Pendarvis, Spink, Hohman), second. Time, 3m. 29 2-5s.

Pole vault, invitation—Knourek, Illinois A. C., first; F. W. Floyd, Missouri A. A., second; Newstetter, University of Pennsylvania, third. Height, 12 ft. 6 in. Floyd and Knourek tied at 12 feet six inches for first place, and on the vault-off Knourek made 12 ft. 6 in. and Floyd failed.

Missouri State High School relay race, four to run, each contestant to run two laps—Webster High School (S. Lacey, Elseman, Hamann, Rountree), first; Clayton (Kemmeries, Mendes, Schweikert, Lyons), second; Principia (Herreng, Kittle, Colvin, McCandless), third. Time—2m. 21s.

50-yard high hurdles, finals (invitation)—Bob Simpson, Missouri University, first; H. Goelitz, Chicago A. A., second; Reidel, Chicago A. A., third. Time—6 1-5s., equalling the world's indoor record.

Medley relay race—Cornell University vs. University of Pennsylvania: First man runs 220 yards; second, 440; third, 880; fourth, 880 (1⅜ miles). University of Pennsylvania (Kaufmann, Lennon, Dorsey, Meredith), first; Cornell (Bartsch, Schelton, Beckwith, Windnagle), second. Time—3m. 13 2-5s.

Running high jump (handicap): Joe Loomis, C. A. A., scratch, first, 74 inches; H. H. Frizzell, Kansas Aggies, scratch, second, 74 inches; Dick Treweeke, Kansas University, scratch, 71 inches, third. Loomis and Frizzell both jumped 74 inches; on the jumpoff Loomis jumped 72 inches and Frizzell failed.

Wilcox Quits Racing Game.

Howard Wilcox, a prominent racing driver for six seasons, has announced his retirement from the speed game. He is a partner in an Indianapolis firm that holds the agency for two makes of automobiles and is also part owner of a taxicab company. Wilcox is a Crawfordsville (Ind.) boy who started as mechanic for Johnny Aitken. He has never been in an accident. During his career he has piloted National, Gray Fox, Stutz and Peugeot cars. Wilcox was expected to drive a Premier car on the speedway circuit this season. He will drive once more, having agreed to pilot a car in a benefit race at Indianapolis, Oct. 18.

WILLARD IS REAL CHAMPION, SAYS BOB FITZSIMMONS

Former Title Holder Expects Jess to Reign as King for Some Time to Come.

MORAN IS OUTCLASSED

Challenger Never Had Right in Same Ring With Cowboy, Declares Ruby Robert.

By Bob Fitzsimmons.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Jess Willard is a real champion. He proved that beyond any question tonight. I think he'll be the king of them all for a long time to come. It will take a man a whole lot bigger than Frank Moran, and with a whole lot harder punch to put that powerful fellow away.

Every minute of every one of the 10 rounds was Jess's. His cleverness enabled him to block most of the vicious swings that the yellow-haired Irishman shot at him—and when one of them did land, Willard's strength enabled him to take it with a laugh.

Moran never had a chance with him. It was really a slaughter. I thought for a minute or two in the seventh round, when Jess was banging him all over the ring—jab, jab, jab, and then uppercut, uppercut, uppercut—that Charley White, the referee, wouldn't have made any mistake if he stopped it, as he had a right to do when one man was entirely outclassed.

Outclassed is the only word for it. Frank never had a right to be in the same ring with the champion. The only way he could possibly have figured to win, before the fight, was by landing one of those wild swings of his. He did land a few of them, but they didn't even annoy Jess. The champion proved that he could take a good punching without it bothering him even a little bit.

Moran Was Outclassed.

Willard is a big, clever fellow. He knows the tricks of the trade much better than I thought he did. I won't admit that he's as clever as Jim Jeffries or Jim Corbett, but he makes the best showing of anybody outside of those two that I've seen in the ring in many a year.

As a fight this ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight didn't amount to much. It was so one-sided that it was ridiculous. Willard just jabbed and cut Moran as he pleased and won from the very first minute they were in action.

Moran is a clumsy, awkward fellow, not half so good as I thought he'd be from what I heard of him. I believe that several times during the last rounds Jess could have put him out. A good smash to the solar plexus, the kind that I handed to Jim Corbett, would have done the trick and knocked Moran cold, if Willard was only a little more aggressive.

That is the chief fault I find with him. He doesn't hit as hard as he can. He simply plays with his man. He's too good-natured and laughs too much. It would have been merciful for him to have put Moran away in the seventh round, when he had him staggering and holding on. I'd have done it, if I'd been in there.

Willard Too Merciful.

While this wasn't a great fight, it was a great occasion for the sport of boxing. I never saw a better looking crowd, nor a bigger crowd at an indoor contest. I met all sorts of friends from Charley Schwab, the steel magnate, to fellows I'd boxed with and trained with in all parts of the world. And the crowd gave us a fine reception when the bunch of us old fellows—Sullivan, Corbett, Kid McCoy and myself, got into the ring.

A couple of days ago I put myself on record by predicting that Willard would win easily. When I saw the men strip for action tonight I felt that I was right

Jess looked great. He wasn't trained down as fine as he might be, maybe, but he was in grand shape and looked a champion all over. Everybody could see he was full of confidence. Moran looked rather fat to me, although I was told he was a little under his usual weight. He looked nervous and almost frightened as he sat waiting for the bell. His face was white and he didn't look like a man who had much hope of winning.

The first round hadn't been going for a minute when I said to the people around me, "Nothing to it but Willard." The champion started out with a great left jab. He shot that powerful arm of his forward and landed it on Moran's face, and then grinned as he blocked the wild swing that the challenger started from down alongside his hip. He jabbed the little fellow whenever he wanted to, and picked off the long swings that the Irishman sent after him. Willard looked plenty good enough for me right then, and I knew Frank didn't have a chance.

Kramer Beats Magirl.

MILWAUKEE, March 25.—Billy Kramer, Milwaukee, was awarded a newspaper decision over Art Magirl, Oklahoma, here tonight in a ten-round bout. Both boys weighed 152 pounds.

STILL CHAMPION—By James Montgomery Flagg

Battle Would Have Been Tame but for Moran, Who Forced the Fight Gamely

Handicapped by His Size, the Loser Bored in Repeatedly Only to Have His Best Blows Fall Short.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, March 25. Jess Willard is still King of the "Queensborough Realm," though he failed to stop Frank Moran at Madison Square Garden, tonight. Bulk told. Moran fought with the courage of a bulldog against two great odds. Willard's size was the stumbling block in Moran's dash for the title. The blond was outboxed, but he wasn't outgamed by any means.

It was Moran who made a fight of it. He walked into Willard trying might and main to bring the giant down. Covered with gore that flowed from a cut over his eye, he was the picture of desperation as he bravely walked in, taking everything that Willard had in the hope that "Mary Ann," the camp name for his famous right, would bring him a title.

Willard's showing was anything but brilliant. Tom Jones raced around the ring at the finish saying that Willard's right hand had been broken in the seventh round.

Moran failed in that he could not reach Willard's jaw with a solid punch. It was easy to understand how Jack Johnson's mighty right uppercut failed to reach Willard's jaw with any force.

Moran was wild, too. His drives to the body were the cleanest punches that he landed. Several times, however, Willard seemed on the point of going down under a fusilade of blows. Moran had to reach too far for Jess, however, and the pride of Pottowatomie kept afoot. Moran lost because he tired and let Willard swarm all over him toward the end. Moran's best rounds were the first and second, the fifth and the eighth.

Willard closed strongly, forcing Moran around the ring with right and left uppercuts. Moran seemed to realize that he had done everything that he could in the way of dropping Willard. He covered his head and avoided the champion's punches as best he could.

Willard's deadly punch proved to be a myth, though he landed full and often on the game Pittsburger, he never had him in a groggy condition. Moran easily escaped by folding his arms about his head, allowing Willard to cuff and shove him about the ring.

Willard's left, while it was effective in holding Moran off, failed to carry any steam behind it. He jabbed Moran hundreds of times with it and, save for the bad cut over his eye, Moran was unmarked.

It wasn't a fast fight by any means. Half of the precious 30 minutes were spent in backing away, Moran looking for a chance to drive in with a right hander and Willard waiting to chastise the contender for his audacity. Willard is the same old Willard, not any more aggressive and certainly no faster. His tremendous height saved him tonight with his extraordinary reach aiding and abetting.

When Moran closed in on him he simply stood and blocked just as he did in his training. Moran swung viciously and Jess let his head roll with the punches. It is certain that the Kansas mule driver was never hit harder in his life. While he tottered several times he retained his schoolboy giggle to the very end.

Promoters Make $50,000; Total Receipts $151,254

NEW YORK, March 25.—Promoter Tex Rickard announced that the gate receipts amounted to $151,254. Of this amount the State received 7½ per cent of the gross receipts, which amounted to $11,344.05. Willard's share was $47,500 and Moran's $23,750.

Combined with the percentage taken by the State and the $7500 paid for the rental of the garden, the expenses totaled $90,094.05.

To this must be added other expenses which probably will bring the total up to about $100,000, so that Tex Rickard and his partner in the enterprise, Sam McCracken, will clear up close to $50,000 profit on the bout.

Champion Showed Excellent Blocking Ability and Was Hit Solidly Only a Few Times.

Round One.

They walked to the center at 9:55. Moran backed away and took two hard ones to the head. Moran forced Willard in his usual style, blocked well. Willard was ineffective in two tries for Moran's head. A third jab reddened Moran's eye. Moran then closed in and there was a fierce mix, Moran holding. White cautioned Moran that he must stop fighting at the order of break. Moran again forced Willard into his own corner. Moran drove a hard righthander to Willard's eye. Moran missed a left hand to the head just as the bell rang.

Round Two.

Moran was fighting close. He rocked Willard with a right to the head. Willard seemed at sea when Moran drew close. Moran was fighting hard and the crowd roared when his right crashed to Willard's jaw. Moran backed away and measured his man with a right. Willard beat him to it and shook him up with a swinging right. Willard forced, but missed with a left. Moran feinted with his left, trying to make Willard uncover. He forced Willard into the Moran corner and shook Jess up with another right to the head. Jess blocked in a bewildered way and the smaller man forced him across the ring. They were sparring at long range when the bell rang.

Round Three.

Both men missed lefts for the head, as they came out. Willard shot a straight right to Moran's body, but Frank partially blocked the blow and smiled. They stood off and exchanged blows, Willard sending Frank's head back with a left jab. Willard then forced, tapping with a left. There was no steam back of it. He seemed to be paving the way

WORLD'S CHAMPION OUTCLASSES RIVAL, HARRY SHARPE SAYS

Post-Dispatch's Expert Declares Cowboy Might Have Knocked Out His Opponent, Had He Been Fully Extended.

By Harry S. Sharpe,

Referee for the Future City Athletic Club and the Post-Dispatch's Boxing Authority.

NEW YORK, March 25.—If I had been the referee of tonight's 10-round contest between Jess Willard and Frank Moran at Madison Spare Garden, and a decision had been permitted, I would have named Willard the winner.

The champion out-boxed, out-slugged, out-fought and out-hit Moran, and he did it without more extension than seemed necessary to come through a winner.

Had Willard chosen to crowd matters, he probably would have knocked Moran out; but the champion appeared to be playing it safe—not so much because of any fear of Moran's punches, but because of his own physical condition, which did not seem to justify more than an occasional sprint. His weight was announced as 259½ pounds, and the extra poundage he carried was right around the belt line. Two or three fast, hard rounds might have winded him.

He couldn't afford that against a man who came into the ring lean as a greyhound, though weighing 201½ pounds.

Whenever Willard became thoroughly aroused, which he did at intervals, he drove Moran around the ring and had him at his mercy. Then, soon as possible, Moran would clinch and the champion would let up in his onslaught.

Willard fought a slow, easy-going fight, suffering nothing much but exertion, while Moran fought a desperate, hard fight, suffering much punishment.

At the end Willard had a slight lump on his left cheek, while Moran's face bore the marks of many hard blows. He suffered a cut over the left eye which bled freely and his nose and mouth were badly bruised.

Moran's Condition Saved Him.

Though Willard fought in rather leisurely manner, it is probable nevertheless that Moran's superb condition is all that saved him from being put away before the expiration of the 10 rounds. There were times when it looked very bad for Frank, but he stood up under a withering fire of left jabs and right uppercuts that made the crowd wonder at his strength.

Considering the punishment Moran suffered under the heavy blows dealt him, it is surprising that there was not a knock down during the contest. This made many persons believe that Willard was pulling his punches, but it did not appear that way to me. He simply was not exerting himself and putting all his weight and strength behind them. And he was doing this because he wanted to be prepared for any unforseen event that might mark a turn in the tide of battle. He was taking no chances. He was sure he was winning, and that seemed to satisfy him.

In only one round, the seventh, did Willard make what appeared to be a desperate effort to stop Moran. In this one he came from his corner with a rush and began slugging with right and left swings until Moran crouched for protection. Then Jess began uppercutting with both hands.

Moran Clinches for Safety.

The crowd thought Moran was gone and stood up to see the finish, but the Pittsburgh fighter rushed to a clinch and hung on to save himself from falling. Willard managed to free himself and struck Moran while he was breaking away.

Referee Charlie White then stopped the bout a moment to caution Willard against this, as it was a violation of the clean-break rule. This short respite gave Moran a chance to pull himself together, and toward the close of the round he made a great rally and drove Willard to the ropes with right and left swings, some of which landed squarely on the champion's face and had him in trouble.

Quickly recovering, Willard broke out into the middle of the ring and his manner indicated that he was at a loss to understand why he had not dropped Moran. The latter had taken a frightful beating and it seemed the end was very near.

Moran Resorts to Frequent Holding While Big Crowd Becomes Impatient

Moran did much clinching and holding in the following round, while Willard took things easy. This was a slow round and the crowd became very impatient.

Willard Keeps on Laughing.

Beginning the ninth round Moran started with a rush and had Willard busy blocking his hard but wild swings. This lasted for about a minute and at the end of that time Moran had done no damage and Willard was laughing at him. Then the champion started something on his own account and drove Moran around the ring with left jabs, occasionally working in some right uppercuts. Moran was punished and appeared unable to retaliate or get out of the way, but he was far from being knocked out.

Moran came to the "scratch" for the last round a badly battered fighter, but he had enough strength to carry him through, though it was evident he was very tired. Willard seemed content to let well enough alone and made no great effort for a knockout.

The bout demonstrated that Moran would be no match for Willard in a finish fight. Had Willard been in the best of condition it is very doubtful that Moran would have stayed the limit tonight, and as it was, it is extremely doubtful that he could have lasted many rounds more.

Willard surprised by his clever boxing, jabbing Moran at will and blocking swings and punches with much ease. True, Moran was slow and much smaller, but he is big and strong enough to deal out some very heavy swings and he was constantly trying to land them on the champion's jaws. He succeeded in doing so at times, but none of them appeared to distress Willard. Often when backed against the ropes the champion would stand and block, duck or shift his head from side to side, while Moran was trying desperately hard to reach him. Willard would do this as if trying to see how many blows he could avoid without having to hit Moran to drive him off. When he had enough he would lean forward, push his left in Moran's face and walk out to the center of the ring, where he had more room.

Moran was constantly trying for "haymakers" with his right hand, but few of them did any damage. None of them ever gave him a chance in any of the 10 rounds. He had met his master and the fact that he stayed the limit under gruelling punishment is the best that can be said for him.

The crowd was with Moran and cheered everything he did, but at the end few could have conceded him a chance with Willard in a finish fight. The handicap of 50 pounds or more, seven inches in height, five inches in reach, better boxing and harder hitting is too much for him to overcome. As a championship possibility Moran was eliminated tonight.

Willard Not Flat-Footed.

Willard is not a flat-footed boxer, such as Jack Johnson was. Coming in to deliver a punch he is well on his toes and appears to retain a good balance. Leaning back to escape a punch, he settles himself firmly on his right foot, and his body is poised so as to readily permit him to duck or side-step his opponent. It is the easy, graceful defensive act of a natural athlete or fighter.

A favorite movement with Willard to avoid a straight lead at him is to straighten at full length (thus using to advantage his tremendous height) and cross his arms in front of him. At such times it is almost impossible for a six-foot man to reach his face or head, and the punches are wasted on his muscular arms.

A notable feature of Willards' defense is the care he displays in guarding his face and neck. He pays far more attention to this than to the protection of his body.

Willard apparently has great strength and suppleness of body, particularly about the waist line, and when forced to lean far back can swing himself forward in position again with an ease that is remarkable in so big a man for its swiftness and certainty of balance.

When Grover Lowdermilk Loses Control, It Makes His Manager Wild, Too

MEADOWS WILL OPPOSE WEILMAN IN OPENING GAME

Cardinals Will Be Entertained at Browns' Park Today in Belated Inaugural of Spring Series.

By W. J. O'Connor.

PERSONS who profess to know the price of liquids say that upwards of $8000 worth of water fell into Robison Field yesterday, canceling the opening game of the well known spring series beyond preadventure. Today's game will not be so easily washed away. The battle ground at Sportsman's park is wrapped in a canvas cover and should be drier than one of Herman Seekamp's jokes at game time.

The cover which protects Sportsman's Park cost $1400, and had yesterday's game been billed at this plant the cover would probably have paid for itself three times. Conservative estimates of what yesterday's crowd might have been above 15,000. Some guessed 20,000.

What was lost yesterday is forever lost. The schedule calls for a game today, others on April 1, 2, 8, 9. If rain further interferes, a portion of the series will be played on mid-week days, thereby depriving the promoters of considerable revenue. However, today's game will be played, Business Manager Rickey announced, if it doesn't rain, hail or snow after 12 o'clock. The only inconvenience will be to those patrons of the two-bit seats who fail to provide themselves with cushions.

Cost of Spring Training.

There is some misapprehension about the cost of spring training trips to major league clubs, and in this financial theme it might be well to correct the statement that the Browns spent $35,000 on the recent junket into Texas. A more accurate guess would be $4000. And that's liberal. Something like $1600 was obtained in exhibition games. The net "loss," therefore, during the 25-day soujourn into Texas was something around $2400, a sum which should easily be recouped in the first spring series battle, weather conditions being favorable.

Carl Weilman will be paired with Grover Hartley as the Brown battery today while Meadows and Snyder are tipped to work for the Cardinals. Corhan won't be allowed to operate at short for another week, forcing Hornsby into the gap between Betzel and Beck. The outfield positions on Jones' team are in doubt but probably will be manned by Shotton, Sisler and Tobin.

Phil Dec. Ball returned yesterday with the second detachment of Browns and was in anything but a facetious humor. Ball saw the Yannigans walloped Friday at Tulsa and as this was his first peek at any portion of his new club he was somewhat disappointed. Otis Crandall essaysd to pitch and the Tulsa terrors thumped everything he served up to the outer reaches of the park but Crandall isn't in shape and will be given ample time to prepare himself for the A. L. season. His defeat in Tulsa spells nothing. Otis is a big man and needs time to get his arm in working order.

Deal Much Improved.

Charley Deal has improved more than any member of the second squad of Brownies. Deal reported at Palestine with a bad digestive apparatus but his health has improved and he's only now attaining his stride. We may hear and see more of Deal, who proved the most potent clubber on the Terrier club last season.

Grover Hartley's ailing digit, which was damaged at Memphis, had completely healed yesterday and Hartley donned his suit and took a liberal workout under the stand. He was the only Brownie who reported for an afternoon practice. He feels fit enough to play today.

Dr. M. Pike Lawler, the eminent Osteopath, also reports that Dave Davenport is ready for service while he has given Ward Miller permission to break into a box score at his earliest convenience. Ernie Johnson will be kept on the side lines for another week at Lawler's solicitation.

Hug Buys Machine.

Neither team practiced yesterday, but Miller Huggins took his newly-acquired automobile out for a limbering up exercise, Frank Mohr at the wheel. Hug warned Mohr to take things easy.

"The first thing you know we'll have a charley-horse in the carburetor," said Huggins who respects his machine as much as he does Bill Klem. Hug thinks a lot of Klem. He walks around him as though Bill were a lake.

Scrappy Bill Joyce, who gum-shoed last season for the Terriers is not actively engaged in baseball this spring but he finds time to visit both parks. Joyce is a great admirer of Roy Corhan. Bill warned Roy against making his debut before his arm is in perfect shape.

"You're a fine young ninny if you get in there before you can do yourself justice," said Bill to the Cardinal shortstop yesterday. "A whole lot depends on your getaway and take an old head's advice and be at your best before you start."

Corhan says he won't play for another week.

Women Show No Excitement as Male Fans Rave

About 200 of the Fair Sex Saw Bout Between Heavyweights in Gotham.

By Emma H. De Zouche.

NEW YORK, March 25.—Prize fights will never supersede the horse show as a feminine distraction in New York. The first impression of the big event at the Garden tonight—my baptism in the blood of the ring—is the conviction that woman has no place there, for the best of all reasons, that she is submerged. Names, great or small, gorgeous gowns, beauty—all are lost to view in subdued light. The limelight is reserved for the fighters alone. And where is no limelight, there is equally no woman.

Of the advertised 2000 of the sex who were to witness the matching of Willard and Moran it is doubtful whether 200 were present. These were sparsely scattered along the ringside, dotted in the boxes and visible here and there in the galleries. They were in street dress and exhibited little animation and no excitement while the men were roaring themselves hoarse.

The whole effect of the fight was one of immeasurable disappointment. I had gone nerving myself for the shock of two meeting whirlwinds, rains of blows, a staggering, helpless cerature gradually sinking to his fall—the glorious spectacle of trained battling between two splendid specimens of manhood. Instead, I saw only the pounding of flesh for price. Two men were so hopelessly unmatched that the zest of the game, which is all that palliated its brutality, was continually lacking. The whole thing was indeterminate, nerve-racking. It was like an even adventure in nightmare, where the story has neither beginning nor end, only the sense of inextricable confusion remains. The air was full of dust and tobacco smoke, for despite the orders to the contrary, there was desultory smoking throughout the evening.

It was not a knockout; it was a fizzle

SPORT SALAD

BY L. C. DAVIS.

Benny Kauff.

I KNOW the man who leads the world
at doing everything;
He's got the finest batting eye, the greatest throwing wing.
He'll put old Honus on the blink and
Tyrus on the shelf;
And, if you put it up to him, he'll tell you so himself.

He doesn't care a tinker's whoop what other people think;
He'll send the pitchers to the coop and drive 'em all to drink.
When Benny ambles to the bat, he'll pulverize the pill;
And, when it comes to stealing bags,
he'll swipe 'em at his will.

He doesn't like to brag about his prowess with the bat;
But, if he ever hits the pill, he says he'll smash it flat.
He says he is a marvel, though he never wears a mask;
He doesn't care to hide his light, should anybody ask.

Hats off to Mr. Benny Kauff, the scintillating kid!
No use to try to head him off. It simply can't be did.
He claims to be a Kohinoor without a speck or flaw—
We hope he is—but just the same he'll have to show McGraw.

Good Indians.

PRESIDENT DUNN says the Cleveland Indians will retain their name but it will be his business to make them good Indians. As all good Indians are supposed to be the dead ones we think Mr. Dunn has the wrong angle.

* * *

It is said that John Evers, who used to specialize in short singles, has changed his bat and is now lining out two and three base hits. Indicating that since the censor has put a stopper on his jaw, John will center his attack on the ball this year instead of the umpires.

Some Job.

Billy Sullivan has been appointed special coach for Grover Lowdermilk with instructions to cure Grover of his wildness. Nice job to wish on an old man.

Sam Agnew says there is so much difference between the Red Sox and Browns pitchers that he feels he can fill his new job sitting in a rocking chair. Better make it a Morris chair, with rollers on it, Sammy, so you can slide over for the pitchouts without picking up your chair.

A "Come Back."

OLD BILL HINCHMAN, who pulled such a remarkable "comeback" with the Pirates last year, was delayed in reporting at Hot Springs on account of the arrival of a son of the bouncing or garden variety. Ballplayers' sons always bounce. Congratulations, Bill. Looks like a banner season!

Benny Kauff resents the statements that have appeared to the effect that Lee Magee was the best ballplayer in the Federal League last year. If Benny wasn't so modest he might be persuaded to tell us whom he considered the best ballplayer in the Federal League last year.

Strike One!

BARNEY REILLY, who once played with the White Sox—just about once—is a candidate for Mayor of St Joseph, Mo. St. Joe evidently wants a Mayor who can stick the first ball over the plate.

Jack Meyers is taking off weight, while Rube Marquard is taking it on. Nice to see a battery working in harmony that way, isn't it?

Lo, the Poor Slave!

Clarke Griffith says he fired Chick Gandil because he smoked cigarettes. Joe Tinker and George Stallings have barred automobiles and Buck Herzog has put a ban on bowling. Next thing we know they'll be telling Cozy Dolan he can't eat custard pie.

Pitcher George Zabel, before accepting a transfer to Los Angeles, insisted on having an agreement that he be declared in on a share of the world's series coin in case the Cubs won the pennant. George failed to secure such an agreement, but from the way the Phillies have been trouncing the Cubs down in Florida it looks as though he will not miss much.

An Optimist.

A REPORT from Hot Springs states that Barney Dreyfuss is well pleased with the appearance of his men. Catcher Art Wilson is bemoaning the fact that his throwing arm has developed a full-sized kink; Pitcher Kantlehner is without sufficient power in his pitching arm; Pitcher Larry Douglass' wing is in a bad way, and Pitcher Al Mamaux is suffering from a severe attack of neuralgia.

Indicating that if everybody was in good shape Barney would laugh himself to death.

Rifle League Ends Season.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The National Rifle Association's matches among high schools, in progress since Jan. 15, closed today. Aggregate scores will be announced next week. Scores for the final week were: Iowa City 989, Placer County High of Auburn, Cal., 985; Cedar Rapids, 961; Ogden, Utah, 960; District of Columbia Manual Training, 958; Warren, Pa., 951; Baltimore Polytechnic Institute, 944; Salt Lake City, 941; Erasmus Hall, 928; Morris High, 919; Central High of Grand Rapids, 910; Sacramento High, 898.

In the matches in progress among college teams, Michigan Agricultural, Washington State and Norwich made perfect scores of 1000 this week. Other scores follow: West Virginia, 997; Massachusetts Agricultural and Iowa State, 996 each; Vermont, 990; Cornell and Yale, 989 each; Idaho and Maine, 988 each; Princeton and Naval Academy, 987 each.

Thomas Is Not Coming.

Rene Thomas, the French race driver, winner of the 1914 Indianapolis 500-mile race, will not come to America to drive a Peugeot on the speedway circuit this season, according to advices received from France. The Indianapolis speedway recently announced that Thomas had been granted a furlough by the French military authorities from March 25 to Dec. 1. The reason for Thomas' inability to come to this country is not known, but it is supposed that the French Government would not permit him to leave France.

To Organize Prep Circuit.

CHICAGO, March 25.—Representatives from the State Athletic Associations of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan in session here today organized the North Central Interscholastic Athletic Conference to secure a uniform list of eligibility rules for the governing of interscholastic meets that the universities and colleges in these states holds. The organization represents over 1400 high schools. Jesse H. Newlon of Decatur, Ill., was selected chairman and George Edward Marshall of Davenport Io., secretary.

Williams Grabs Title.

BROOKLINE, Mass., March 25.—R. Norris Williams II of Harvard University, former national lawn tennis champion, today won the finals of the covered court tennis tournament of the Longwood Cricket Club for the second consecutive year. He defeated Irving C. Wright of Boston, 6—4, 6—4, 7—5.

Navy Fencers Are Victors.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 25.—Navy defeated Columbia at fencing today, winning eight of the nine bouts with the foils and all four bouts with the saber.

Willard's Bulk More Potent Than Moran's Courage

Round Four.

Moran led with a left to the stomach. Willard snapped his jaws shut and drove Moran back with short rights and lefts to the head. Moran tried a shift and missed completely. He laughed, as they fell into a clinch. Willard drove him into a neutral corner by a right. They worked around the ring and again Jess drove him into the corner. They worked close and Jess did his best to use an upercut. They went to the ropes again and Moran came out of a mix-up with blood streaming from his left eye. They were going around the ring in circles when the bell rang.

Round Five.

They came out and Jess jabbed with his left. They worked close and Willard missed a right. Frank drove Jess into his own corner and peppered him in the middle. Willard was uncovered and Moran rained lefts to the head and jaw. The crowd roared approval. One of Moran's blows raised a mouse on Jess' right temple. Willard was smiling through it all and the red head worked closer and landed many telling blows to the body. He was doing the forcing and all the punching now. Willard then took up the forcing. He jabbed with his left and drove the Pittsburger back with a snap to the jaw. A straight left to the head sent Moran back to his heels.

Round Six.

They fell into a clinch, as they came out of their corners. Moran tried with both hands. He rocked Willard's head with a left and then backed away to set himself for a punch. A right and left were blocked by Willard. Willard landed a weak right on Moran's head as the blond tried to come close. There didn't seem to be any steam behind his punches. Moran's right hand glove broke and the padding flew through the air as he punched at Willard's head. They fought at close quarters and Tom Jones' voice could be heard as he hollered: "Come in now for the body." Moran acted as though he was tired. They were sparring at the bell.

Round Seven.

Willard came out and fought like a fiend, driving Moran into the Willard corner with a volley of punches. The blond did not offer to fight back. He was full of vim, however, and they worked into the center of the ring, where he tried to mix it. The blood from his eye was bothering him, but he kept close and tried to land blows to the body. Jess threw his weight into his blows and tried to land on the jaw. Willard rocked Frank with right and left to the head, but the blond blocked. Willard was tired from his own effort. Moran got the crowd on the chairs by making a wonderful rally and driving vicious rights and lefts to the head. Willard seemed on the point of going down and he walked to his corner unsteadily. It was the most exciting round of the fight.

Round Eight.

Willard jabbed twice to the head, as they came out, and Moran backed away trying to set himself for a punch. They jabbed at long range and Willard's reach told. A left to the head shook Willard up and was followed by another. It landed high. Moran then backed away and landed a right on Willard's head. It landed solidly. Another right sent Willard back and he came at Moran with his left extended. The blond changed his tactics and drove for the body. Willard was forced to the ropes and Moran rained blows at his head. At the bell Moran landed a left and right to Willard's head, spinning him around.

Round Nine.

Moran ran across the ring, at the beginning of the round and drove for Willard as he went out from his corner. Willard blocked the blows and they sparred away to the center. Moran landed two rights and missed a left. He dug into Willard with both hands and was doing all the fighting. He set for a right hand and Willard's tantalizing left taps knocked him off his balance. Moran smiled as another jab hit him on the teeth. A hard right made Willard look serious. Moran was having great difficulty in landing solidly because of the champion's great height. Willard backed him to the ropes and Moran waited to see what he would do. They were working close at the bell.

Round Ten.

They came out for the last round and White stepped between them, as they shook hands. Willard jabbed and forced Moran away. The blond tried desperately to get close, but Willard's reach was too much for him. He held him at arm's length and peppered him as he tried to work close. Willard used his right uppercut, but it didn't hurt. Frank was working against obstacles and he could not get close. Willard seemed the fresher of the two. It was a slow round, with Willar waiting for Moran to try his right. They were sparring at the bell.

Less Than a Dozen Federals, Twirlers Excepted, Will Be Seen in Big Leagues

Browns and Cubs Will Account for Eight of These

Tigers, Red Sox, Phillies and Pirates Will Have Practically Stand-pat Clubs in the Field—Thirty New Players in All Expected to Break In.

WHEN the 16 major league clubs start the 1916 marathon on April 12, there is a possibility that 30 players who are new to American and National League fans will be in the batting orders of the different teams. Below is the probable make-up of each club. Of course, they are not official, but they are what may be expected from present indications.

Contrary to the general belief, former Federal Leaguers do not hold the whip hand among the newcomers. In all probability there will be no more than 11 players from last year's "outlaw" circuit—not counting pitchers—in the opening day lineups. And eight of these are with the Browns and Cubs. That leaves the other 14 clubs to place only three. They are Magee, with Yankees; Rariden, with the Giants, and Koney, with the Braves.

Of course, Gedeon of the Yanks and Johnston of the Superbas could be figured in this list, as they were taken over from the Feds. But they had no records in the Federal, so they are really coming up from the minors.

Just one club in the American, Detroit, will open with the same front from lead-off man to pitcher that was used last season. In the National, the Phillies will present the same line up, as will probably the Pirates.

Five New Brownies Probable.

There probably will be five new faces, all former Feds, in the Browns' lineup. The Cardinals will have at least two, possibly three, new men in the battle line when they open against the Pirates.

Of the youngsters, who will probably open with the 16 clubs, nearly all had brief tryouts at the end of the 1915 season.

Following are the probable lineups of the teams as they will face each other April 12:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

ST. LOUIS-PITTSBURG.

ROY CORHAN, a certainty, and either Jack Smith or Walton Cruise, in the outfield will be the new faces in the Cards' lineup when they face the Pirates in the first game of the N. L. marathon. Huggins has several other newcomers that probably will be retained. Four of them are pitchers, one a catcher and the other an infielder. But if the Cards are to do anything, it's up to the pitchers and Corhan.

The Pirates, although they slipped badly last season, will probably rely on the same players they used in 1915. Neither of the newcomers, Schultz or Smith in the infield, has shown much. There is a possibility that Art Wilson, obtained from the Cubs, will be the main reliance behind the bat instead of Gibson.

PITTSBURG—Adams, Harmon, Cooper, Kantlehner, Mamaux, *Hill, *Moran and *Slattery, pitchers; *Wilson, *Schmidt or W. Wagner, catchers; *Schultz and *Smith, infielders; *Altenburg and Costello, outfielders.

*New players.

CINCINNATI-CUBS.

ALTHOUGH Manager Herzog grabbed six Federal Leaguers, it looks as if the holdovers have the call. John Beall, grabbed late last fall, has the preference for the only open position, center field, and is scheduled to start there. That will be the lone change in the battle front. The ex-Feds will probably be retained as substitutes, while there will be three new pitchers, Schulz and Moseley from the Feds, and Mitchell, a southpaw.

Joe Tinker of the Cubs has practically decided on his lineup, which includes six former National Leaguers and three Feds. The latter are Flack, Yerkes and Doolan. Mulligan, the St. Louis boy, will without a doubt remain as an extra infielder. He's the only youth who will get this honor.

*New players.

NEW YORK-PHILADELPHIA.

OF course, Benny Kauff will be the main addition to the Giants, but McGraw has a youngster named Kelly in the South, who is expected to show up in great style. He is a nephew of Bill Lange, and already has been selected by McGraw to play right. The main strengthening the Giants have done is to sign Rariden, a catcher, and Kauff and Kely in the outfield. The infield will be the same. McGraw has practically the same pitchers, with Anderson of the Buffeds a newcomer.

For the Phillies to repeat their triumph of last season, Grover Alexander and the other flingers will have to do just as well as they did in 1915. The only new men for the Phils will be Devore and Good, two veteran outfielders, and Karl Adams, a pitcher formerly with the Cubs. Nothing but veterans will man the positions opening day.

PHILADELPHIA — Alexander, Mayer, Rixey, Baumgartner, Chalmers McQuillan, Damaree, Tincup and *Adams, pitchers; Burns and Adams, catchers; Byrne and Dugey, infielders; *Good and *Devore, outfielders.

*New players.

BOSTON-BROOKLYN.

ED KONEY, former Cardinal and Pirate, last season with the Pittsburg Feds, will be the only new face in the Braves' lineup this year. Johnny Evers, Walter Maranville and all the others will be at their old places. Stallings did little strengthening by signing new players.

There's no telling about Brooklyn. Robinson has a veteran pitching staff, a veteran infield, Jimmy Johnston will be the only addition to the infield, while Chief Meyers has been grabbed from the Giants to help out behind the bat. The Brooklyn manager will have to rely on his old-timers to do as well as last year.

*New players.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

ST. LOUIS-CLEVELAND.

FROM present indications, Fielder Jones will have at least four, possibly five former Feds in his first lineup. The possibility is Ernie Johnson, shortstop, who at present is on the injured list. The others are Marsans, Tobin, Borton and Hartley. Without a doubt the Browns will have the greatest collection of substitute material ever owned by a major league outfit.

While the Indians are picked to run last by most critics, the club should do better than last season. Gandil has been assigned to first and Ivan Howard, the former Brown, to third. Then Larry Chappell will be in the outfield. Everything, though, is up to Fohl's pitching, with Morton and Mitchell as the main reliances.

*New players.

DETROIT-CHICAGO.

THE Tigers will have a veteran team from A to Z. A substitute infielder and an extra outfielder, besides one or two pitchers, are the only new players snared by Jennings. So it's all up to Cobb, Crawford & Co., as well as the left-over twirlers. If Cobb and Crawford continue at the pace of the past years, the Jungaleers will be there or thereabouts.

The same goes for the White Sox, with the possible addition of George Moriarty, former Tiger, who is booked to play third. No phenoms have been found among the youths coming up from the minors.

*New players.

NEW YORK-WASHINGTON.

BILL DONOVAN owns the club that will have to be watched. There will be at least four new faces in the front—Gilhooley, Magee, Baker and Gedeon. Then Maisel has been shifted to the outfield. Besides the probable regulars, Donovan has good extra material. The catching staff is the chief worry, being made up of two youngsters and a slow veteran.

Three rookies—Judge at first, Rondeau in left and possibly Barber in right—will be introduced by Manager Griffith of the Nationals. The pitchers of last season will have to do the bulk of the twirling, Dumont and Harper being the only real "finds" among the hurlers. The club from present indications is not strong on substitutes.

*New players.

BOSTON-PHILADELPHIA.

THE Red Sox chances to repeat seem to rest on Tris Speaker at the present time. Tris has not signed his contract for the coming season, while, barring Agnew, former Brown, no new players of worth have been obtained. It will be a veteran team.

Connie Mack is chaperoning the big question mark of the majors. There's no telling just what the Athletic leader will do. He has only three venteran pitchers, two veteran infielders, McInnis and Lajoie, while the outfield is only fair. All the youngsters, barring two, came from Class B, C and D circuits.

St. Louis Boy One of Few Recruits Expected to Win Regular Berth This Year

ONLY a half dozen of the rookies, who are likely to be in the opening day lineups, are being rated as real comers by the critics who are in the South. Two of these, Roy Corhan and Jack Smith, are members of the Cardinals. Corhan is rated as the best shortstop coming to the Cards in a good many days, while Smith is looked upon as a star outfielder.

The others who have drawn lavish boosts are Frank Gilhooley of the Yanks, who is making another attempt to make good; Kelly of the Giants, Judge of the Nationals, and Larry Chappel with the Cleveland club.

Three others to be retained as substitutes have drawn a good deal of praise. They are Mulligan, the St. Louis boy with the Cubs, and Maisel and Heilman with the Tigers.

Tuthill Wants Early Start.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., March 25.—The 1916 University of Michigan football squad may be conditioned by Trainer Harry Tuthill for a week or more next autumn before the arrival of Head Coach Fielding H. Yost. It is understood here that Tuthill has written to Coach Yost, asking permission to take charge of the candidates at an early date so he can lay before them his training plans which proved successful in his handling of squads at West Point for several seasons. Tuthill also expects to confer with the players before the coming summer vacation. He intends to ask them to begin conditioning themselves during the hot months.

To Use Finger Prints.

CINCINNATI, March 25.—The plan of introducing the finger print system into semi-pro and amateur baseball is being discussed by members of the National Baseball Federation here. The subject was brought up by one of the Cleveland delegates, who told of an incident last summer when a player's name was signed by two contracts. The player claimed that one was a forgery and after this incident was related numerous others were told, so it is probable that the innovation of finger print methods of identification will at least be taken up by the Federation at its next meeting.

Last year the Post-Dispatch printed 43,724 Male Help Wanted Ads, just 11,000 more than its nearest competitor.

Pride of the Patch Tries Desperately to Put Rival Away in the Fifth and Eighth.

TUESDAY'S FIGHT CARD

MAIN BOUT—Johnny King of Chicago vs. Matty Smith of Racine, Wis., 8 rounds at 133 pounds at 3 o'clock.

SEMI - WINDUP — Howard Richardson of Bonne Terre, Mo., vs. Joe McMullen of St. Louis, 8 rounds at 133 pounds at 3 o'clock.

PRELIMINARIES — George Witt vs. Jimmy Clarey, 6 rounds at 110 pounds; Kid Brown vs. Tommy Belrose, 6 rounds at 140 pounds.

Harry Trendall and Sailor Jerabek, both of St. Louis, boxed eight rounds at the South Broadway Athletic Club last night, with Referee Randall calling the contest a draw.

How the official reached this decision is hard to understand. While Jerabek had a shade in the first round and held Harry fairly even in the second, the "Pride of the Patch" took every round thereafter, the majority of them by a good margin.

Especially in the fifth round did Trendall give the Sailor a good lacing. Shortly after the start of this round Harry landed a terrific right uppercut to the face. The blood spurted from Jerabek's nose and mouth. Jerabek immediately clinched and held on like a leech. Trendall tried desperately for a knockout, but the Sailor's holding and covering prevented Harry from reaching the right spot.

Jerabek on Defensive.

Jerabek was virtually on the defensive for the remainder of the bout and besides doing a lot of holding, butted Harry with head and shoulder, also using his forearm and elbow while holding. Trendall made one of the best fights of his career in a local ring.

He feinted Jerabek into leads and jabbed his left to the Sailor's face repeatedly as the latter came in. After the second round Harry evaded Jerabek's attempts to land right and left swings by stepping inside with short punches to the head and body.

In fact, the Sailor was bewildered as to how to make a lead, as Harry picked the blows out of the air before they were fairly started. Harry picked off Jerabek's leads a good deal as if he were picking cherries off a tree.

Harry also used excellent footwork throughout the bout, his dazzling speed having the Sailor irritated. Trendall started the eighth round with the evident intention of scoring a knockout, and almost succeeded, by landing two solid rights to the body, which made Jerabek wince. Harry became a little wild, though, and could not finish the job.

1400 Fans on Hand.

About 1400 fans were on hand. The Post-Dispatch representative made a canvass of the crowd after the bout and it can be safely said that the sentiment of about 1375 considered Trendall an easy winner. The referee's verdict of a draw was surely a bad one. Both boys weighed in at 3 o'clock under the required weight of 145 pounds.

In the semi-windup at 115 pounds Charles (Red) Johnston of this city gained the referee's decision in eight rounds over Charles "Kid" Vanck, also a local lad, in a close contest which was marred by much holding and wrestling.

Kid Bandy, of this city, was an easy winner over Everett Anderson, of Duquoin, Ill., in an eight-round affair. Eddie Randall refereed all contests and named Bandy and Johnston winners, while he called the main event a "draw."

Former Federal Leaguer Gets Two of Four Hits Made by McGraw's Men.

DALLAS, Tex., March 25.—Good pitching and timely hitting won this afternoon for the Detroit Americans, 5 to 2, over the New York Nationals. The same teams will meet here again tomorrow. About 4000 enthusiastic fans from all sections of the Southwest saw the game. Ty Cobb did not play, his arrival having been delayed by the fire at Augusta, Ga., his home.

Benny Kauff was there in all his glory and to some extent the former Fed star showed that all the nice things that he had said about himself, were not press agent stories. He was up four times, grabbed two safe hits, stole a base and scored one run. In the outer garden he had only one opportunity which he handled in a perfectly satisfactory manner.

Murray Ties Record.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 25.—Fred S. Murray, captain of the Stanford track team, tied the world's record for the 220-yard low hurdles on a curved track at the annual field and track meet today of Stanford University and the Los Angeles Athletic Club. His time was 24 4-5 seconds.

Willard's Opponent, Who Lost the Fight, but Gained $26,750

FRANK MORAN.

Willard Outpoints Moran

body and, rushing in again with his head down, swung his left to the head, following with a right to the other side of the head.

Willard held him away again with his long left jabs, but Moran got in close with both hands. This was Moran's best round and after the bout was over his advantage was explained by Willard's manager, who stated that the champion had broken some bones in his right hand during this round. If Willard met with an accident, he didn't show it, as he used his right occasionally, but not forcefully during the next three rounds.

In the seventh, after Willard had inflicted a good deal of punishment on the challenger, Moran, in a wonderful rally, landed his left and four rights in succession on Willard's head and forced the champion to the ropes at the bell. Moran's face was covered with blood from his eye and nose in the eighth but he withstood several hard jabs and doggedly kept on boring in on Willard.

He swung both hands to the head but Willard was still too cool with his long left for Moran's blows to take effect. Moran landed a good left swing on Jess' ear as the bell sounded and earned an even break in this round. Moran persistently rushed in the ninth, but several of his swings were blocked.

Champion Used Jabs.

Jess kept jabbing with his left, but Moran tore in with a swinging right to the body and swung his left to the head. Then Willard jabbed him at will, but Frank rushed again and landed two right swings before he was met with a right uppercut, which forced him against the ropes from which he sprang with a high right swing on the head, finishing the round, the honors of which were again even.

In the final session the champion kept working left jabs to the face, planting six of them without a return, although Moran was trying hard to land an overhand blow. Willard blocked another rush and jolted with his right and left as Moran bored in. At close quarters Willard drove a half-arm right to the wind and sent two short lefts and two rights to the head. Before the round ended he planted at least a half dozen short-arm blows on Moran's face.

The awarding of the bout to Willard on points was virtually unanimous among the experts about the ringside, although all gave Moran credit for his gameness and continual efforts to land a punch on the champion that would bring down his gigantic opponent.

Among the papers whose representatives gave Willard the bout on points were the following:

Galleries Packed Early.

The doors of Madison Square Garden opened late. A jostling crowd, impatient at the delay, poured through the runways in single file, tickets in hand.

The big hall filled slowly. The galleries, so close to the roof that a tall man standing tiptoe could have touched the rafters with his finger tips, were packed tight long before the bare spots on the floor began to disappear.

The faces in galleries, balconies, boxes and the ends of the big oval floor blurred into indistinct splotches of white in the glare of the big mercury lamps above the ring. In frail looking perches swung from the rail of the second balcony, the moving picture men focused their cameras on the ring.

The preliminaries began, but for all the crowd cared the boxers might as well have been pummeling each other in their own backyards. The spectators were interested only in the big bout and they were willing to wait.

John L. Sullivan, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Corbett, all one time holders of the heavyweight championship, had seats close to the ring.

Among those holding box-seat tickets were J. P. Morgan, Reginald C. Vanderbilt, "Diamond Jim" Brady, David Belasco, Enrico Caruso, Lindley M. Garrison, Gen. W. Coleman Du Pont and Mayor Curley of Boston.

Many Women at Ringside.

There were scores of women in the great throng. Some sat in the arena boxes, but mostly they were in the balconies.

Jess Willard was the first to enter the ring, climbing through the ropes at 9:37. He was accompanied by his manager and chief second, Tom Jones, and Second Walter Monahan, Jack Hemple and Ray Archer.

Willard appeared to be exceptionally cool and at ease and stepped across the ring to shake hands with Frank Moran, who arrived three minutes later. Moran was seconded by Willie Lewis, Frank Kendall, Bill McKinnon and Joe Kelly.

The time-keepers were: For Moran, Joe Considine; for Willard, Harry Weiss, and for the club, Dr. Muth.

Willard wore soft bandages which were wrapped tightly around his knuckles. Moran's bandages, in sharp contrast, extended well above his wrists. Willard was clad around the loins by heavy red worsted tights while Moran wore dark green trunks of a similar texture.

While the two heavyweights sat in their corners, Bob Fitzsimmons, J. J. Corbett, Kid McCoy and John L. Sullivan were introduced in turn, the last of the quartet being given a tremendous ovation. All the former ring stars shook hands with the principals of the big bout.

Moran Appears Nervous.

During these ceremonies Moran appeared annoyed and nervous over the delay, while Willard leaned back on the ropes and smiled a noncommittal smile. He frequently looked across the ring to Moran's corner, but the challenger appeared to avoid the champion's eye.

New York Herald, Times, Tribune World, Sun, American, Press, Evening Telegram, Evening Mail, Evening Journal, Telegraph and Philadelphia Inquirer.

Moran refused to make any statement after the bout other than to say there would have been no fighting if he had not taken the aggressive throughout the ten rounds.

Willard left the garden immediately after the bout, refusing to be interviewed by newspaper men.

Dr. Lewis Morris, who attended the champion at his hotel, said that Willard had suffered a slight fracture of the joint of the first index finger of his right hand, early in the fight.

He added, however, that the big fellow otherwise was in good condition and that the injury to the finger would not trouble him more than a day or two.

Rickard said after the fight:

"Moran put up a good fight. He's a darn good boy. Willard was much slower than I thought he'd be. If he broke his right hand, as it said he claimed he did, it did not seem to make much difference. He didn't seem to need his right a great part of the time."

FRENGER TAKES LEAD IN NORTH SIDE PIN EVENT

H. Frenger last night took the lead in the individuals of the North Side handicap tournament with a total of 679, aided by a donation of 84 maples. His scratch games were 177, 214 and 204 for a 595 total. W. Frenger took eighth place with 615, while J. Heidelberg took ninth with 612.

Lamb and Biehle, 1208, took third in the doubles and Hruska and Johnson, 1147, tenth place.

PARK GOLF STARS TO COMPETE FOR ST. LOUIS TROPHY

Walter Thompson, Local Sport Booster, Donates Trophy Valued at $1000.

ST. LOUIS GETS FINALS

National Municipal Championship at Tennis and Golf to Be Decided Here.

Walter D. Thompson of 5045 Lindell boulevard, a St. Louis insurance man, who has for the past few years been a devotee of municipal athletic recreation and interested in the promotion of it in intercity competition, announced at the second day's session of the newly organized National Municipal Recreation Federation, held in the office of Director of Public Welfare Emil Tolkacz, yesterday morning, that he would place a massive silver trophy in permanent competition for an annual national municipal golf tournament.

The trophy will be in the form of a large placque and is to be known as "The St. Louis Trophy." When he made known his intention of giving the trophy, Thompson desired not to have his name mentioned in connection with it. After much persuasion on the part of his associates, he decided to make himself known as the donor, but stipulated that the prize be named after the city which has done most to promote municipal athletic competition. Although the design has not been decided upon, the value of the placque will be between $1000 and $1200.

Inasmuch as the United States Tennis Association has also placed in competition a prize for a similar tournament of tennis play, the national municipal racqueters will also have an incentive for play.

Trophies Go to Cities.

Both trophies will go to the municipalities which have won the respective titles, inasmuch as teams will compete for supremacy, instead of individuals. The plan of competition is that each city decide its own representative team by an elimination tourney. Then the country will be divided into sections. Neighboring sections will eliminate each other until the finals round. The finals match will be played in a certain designated city, while the winning team in this match will meet the team representing the city in which the match has been played for national supremacy.

St. Louis has this year been awarded the finals round. Should New York and Denver be the final survivors of the sectional play, these two teams would meet in this city, the winning team to play the local stars.

Nine cities were represented at the two days' meeting here, while Denver, unable to send a delegate, was represented by proxy. The other cities represented were New York, Cincinnati, St. Paul, Racine, Wis., Hartford, Conn., Worcester, Mass., Peoria, Ill., Springfield, Ill., and St. Louis. It is expected that at least 20 municipalities will enter the first season's tournament play. The 1916 tournaments will be held during August and September.

Davis Named President.

St. Louis received two offices in the first annual election yesterday. Dwight F. Davis of this city was elected president; Cabot Ward of New York, first vice president; Irwin Krohn of Cincinnati, second vice president; Nelson Cunliff, St. Louis, Park Commissioner, secretary and treasurer. An executive committee, consisting of one representative of each city in the federation, will be appointed in a short time. The 1917 conclave will be held during the third week of March, the place to be decided by the Executive Board.

A constitution and bylaws were accepted at yesterday's meeting. It was decided by the organization to foster only golf and tennis during the present year, but it is expected that other branches of athletic endeavor will be taken over, possibly next year. According to the constitutional code, any amateur, man, woman or child, irrespective of age, may join the local associations and thereby become a subject of the federation. A move to eliminate members of clubs was made and argued pro and con to some extent. Finally it was decided to allow club members in the organization.

At noon yesterday the two-day meeting was brought to a close, suffixed by a vote of satisfaction by all of the delegates. The delegates then had lunch at the Missouri A. A., took a spin through the city, visiting all of the parks, and witnessed the Relay Carnival at the Coliseum in the evening.

LOOKING THEM OVER WITH OLD MAN DOPE

By John Edward Wray

Fights Will Be Handled Like This—A. D. 1950.

OLD MAN DOPE, unscathed as a result of taking to the bombproof just before the big battle in New York began, blew into the office, early this morning, looking like a consumptive bank account—a bit over drawn.

"On the wrong end of the bet again, eh?" queried the cynical Sport

"Never heard of a 'right end' to any gambling adventure," commented the Old Top. "I've been ever since Friday night trying to remember correctly the details of a certain fight. It was a new thing to me.

"How was that—I don't remember anything of importance doing, last night," his Sportship remarked.

"This was SOME show. In the first place the arrangements were unparalleled in my experience. At the entrance they made everybody check their cigars. When you passed the stile keeper an usher clothed in livery and a look of intelligence showed you the exact seat that BELONGED to you.

"Furthermore, the seats had been DUSTED. My chair happened to be in the press box, which was occupied by newspaper men instead of deadheads. Fact!

Few Will Believe This.

"Be calm—I know it sounds improbable. But it's just as I tell you: The show started promptly on the hour advertised! The men with gloves already tied on were in their chairs five minutes ahead of time. There were NO introductions from the ring.

"Simultaneously, in the various sections of the hall, dictaphones called off the names of the men, weights and conditions of the bout. Then an automatic gong, attached to a patent clock, placed over the ring, rang and a sign dropped, announcing. "Round one." The boxers began.

'The referee sat OUTSIDE the ring in full dress and called "Break" when the boys found difficulty in separating. Without further order the boys 'broke' at the word, throughout the bout.

Down With the Germ!

"At the end of the round the AUTOMATIC CLOCK rang, sign 'Round two' dropped, and the contestants walked back to their corners. Here a small platform section of the floor sank and then rose again bearing the boxer's stool, a bottle of pure water, a palm leaf fan, collodion, an antiseptic and a CLEAN towel.

"Deaf-MUTE seconds handled the respective boxers.

"Between rounds an illuminated BULLETIN BOARD enlightened onlookers as to the progress of the bout in the opinion of the official, such as:

"Round 1. Smith landed oftener and with cleaner blows.

"Round 2. Smith lost his advantage, owing to constant holding, while hitting.

"Round 3. Jones outpointed Smith, etc.

"At the end of each intermission the auto-clock rang the start of each round, no possibility of a mistake existing.

"As fast as one bout ended the men for the next, all gloved, were sent into the ring and the boxing made practically continuous. The winner of one bout was hardly flashed on the electric board before the next contest was started.

The Score Was 60 to 53.

"A point system was used for scoring, TWO JUDGES assisting the referee, one watching the defensive and the other the attacking points.

"The victory went to the man scoring the most points. At the end of each contest the score was posted: Smith 65, less 5 fouls: 60 net; Jones 50, less 7 fouls: 43 net."

"Hold on, there," interrupted the sporting editor. "What about knockouts—how did you score them?"

"Knockdowns or KNOCKOUTS were scored as so many POINTS, too, like any other blow, only a greater number were allowed for the sleep-producer."

"Then it was possible for a man to be knocked out and still win?" inquired the sporting editor.

"To be sure," continued the Old Scout, calmly. "For example, when Jimmy Murphy knocked out Harry Kabakoff at the Coliseum, after having had the tar whaled out of him for seven rounds, he would have lost. Under this system, one punch can't neutralize the otherwise complete advantage of the other fellow."

"Well, I'll be—decidedly surprised," remarked the S. E. "That must have been SOME fight."

"It wasn't a fight at all," wound up Old Dope, "it was a dream."

A Gotham Fight Lexicon.

IN order to simplify for our readers the somewhat technical expressions employed in stories of boxing contests, Old Man Dope has compiled the following list, applicable in most of our world's championship contests:

FIGHT—A primitive and exhausting exchange of blows, formerly common in boxing contests. Now practically obsolete.

CHAMPION—(a) A meal ticket for a manager. (b) A financier. (c) One who lifts mortgages on the old homestead. (d) A cowboy. (e) Sometimes a strong variety of cheese.

MANAGER—A cheesemonger.

CHAMPIONSHIP—A section of EASY STREET, extending between TITLE and HASBEEN avenues.

ARENA—A place to introduce preliminary fighters.

RING—A rest room for boxers; called "ring" because it's perfectly square.

MADISON "GARDEN"—Presumably so-called from the "bloomers" shown there.

REFEREE—An opaque body interposed between spectators and the boxers.

SIDE-BET—A figure of speech.

CONFIDENCE—A frame of mind that enters strongly into the make-up of boxers and the sale of gold bricks.

SECOND—A preliminary fighter, hired to tell the world's champion what to do.

FIGHT FAN—An optimist.

PRINCIPALS—They draw interest.

STAKEHOLDER—One who receives the stakes and a lot of abuse.

ANNOUNCER—A loud noise, entirely surrounded by diamonds.

PUBLIC—Philanthropists who would rather give up a week's salary than see a champion reduced to his last $100,000.

PRESS BOX—A congregating place for politicians and city officials.

NO-DECISION BOUT—Not as wicked as "highway robbery" and far more legal than "false pretenses," as a quick-rich method.

SANDERS ANOTHER LOCAL STAR TO GET 300 SCORE

John Sanders, one of the veterans of the tenpin game and formerly a member of the Hyde Park team, yesterday afternoon rolled a perfect 300 game at Peterson's alleys. Sanders had 17 strikes in a row, first counting his 300 and starting the next with five strikes before a break came.

The 300 count for Sanders is the third one at Peterson's since the alleys were opened. Milton Fink and John Eckrich bowled the other pair.

Built for the Business Farmer

The Dort was built for the business farmer. For 29 years Dort had been building farm vehicles. He knew what the farmer wanted for vehicles and what he needed in an automobile.

If an automobile is going to be a business asset to the farmer he must be able to use it every day in the year; when the roads are deep with snow; when the temperature is far below zero; and again in the spring when the frost is coming out of the ground and the mud is so deep and thick that the average car will sink to the hubs and be hopelessly mired.

The Dort is built for these conditions. It is a real farmer's automobile. The price, $665, puts it within the reach of every business farmer. Its light weight insures low cost of operation.

From every standpoint of mechanical excellence and appearance the Dort merits a careful investigation of the Business Farmer.

Graeff Opposes Rood in Tenpin Feature Today

Good Matches Are Scheduled for All-Star Individual Tourney at Peterson's.

Freddie Graeff, the lone southpaw competing in the all-star individual tournament at Peterson's, and who at present is showing the way for his 11 right-handed rivals, will oppose Harry Rood in what should prove the feature match today. On past performances Graeff should be returned an easy winner.

Another good match is that between Howard Smith and Carl Giessow, while Jerry Ameling and Oscar Whitehead should collect their share of "wood" when they oppose each other. The clash between Waldecker and Randall promises to be a close one, as should that with Schmitt and Hilker meeting each other.

Brace Jarrett has reported sick and Harry Deen will substitute for him for the match with Con Fuerman. Jarrett at present is in second place, and it's up to Deen to win in order to keep him in the runner-up position.

The complete schedule: 2:15 o'clock, Smith vs. Giessow; Graeff vs. Rood. 3 o'clock, Waldecker vs. Randall; Hilker vs. Schmitt. 3:45 o'clock, Ameling vs. Whitehead; Deen vs. Fuerman.

Poor Scores in A. B. C.

TOLEDO, O., March 25.—Carl Maudlin and H. Kilbuck of Kokomo, Ind., rolled into sixteenth place in the two-man event of the American Bowling Congress tourney this morning with 1218. Hagerman and Welsh of Youngstown were second high with 1153. Frank Shaw of Chicago and Ben Hussman of Cincinnati, who are tied for the lead in the singles with 685, have been notified by Secretary Langtry to appear here at 6 p. m. on Wednesday and roll one game for the national title unless their mark is beaten in the next three days.

M. A. A. to Play C. B. C. Team for Municipal Title

Final Soccer Contest of the Season Is Scheduled for Today at Fairground.

The final soccer game of the season is scheduled for today, when the Missouri A. A. and Christian Brothers' College teams fight it out for the municipal championship at Fairground. The winner of the contest also will grab a leg on the challenge cup, which must be won three times before it becomes the property of an aggregation. The Ruuds and Olympians furnish the preliminary at 1:30 o'clock.

C. B. C. landed the title last year and is favored to defeat the Cherry Diamond kickers in today's battle. The college eleven has had an easy time winning its two elimination games, while the M. A. A. was forced to the limit to beat the Teresas last week.

Paul McSweeney, referee for the St. Louis League, will officiate today. Phil Kavanaugh, C. Roche, F. Healy and A. Kennedy will act as linesmen, with Otto Kaiser and T. J. Lyster as timers.

The lineups and numbers of the players follow:

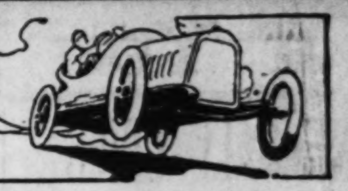
AUTOMOBILE NEWS



HOW MOTOR OF GASOLINE AUTO IS KEPT COOL

By WILLIAM H. STEWART, Jr., President Stewart Automobile School

There are two ways of cooling the gasoline type motor. One is by air; the other is by water. Each employs different methods. For instance, the air-cooled type motor may use the forced air system whereby the air is drawn through jackets about the cylinder or the ordinary system as employed on the motor cycle, whereby the cooling effort depends upon the forward momentum of the vehicle. In water-cooled motors there are two methods employed also, namely, the thermo-siphon system and the force-feed system, wherein a pump is employed to impel circulation. Each is used extensively to advantage.

Before discussing in detail the methods used it seems best to give some explanation as to why cooling is necessary. The efficiency of a gas engine depends upon the number of heat units converted into useful work. When a charge of gas is drawn into the cylinder and compressed by the upward stroke of piston it is ready for the spark. When ignition takes place the charge burns very rapidly and the resulting expansion forces the piston outward, effecting the power stroke. Considering that several hundred or more of these explosions must take place within the cylinder each minute one may readily appreciate the necessity for the cooling system. If some method of cooling were not employed lubrication of the parts would be impossible. The piston and rings would seize within the cylinder and score the walls. Likewise, bearings would burn out. Even though the best grade of lubricating oil were employed this seizure of the metals could not be prevented.

Good Cooling System Necessary.

It is true that a gas engine develops its greatest efficiency when hot, therefore the necessity arises for a well designed cooling system which will not permit the motor to become overheated nor absorb too much heat, thereby detracting power.

A well designed cooling system maintains the water at a point just below that of boiling. If the water were permitted to boil much would be lost by evaporation and trouble result. Likewise in the air cooled type motor efficient cooling must be maintained to prevent the burning of the lubricant and warpage of the valves, due to excessive heat, etc.

While the air cooled type has some advantages over the water cooled type, nevertheless it has not been universally adopted. Simplicity of construction and less weight are advantageous. Also in zero weather there is no possibility of freezing. The latest method of air cooling is to force the air by means of a fan or fly wheel through an air jacket about the cylinder. This system has proved very efficient, especially where the motor has the auxiliary exhaust valves.

In water cooled types of engines there are two systems used to obtain the cooling effect of the water, namely, the thermo-siphon system and the force pump system. In the thermo-siphon system the circulation of the water depends upon the heated water about the cylinders rising and the cool water coming in to take its place. In this system the radiator and all connection pipes are of liberal size, decreasing as much as possible the resistance to the flow of water.

In the force pump system the water is circulated in and about the cylinders by means of a pump. This pump is driven by the engine and its speed varies with the engine. Thus the circulation of the water is controlled in a way by the motor, and the troubles resulting from its use are purely mechanical. Quite often dirt or other foreign matter will lodge in the pump, causing a broken pump blade or tooth, or perhaps wedging the pump and causing a broken pump shaft. In such an instance everything appears in good order, but the circulation of the water is practically blocked and a hot engine is the result. However, it is not difficult to locate trouble in the water pump.

As the water enters the pump from the base of the radiator and is from there forced into the cylinders, one can easily remove the connection just beyond the pump and observe the flow of water. Of course, when the engine is started additional water must be fed to the radiator. This test will plainly show the efficiency of the pump. Should the pump work properly and should all the hose be in order, then the obstruction will be undoubtedly be found in the radiator.

Let us revert to the drawing for a brief explanation of how the cooling system works.

The water must circulate from radiator A through manifold B and cylinder casting C. As the water becomes heated, due to the successive explosions within the cylinder, it becomes lighter and rises, passing through manifold D back to the top of the radiator. As soon as the heated water enters the radiator it is spread out into thin sheets and cooled. In this manner a natural heated water takes place, namely, as the heated water rises cool water comes in to take its place. This is called the thermo-siphon or gravity system.

The air in fan E is installed just back of the radiator and is driven by the belt F. The object if this fan is to create a rush of air through the radiator, thereby cooling the water very quickly. Likewise a constant circulation of air is maintained over the cylinder block.

Two sections of the radiator are shown to illustrate how the water passes through. At K will be noted very small water passages which practically spread the water into sheets. At points M will be noted the air passages. Likewise at L is shown a section of the tubular type radiator wherein the water passes through small tubes. There are numerous radiating fins described at N which carry off the heat from the tubes. The rush of air passes these fins and between the tubes, effecting the cooling.

At this point it is well to note how readily the water of the radiator may freeze, since it is spread out into thin sheets in order to obtain a quick cooling effect. With this great exposed area the water is very soon frozen at low temperatures. In freezing water expands, thereby causing leaks in the radiator. If the temperature is low enough to freeze the water in the cylinder jacket the same will expand and crack the casting.

At H, I and J are shown a water pump which is incorporated in the forced feed circulating system. This pump is attached in circuit with manifold B and is mechanically driven by the motor. One of the gears, I, is positively driven, which in turn draws the water through the water inlet H and forces it out through J into the cylinder casting.

Both systems are universally used, it being a question of opinion among engineers as to which is the better method of cooling.

The thermo siphon system undoubtedly has many excellent features and is being used to a very great extent at present. As stated previously, the gas engine to be most efficient must be maintained at as normal a temperature as possible under all working conditions. In the thermo siphon system the water circulates rapidly as conditions require. That is to say, if the motor is forced to work hard, under a full throttle, and perhaps retarded spark, such as in climbing hills, etc., the water will circulate in a manner to meet this condition of running. Where the water pump is employed the circulation of water depends entirely upon the speed of the pump, which, in turn, depends upon the speed of the motor.

Referring to the drawing showing a cross section of the cylinder one may note how the water enters at point O and passes around through water jacket Q and out again at point P.

In this manner the cylinder is maintained at a normal temperature.

A few points should be given relative to maintaining the cooling system in proper working order. Occasionally the hose connections need replacing. While these may appear intact from the outside, nevertheless corrosion takes place on the inside, and quite often these hose connections close up and prevent proper circulation. Likewise an obstruction may get into the pump and cause the impelling gear to shear on the driving shaft. In such a case the pump would apparently be working, but the gears would not be rotating. This would result in blocking the circulation.

Then, again, the radiator at times needs attention. The water passages K and L are very small and when sediment or other foreign matter closes these passages considerable radiating area may be lost, which would cause overheating. Likewise, these water passages become coated with scale, which prevents proper radiation. In such an event, it is necessary to thoroughly clean the radiator with an alkali solution in order to remove this scale. Ordinarily, however, little attention is needed by the cooling system. The radiator should always be kept full at filler cap T, and it is advisable to use clean soft water. Water containing minerals will set up a scale deposit with the radiator and water jackets. In a short time this mineral deposit will become great enough to induce serious overheating.

Now Comes the Stunning 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers Cabriolet

Last autumn the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers was unveiled.

Recognition of its amazing merits was instant.

It proved the star performer at all the great automobile shows.

Now comes the 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers Cabriolet, and supreme engine speed weds closed-car comfort, elegance, and distinction. The performance of this new 3400 r. p. m. model is matched by the charm of the closed-car builder's art.

The enduring might of her 3400 r. p. m. motor puts speed where it belongs—in the clasp of almighty acceleration and singular fuel-economy.

The cataract of power from her speedy engine is held in sensible restraint—yet she'll go 60 miles an hour any time you say, while delivering 18 miles of marvelous going for every gallon of gas.

She's the season's favorite with women of taste for shopping jaunts, matinees, teas, and calls. So easy to drive that it won't wear out your wife or daughter to sit at the steering wheel. There's an uncommon amount of room, not only under the wheel but all around the wheel. Room for free swing of the elbows.

The heavy French plate glass windows are easy to adjust.

The top comes down for spring or summer use, giving you a handsome Six-30 Chalmers Roadster, and again a Cabriolet when another autumn rolls around. And so distinction weds utility.

This is a car that most families of taste cannot afford to be without.

I've stood at the curb watching closed cars of every make and kind, and there's none that goes about your business with lighter heart and surer step than this new 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers Cabriolet.

There's a mighty lure to every line. Folk turn to look at her as she passes proudly by. Body by Fisher. Either leather or cloth trim without extra cost.

It's the car you'll want your wife to have.

PARADE TO CELEBRATE FIFTY DELIVERIES

The delivery of 50 Studebaker automobiles of various styles in one day is to be celebrated next Saturday by the Weber Motor Car Co. by a parade through the downtown districts of St. Louis. The parade will start from the sales rooms at 2215 Locust street, and, as far as possible, the new owners will be asked to drive their own cars. For those who are still "green," drivers will be supplied. The parade will be nearly half a mile long. All cars will be decorated and the law against prolonged blowing of horns will probably be flagrantly violated.

HUDSON IN SEALED RADIATOR TEST

A story of radiator and carburetor efficiency is told by A. H. Patterson, Hudson distributer at Stockton, Cal. Using the same Hudson with which he made the record run of 10 days and 10 hours from Detroit to San Francisco, Mr. Patterson conducted a sealed radiator test. The radiator was filled and sealed at Stockton. There were four occupants, and all of them carried a fair amount of hand baggage. There also was camping and fishing paraphernalia.

The route was from Stockton to Yosemite Valley, via Tioga Ford to Summit. The altitude at this point was 10,000 feet. From there the way led to Mono Lake, Bridgeport, Antelope Valley, Carson Valley, Nev., over Kingsbury Canyon grade, which is 7500 feet high. From there the party drove to Lake Tahoe, then to Lake Valley and the summit of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, 7600 feet in altitude. From thence they went to Placerville, Plymouth, Amado County and home to Stockton, the entire distance of 500 miles. The radiator seal was not disturbed. Not one drop of water was placed in the car. No adjustment of any kind was made to the motor.

This is only one of the numerous instances demonstrating the absolute cooling efficiency of the Hudson radiator and the lack of necessity for adjustment of the Hudson carburetor. Hudson dealer John H. Phillips of the Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co. says that on these two reasons hang a great deal of the popularity of the Hudson.

The Hudson-Phillips Motor Car Co., distributer, reports the following deliveries of Hudson super-sixes during the past 10 days:

CARS MUCH NEEDED

The Moon Motor Car Co. has sent out a request to all of its dealers to unload their shipments of cars promptly as possible in order to relieve the scarcity of freight cars.

Many automobile manufacturers are dismantling their automobiles for shipment in box cars and many are using flat cars, according to Stewart McDonald, vice president of the Moon company. Some Detroit manufacturers are charging an additional price per car in order to take care of the cost of housing they are obliged to build in making shipments on flat cars.

In his communication to Moon dealers McDonald says: "In view of this situation every dealer can be of vital assistance by unloading shipments promptly. A delay of even a few hours ties up that car just that much and aggravates a serious situation. Dealers who don't unload promptly are doing an injustice to other dealers, because they are delaying future shipments. Let's all keep this in mind and work together.'

PAIGE
The Standard of Value and Quality

Now is the Time to Buy Your "Six-46"

Let us again urge you to place your order for a Fairfield "Six-46" as soon as you possibly can.

Don't wait too long—don't be too sure that you can buy to just as good advantage thirty or sixty days from now.

For—remember—there were three purchasers for each "Six-46" that we could turn out last year. And, up to the present time, there is every indication that this "sold out" condition will be repeated.

Then, also remember that the cost of manufacturing materials and labor is still soaring.

Already, several manufacturers have found it necessary to increase the list price of their cars, and more announcements of this kind are undoubtedly coming.

By early buying, we have done everything that we possibly could to protect ourselves and you. But in the face of a constantly rising market, we may be forced to increase prices proportionately.

From the present outlook there is no other alternative for we flatly refuse to compromise on the quality of our cars. We shall continue to use only the best materials—no matter how far the commodity prices may advance.

Of one thing you can be certain—the Paige "Six-46" will never cost less than $1295 this year. We absolutely guarantee this, but we can't undertake to guarantee against an advance.

Above all, please understand that this advertisement is written in a sincerely helpful spirit. It is by no means our purpose to "stampede" motor car buyers into early or ill-advised purchases.

We are merely telling you the facts—facts that can be readily substantiated by your banker or any man who is well informed in regard to industrial conditions.

We want you to drive a Paige, of course, but we have never found it necessary to resort to "expedients" in order to sell a single car of our production.

The "Six-46" now costs $1295. At that price, we honestly believe that it represents more actual dollar-for-dollar value than any other motor car on the market.

Wait too long—and you run the risk of paying more.

Place your order now, and you can rest assured that you will never regret the decision.

INSURANCE TAX EXEMPTIONS TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

Board of Equalization Also Hears Arguments in Regard to Bank Funds.

DISCUSSION IS VIGOROUS

Risk Firms Deny That Method of Reporting Assets Is Illegal.

The Board of Equalization heard arguments yesterday on the exemption of bank and insurance company funds on deposit in the Federal reserve banks or in other banks out of the State, and on other items of exemption asked by these companies. The questions were taken under advisement, it was announced by Assessor Schramm after an executive session.

The banks and trust companies have about $1,500,000 deposited out of the State or in the Federal reserve bank, on which the tax would be about $34,500, if it is held such funds are not exempt.

A vigorous discussion was heard by the board over the question of exempting the reserve funds which insurance companies are required by law to maintain for the protection of policy holders. District Assessor John H. Bohle represented the city's side in the discussion, and declared that the insurance companies have tried to exempt taxable assets that are not really included in the reserve funds. This is done, Bohle said, by first eliminating in their affidavits to the Assessor, all assets that are non-taxable under the law, even though some of these assets constitute part of the reserve fund. The companies then claim full exemption for the amount of their reserves, which, in effect, means that some of the assets not involved in the reserve funds would escape taxation.

Attorneys and officials of several insurance companies contended they were permitted by the law to practice this method of reporting taxation, and asserted that no taxable property escaped the Assessor because it could not be determined what assets represent the reserve funds and which the surplus. It is customary to invest insurance company money in Government bonds and corporation stocks that are exempt from taxation by law, they said, but there is no attempt made to segregate the reserve and surplus funds in making such investments.

Former Circuit Judge George H. Williams and Xenophon P. Wilfley represented the banks. The following insurance companies were represented: American Central, Central States, Missouri Life and Accident, Missouri State Life, Central States, Citizens and American Automobile Insurance companies, and the Equitable Surety Co., a bonding concern.

Man Who Says He Is Worth $75,000 Taxed on $23,300.

Charles H. Meichel, of 2608 Locust street, will be called before the Board of Equalization to explain the discrepancy between the assessed valuation of his property and the valuation placed upon it by him in qualifying as a bondsman.

Meichel, in qualifying to sign a $10,000 appeal bond, told Judge Grimm his property was worth $75,000 above liabilities. His property, he said, included a four-story brick hotel at 2606 and 2608 Locust street, for which he paid $40,000 in 1899, and a row of two-story brick houses, 2517 to 2525 North Broadway, for which he paid $18,000 in 1894. The Locust street property, he said was mortgaged for $12,500 and the Broadway property for $7000.

The Locust street property, he said, was assessed the last time at $18,500 and the Broadway property at $9500. He said he also had a personal estate of $7000.

Judge Grimm made inquiry and learned from the Assessor's office that the Locust street property was assessed for $16,900 and the Broadway property for $6150 and that no notes or bonds were listed in Meichiel's personal estate, which was assessed at only $250.

Judge Grimm called the attention of Assessor Schramm to the discrepancy, and Schramm laid it before the Board of Equalization.

WOMAN LOSES SIXTH CLAIM FOR DAMAGES IN FOUR YEARS

Court Decides Against Mrs. Mamie Haney in Suit Against Hippodrome Theater Co.

Mrs. Mamie Haney of 4280A Arsenal street, yesterday lost her sixth claim for damages for personal injuries in four years, when a jury in Circuit Judge Koerner's court decided against her in her suit for $7500 against the St. Louis Hippodrome Theater Co. Evidence was introduced at the trial that she had compromised four similar claims against the United Railways and one against the Terminal Association for a total of about $220.

In the Hippodrome case Mrs. Haney alleged she was injured at that theater, Nov. 24, 1914, as a result of an accident which occurred to a Chinese performer as he was sliding by his queue down a cable which had been suspended over the audience. Mrs. Haney occupied a seat near the stage, in front of her companion, Mrs. Ethel Ross of Warrensburg, Mo.

According to her petition the Chinese first struck Mrs. Ross with his feet, which caused her to fall against Mrs. Haney. About the same time the performer kicked Mrs. Haney on the right shoulder, it was alleged.

Mrs. Haney is the wife of Morris Haney, a shoe dealer.

LEWIS REINSTATED; 4 MORE IN MEDICAL SOCIETY QUIT

Physician's Vindication on Unethical Conduct Charge Brings New Withdrawals, Which Now Total 21.

The St. Louis Medical Society, at a meeting last night attended by about 100 members, passed a resolution vindicating Dr. Bransford Lewis, in regard to the charge of unethical conduct made against him by the society's board of censors, and reinstating him in membership.

As the result of this action, four more physicians added their names to the list of resignations from membership in the society, bringing the total resignations up to 21. Seventeen presented their resignations a week ago last night, because of the action favorable to Dr. Lewis, taken at a special meeting the night before.

It was voted to lay over the 21 resignations, and to consider them at a special meeting which is to be called by the president of the society, Dr. L. C. Boisliniere. A referendum vote of the entire membership, on the acceptance of these resignations, is to be taken in the meantime.

Those who presented their resignations last night were Drs. Joseph Grindon, C. E. Burford, R. Emmett Kane, and Walter Baumgarten, the last named being vice president. Those who presented their resignations a week ago last night were Drs. R. M. Funkhouser, Frank A. Glasgow, Charles W. Tooker, David E. Schmalhorst, D. D. Garstang, William Kerwin, E. P. Buddy, P. J. Farmer, George Richter, Emmett P. North, A. H. Hamel, M. A. Bliss, P. G. Hurford, Ralph L. Thompson, Robert E. Schlueter, F. C. E. Kuhlmann and Albert F. Koetter.

The charge of unethical conduct was based on the publication in a St. Louis newspaper last November of a part of a paper read by Dr. Lewis at a medical convention in Lexington, Ky. The paper told of experiments with a new anesthetic. The matter appeared under a date line, but it was alleged that Dr. Lewis furnished a copy of his paper to the St. Louis newspaper before going to Lexington, and that the matter was not given out officially by those in charge of the meeting. If it had been so given out, there would have been no objection to its publication.

The board of censors of the St. Louis Medical Society sustained the charges, and Dr. Lewis appealed to the society. At a special meeting Friday night, March 17, the vote was in his favor, but at the regular meeting the following night, when the 17 resignations were presented, it was voted to reconsider the action of the special meeting.

The resolution passed last night stated that counsel had advised the society that the action at the second meeting was illegal. Therefore, it was resolved that that action be "rescinded and held as naught," and that the president and secretary be directed to advise Dr. Lewis of the fact. This action leaves unchanged the vote at the meeting of March 17, which was in Dr. Lewis' favor and which rejected the action of the Board of Censors.

ARCHBISHOP WILL LAY CORNER STONE OF CHURCH TODAY

New Edifice of the Holy Name Parish Will Have a Tower 170 Feet High.

The corner stone of the new Catholic Church of the Holy Name, being erected at Grand avenue and Emily street, will be laid at 3 o'clock afternoon by Archbishop Glennon. Archbishop's escorts will be the Rev. Daniel J. Lavery and the Rev. Joseph Wentker. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Patrick J. Dooley, pastor of St. Bridget's Church.

The church will cost, including the ground, about $85,000. The building will be 70 feet wide and 141 feet long, with a seating capacity of 900. It is of the modern Romanesque style of architecture and was designed by James S. Lee, architect. The walls will be of variegated brick of dark tones, with buff terra cotta ornamentation. The interior will be finished with brick and terra cotta, practically avoiding the use of plaster and wood, and making the building virtually fireproof.

The campanile tower, crowned by its belfry and observatory of highly ornamental terra cotta, will be 170 feet high. A striking feature of the auditorium will be 10 large nave columns, with highly polished marble shafts with bases and foliated Corinthian capitols of cream terra cotta.

The church will be heated by steam and will be equipped with the most modern systems of lighting and ventilation. The building will be connected with the adjoining three-story parochial residence by a cloistered gallery. The Rev. C. E. Byrne is pastor of the parish, which has about 3000 members.

FALLS DEAD WHEN TOLD HER BROTHER HAS BEEN KILLED

Negress Killed by Shock of News That Relative Has Been Shot to Death in Saloon.

Mrs. Rose McDuffy, a negress, 43 years old, of 1115 Carr street, fell dead in her home last night when informed that her brother, Henry Anthony, 28 years old, of 1104 North Twelfth street, had been shot and killed. Anthony and his brother, Lee, were standing in the saloon of Tony Bartowsky, 1118 Carr street, when Richard Hill, also a negro, of 923 Carr street, stepped in the door and fired three shots.

Henry Anthony was struck twice. Hill was captured at Twelfth and Wash streets. He said he had trouble with Anthony several days ago over a craps game.

GERMAN RAIDER WAS SUNK TRYING TO RUN BLOCKADE

Official Account Tells of Battle Between the Greif and British Armed Merchantman.

LONDON, March 25.—The German raider Greif, which sank the 15,000-ton armed British merchantman Alcantara and was herself sunk in a battle in the North Sea, Feb. 29, was trying to run the British blockade and put to sea the day that the raider Moewe returned. Apparently it was thought the patrol squadron would be hunting for the Moewe. In the official announcement here today of the engagement of the vessels it was said that five German officers and 115 men, out of a total of 300, were captured. The British lost 74 men. The Greif was sunk by gun fire and the Alcantara by torpedo. The British losses were made up of five officers and 69 men.

Official Account of Fight.

The following official statement was issued:

"An engagement occurred Feb. 29 in the North Sea between the armed German raider Greif, disguised as a Norwegian merchant vessel, and the British armored merchant cruiser Alcantara, Capt. T. E. Wardle. It resulted in the loss of both vessels, the German raider being sunk by gun fire and the Alcantara apparently by a torpedo.

"Five German officers and 115 men were picked up and taken prisoners out of a total complement believed to have been over 300. The British losses amounted to five officers and 69 men.

"It should be noted that during the whole engagement the enemy fired over the Norwegian colors painted on the side of the ship.

"This news is now published as it is made clear by the receipt of a German wireless message that the enemy has learned that the Greif, a similar ship to the Moewe, had been destroyed before she succeeded in passing our line of patrols."

When the Greif met the Alcantara and saw herself to be in a tight hole, she turned eastward, proceeding toward home in a leisurely manner so as not to attract too much attention when she sailed by the Alcantara.

Carried Norwegian Colors.

The two ships lay almost side by side while the captain of the British steamer inquired by megaphone for particulars of the strange vessel, which, according to the official report, had the Norwegian colors painted on her sides, but which flew no flag. The inquiries from the Alcantara were answered in perfect Norwegian, but the actions of the raider aroused the suspicions of the British auxiliary.

She was lowering a boat to send a searching party aboard when the Germans opened fire. The action is described as one of the hottest of the war, recalling duels between evenly matched frigates in the days before the time of ironclads. According to the British account, the German raider was put out of action by a few broadsides.

The Greif sank after 12 minutes. She was followed to the bottom a few minutes later by her victorious adversary, which evidently fell victim to a torpedo launched from the Greif's tube a moment before the raider disappeared.

Other British warships soon appeared on the scene and rescued many members of the crew of the two fighters.

The naval authorities state that the Greif was as well equipped for raiding as was the Moewe.

German Admiralty Issues Statement on Ega Engagement.

BERLIN, via Amsterdam and London, March 25.—The following statement on the Ega engagement in the North Sea on Feb. 29, in which the German auxiliary cruiser Greif was sunk, together with the British armed merchantman Alcantara, was issued today by the Admiralty:

"The Admiralty staff states that, according to news from various places, which has been confirmed, an engagement occurred on Feb. 29 in the northern part of the North Sea between the German auxiliary cruiser Greif and three British cruisers and one destroyer. In the course of the battle, the Greif was sunk by a torpedo shot by a great British cruiser of some 15,000 tons.

"About 150 men of the crew of the Greif, whose names are not yet known, now are prisoners of war to the British. They are cut off from all communication with the outer world by secrecy regarding events. Measures against this have been taken."

LITTLE DINNER PARTY AT HOTEL ENDS IN A FIGHT

Casualties Are Three Wounded, Not to Mention Water Bottle, Which Is Smashed.

Mr. Leo Maginn, a lawyer, 4718 Olive street, Mr. John A. Maginn, an insurance man, 5890 Delmar boulevard, and Mr. William H. Van Sickler, insurance man, 5916 Von Versen avenue, gave themselves a little dinner party at the Maryland Hotel Cafe last night. A pleasant time was had by all. The casualties:

Mr. F. W. Schaeffer, head waiter, one eye bunged up.

Mr. Van Sickler, ditto.

Mr. John A. Maginn, both sides of the face scratched.

Manager Edward Dunn's water bottle, shattered.

The Messrs. Maginn and Van Sickler entered the cafe about 7:30 and sat at a table near the orchestra. Mr. Leo Maginn observed that the orchestra was not orchestrating. He approached the pianist and playfully asked when the cabaret would start. The pianist said "in a short while."

The Head Waiter Comes Up.

To them came the head waiter. In a quiet, but firm voice he asked what Mr. Maginn was doing there. Mr. Maginn looked at him, as a pleasant smile drifted over his features, and remarked:

"Say, what nationality are you?"

"I'm a Bohunk, I guess," the head waiter remarked, as if he had found the question irrelevant.

"Oh, a Dago?" said Mr. Maginn somewhat ironically. The head waiter then said something in which the words "fresh bunch" seemed to figure.

At this moment Mr. John A. Maginn came up. He was heard to say, distinctly, "What's that?" There are many accounts of what happened just at that moment. Some say the head waiter hit first. Some say it was one of the Messrs. Maginn. There was no doubt which hit hardest. The head waiter dropped rather unexpectedly to the floor.

Water Bottle Is Smashed.

There was a scurry of waiters to the assistance of their chief. One musician scrambled forward gesticulating with a fiddle. Another (or it may have been the same one) flourished a bow. Manager Dunn advanced at the double time, waving a water bottle until he waved it into a post. The post was of much sterner stuff and the bottle gave way. About this time the police injected themselves into the scene and took the Messrs. Maginn and Van Sickler to headquarters. The head waiter ultimately reached the same place after he had tarried a while at the Dispensary to have his eye bandaged.

Afterwards, in explaining his action, the head waiter said he thought Mr. Leo Maginn, when he was talking to the piano player, was clutching a curtain at one side of the orchestra. The curtain is used to screen a dressing room for the cabaret performers.

The four were cross-charged with disturbing the peace and released on bond to appear in police court tomorrow.

TWO BOND ISSUES INDORSED BY VOTERS OF WEBSTER GROVES

Webster Groves voters, by large majorities, yesterday authorized two bond issues totaling $32,000 for municipal improvements.

A proposition to issue $15,000 bonds to establish a paid city fire department was indorsed by a vote of 514 to 57 against. A bond issue of $17,000 to extend the municipal water system into new territory was passed by 497 favorable votes to 72 opposed a two-thirds majority was required.

NEWS AND FEATURES OF THE POULTRY WORLD

TIMELY HINTS FOR THE BACK-LOTTERS BY QUISENBERRY

Sanitation, Seasonable Feed and Other Suggestions for the Small Grower of Poultry.

By T. E. QUISENBERRY
Former Director of the Missouri Poultry Experiment Station, Mountain Grove.

Now that the frost is out of the ground, the yards and runs should be thoroughly spaded and sown thickly to oats. No matter how small the run is, it should be divided into two parts. By adopting this plan green feed can be kept growing throughout the entire season. Green feed of some sort is absolutely essential, as is also a continual stirring of the soil. Fresh air and sunshine are nature's disinfectants. Soil that is allowed to become packed quickly becomes germ infected, and is a continual menace to the health of the flock. Turn it up so that the sun and air can get in it.

With the coming of the first warm days of spring, lice and mites, the poultryman's perennial enemics, take on a new lease of life. Special precautions should be taken to keep them from gaining a foothold. Keep the premises scrupulously clean. The droppings should be cleaned out at least every other day, and the roosts painted once a week with a mixture of kerosene and crude carbolic acid, one pint of crude carbolic acid to one gallon of kerosene. Then thoroughly whitewash the interior of the house, making sure that it penetrates every crack and crevice, and a louse or mite will be a rare sight.

Droppings taken from the poultry house should not be thrown out into the runs, as is too often done. In the first place, they are too valuable as fertilizer. In the second place, when thrown out into the runs they become a veritable incubator for disease germs. They should either be scattered on the garden or else put in barrels and sold to market gardeners, who will gladly pay from 25 to 40 cents a barrel for them.

It is none too early to begin to think about providing next winter's supply of green feed for the flock. For this purpose nothing is better than the mangold wurtzel beet, more commonly known as "stock beets." These beets can be stored in the cellar and used throughout the entire winter. A beet a day will be ample for a flock of 25 hens. Several hundred pounds of them can be grown on a plot of ground 10 feet square, providing sufficient moisture is supplied, and they are thinned out to about eight inches apart, each way. Try some this season.

As warmer weather comes on some changes should be made in the feed which the flock receives. The proportion of corn should be decreased and that of wheat and oats increased. As is generally known, corn is a heat and fat producing food. Too much of it in mild weather makes the fowls uncomfortable and sluggish. They should also receive more green food and less meat than during the winter months.

An abundant supply of fresh, pure water becomes increasingly important as the weather grows warmer. Care should be taken to place the water dish where the sun cannot shine on it, and also where dirt and litter cannot be scratched into it. The dish should be scalded at least once a week.

Do not think that because the weather is mild it is no longer necessary to keep the hens busy. The hen is naturally an active bird, and when kept under intensive conditions she must be compelled to exercise every day in the year. All of the grain fed should be thrown in a deep litter and worked in with a fork, so that it will be no easy task for the flock to dig it out.

A few tame sunflowers should also be found, even in the crowded plant of the back lotter. They grow very rapidly in rich or well fertilized soil, and furnish splendid shade during the hottest part of the summer. At the same time they are maturing seed which will form a welcome addition to the fall ration, and which costs real money at the supply house. Sunflowers should be planted early, thinned out to at least one foot apart, and protected from the chickens until they are two feet high.

Unpedigreed Hen Lays Biggest Egg

A yellow hen that has no pedigree has captured the big egg record of Pennsylvania, eclipsing the production of a fancy barred rock hen. The new champion is the property of Frank Holzapfel of Chestnut Ridge, weighing six and a half pounds, and the surpassed bird belongs to Harry Riggle of Washington.

The egg laid by the ordinary hen measured six and three-quarters inches around the middle and eight and one-half inches around the ends, its weight being four and three-quarter ounces, while the weight of the barred rock egg was four ounces.

SECOND EXPERIENCE WITH 'CON' MAN COSTS STRANGER $500

Iowan Started to Transfer Roll to Inner Pocket and New Found Friend Grabbed It.

Louis Fairbanks, 43 years old, of Perry, Io., had his second encounter with a St. Louis "con" man yesterday afternoon and lost $500, just $460 more than the first time he was victimized, he reported to the police last night.

He said he arrived at Union Station at 4:45 p. m., and in the midway was accosted by a genial stranger who said, "Hello, friend! Where are you going?"

They talked and Fairbanks mentioned that he had just arrived from Perry. "My old home town," he said the stranger exclaimed.

From then on they were on good terms and went for a walk at the stranger's suggestion. At Garrison and Lucas avenues, Fairbanks said, his new acquaintance began to talk about money. Fairbanks started to transfer a $500 roll from his trousers pocket to his inside vest pocket. The stranger grabbed the roll and ran away, he said.

Poultry Paragraphs.

Local market conditions have at times much to do with the variety of poultry most profitable to keep. Some localities demand a brown egg, while others want a white egg. It stands to reason to cater to your market, in order to get the best prices for your product.

Select the best-shaped eggs for hatching purposes. Never set any rough or deformed eggs, nor eggs small in size. Have each setting as uniform in size as possible. When having eggs shipped in for hatching purposes let them rest about 24 hours before putting them under the hen.

Save your poultry manure for the garden patch. Sprinkle it with land plaster (gypsum) or coal ashes. This makes an excellent compound for fertilizer. This manure is very valuable and will make a big improvement in your garden soil.

An inactive, lazy cockerel or cock is not a safe bird to use at the head of a pen from which you expect to gather the eggs for hatching. Vitality in him counts more than it does in the female, especially when only one male is permitted to run with the hens.

Eggs may be safely dipped into water during incubation, providing, of course, the water is of the same temperature as the eggs, about 103 degrees. Do not dip later than the eighteenth day. Such treatment is only necessary in the absence of sufficient moisture.

Cleanliness in the runs is just as essential as in the houses. Too often the yards are overlooked. If the runs are bare of vegetation they should be scraped or raked often enough to prevent them from getting filthy. Occasional spading is advisable.

Rake the litter in the scratching sheds and houses often, so as to keep it clean and sanitary. A little disinfectant sprinkled amongst the straw will also assist in keeping it sanitary. Of course, the litter must be changed when it becomes too much soiled.

During 1915 the Post-Dispatch printed 5860 Classified Instruction Want Ads, a gain of 326 and 3635 more than the four other St. Louis newspapers combined printed during the same period.

Laying Ration Used by Eastern Experts

The fifth annual egg-laying contest is in progress at the Connecticut Experiment Station, where is conducted a poultry department of high standard. The laying ration that is being fed to the hens in the contest is of interest. The dry mash is made up of 100 pounds bran, 100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds ground oats, 100 flour middlings, 50 pounds fish scrap and 50 pounds beef scrap. The grain ration is made up of equal parts of wheat and cracked corn.

In the first laying contests conducted at this station an automatic feeder for the grain was used, which was kept open nearly all day, depending somewhat on the weather conditions and also on the season. The hoppers gave fair satisfaction, but the officials finally decided to replace them with an attendant, who gives his full time to the birds. This attendant, who is an experienced man, is able to keep in close touch with the birds and give them his personal attention, and this has brought better results than the hopper system.

The principal feed is given about 4 o'clock in the afternoon during the greater part of the year. In the winter one or more light feeds are given in the morning to induce exercise. Dry mash is kept before the birds at all times, in earthenware vessels, which are supplied with a wire grate to keep the feed from being wasted by the birds. The meat elements in the dry mash include both fish and beef scraps as given in the formula. If either is omitted the other is doubled.

Grit, shell and charcoal are supplied freely in rectangular boxes with three compartments. Each compartment contains about a quart. Green food during the winter consists principally of mangel beets fed daily. In summer the birds have grass runs. Rape and Swiss chard are grown to supplement the summer monthly supply of natural green food.

Male Bird Controls Laying Qualities

According to W. A. Lippincott, head poultryman at the Kansas State Agricultural College, the fact that the male bird transmits laying qualities rather than the female, will result in a great advantage to the poultry breeder. The more this fact of the high reproductive powers of the male is appreciated, the greater will be the demand for roosters coming from high laying strains.

"It appears at the present time that the ability to transmit the powers of high production are limited to the male," says Prof. Lippincott. "The production of these male birds involves trap nesting and pedigree hatching, which are beyond the reach of the general farm producer, who must make his profit by a comparatively narrow margin on many birds rather than a wide one on a few. Because of other interests the farmer is not so situated that he can produce these males. He cannot bring the productivity of his flock to a higher level than is set by the breeder of the male birds with which he mates his flock. He is therefore dependent for his progress upon the breeder who, because he receives a price large enough for the birds he has to dispose of, can afford to trapnest his stock and pedigree hatch his birds.

"In our experimental work at the Kansas Agricultural College two years ago, we had occasion to buy a male bird from such a breeder. The average production of his daughters was more than twice the average production of their mothers.

"I know of no better opportunity for one who wishes to devote most of his time to poultry, and who is willing to work into the business gradually, than is found in the development of families of high producers and the disposal of breeding males."

Science Applied for Kansas Poultrymen

The poultry department of the Kansas Agricultural College is hatching [illegible]600 chicks for experimental and instruction purposes this spring. Aside from the chickens hatched, the college buys many chickens from the outside for laboratory purposes, to teach the future poultry raisers of the State scientific management. Experiments in breeding, feeding, mortality, rate of growth, early maturity, caponizing and killing and dressing, are being conducted.

All the chicks brooded are from pedigreed stock. Many of the hens have high-laying records, and in order to build up laying strains all hens are trapnested and careful records kept. Each egg is labeled, with the number of the leg band on the hen that laid the egg. The eggs selected for hatching are put into the incubator, and, in order to maintain accurate records, each egg is put itno a small sack made of mosquito netting. When the chicks are hatched they may be identified with the number on the shell. This is the most practical device yet tried out to enable the poultryman to make sure which hen is the parent of the chick.

On the twenty-second day the chicks are taken from the sacks and marked with pigeon bands, the numbers on these bands being used in weighing and keeping records. Later these bands are fastened in the wings, where they remain throughout the life of the birds. As soon as the birds are matured, larger bands are put on their legs to make the reading of the numbers easier. All records of egg production and fertility of the parent birds are thus kept complete. In this way the inferior birds may be weeded out and an improved line produced.

As soon as the chicks are banded they are put in the brooder houses. Each brooder house accommodates 250 chicks, and they are kept at about 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Water and a hard-boiled egg are given to the chicks for their first feed. The next day they are started on a ration of cracked corn, cracked wheat, bran, shorts and bone meal, fed dry. When they are two weeks old beef scrap is added to this ration.

Incubators Require Moisture Regulation

Although most incubators can be depended upon to maintain the proper temperature, they do not always regulate the moisture content of the machine.

As a rule, hot-water incubators have less ventilation than hot-air machines. In such a case the moisture given off from the eggs is retained and produces too high a moisture content. To remedy this condition, G. M. Turpin, head of the poultry husbandry department of Iowa State College, advises that holes for ventilation be bored in the incubator.

Most of the hot-air machines are too dry and require the addition of moisture. This can be supplied by placing a shallow pan filled with wet sand in the incubator. There must not be enough water in the pan to puddle the sand, as this will prevent rapid evaporation.

To determine whether the moisture content of an incubator is too high or too low, weigh the eggs when they are first placed in the machine, and again three or four days later. In normal incubation eggs should lose about two-thirds of 1 per cent in weight daily, and they will do so if the machine contains the proper amount of moisture. If there is a greater loss the incubator is too dry and should have moisture supplied. If the loss is less than two-thirds of 1 per cent the surplus should be taken off through ventilating holes.

Do not set the incubator in a stuffy room. Good ventilation is absolutely necessary to obtain the desired results. A basement or cellar is an ideal place to set an incubator, providing a more even temperature and more moisture.

Boiled rice, from which all water has been boiled out, is good for chicks, regulating their bowels and preventing diarrhea. It should be fed once or twice a week—not thrown on the ground, but fed from a clean dish.

Last year the Post-Dispatch printed [illegible]8,734 Male Help Wanted Ads, just 11,002 more than its nearest competitor.

Methods of Warring Upon Poultry Pests

With the return of warm weather comes the parasite problem for the poultryman to face. The secret of successfully combating the pests that prey upon fowls is to begin the fight early and to apply whatever remedy is used frequently enough to keep the pests from multiplying through the eggs laid by survivors.

Four methods of treatment for lice and mites are recommended by J. G. Halpin, poultryman at the Wisconsin Agricultural College.

The first is to dust the bird's body with insect powder, or make it possible for the bird to take a dust bath. This method kills the lice by suffocation or knocks them off the hen's body to the ground, where they soon die. The liberal use of powder at least three times during the hatch is the only practical method known for killing the pests on sitting hens. The lice hatch and must be killed before they have time to lay more eggs.

There are several liquid louse paints on the market which, if properly used, are very effective. When any of these are applied to walls and fixtures in the coop the fumes kill the lice. Care, however, must be taken not to shut the chickens in a tightly closed house which has been so treated, for the fumes will kill or injure them as well as the lice.

Blue ointment has been used with excellent results in the poultry yards at the Agricultural College. There are several brands of grease on the market that are effective. These are applied directly to the birds' bodies.

Almost any of the commercial dips will be found effective agents for killing lice, but are not adapted for use with small chicks. These should be applied on warm days.

PIANO—You want to buy a good piano for a little money, that's it, isn't it? You can get just that up here. I don't offer anybody 40-11 things free with each piano, but I do just as I advertise. I don't advertise much, because I don't have to. I am up here at 1317 Pine st., third floor. I can sell my pianos and player-pianos (they are secondhand) at such low prices because of my very small expense. I have no salesman, no office help, very low rent; fact is, I don't want a long profit; I at all times have from 10 to 20 fine old-time standard make pianos and from 5 to 10 standard 88-note player-pianos—the pianos range in price from $25 to $90, the players from $100 to $195. Walk a block and a half from Piano Row and save a couple hundred dollars, and be prepared to find things just as I state; terms can be arranged, if you don't want to pay all cash.

"RELIABILITY"

In the piano business differs from that of any other because the aritstic qualities and durability of pianos are not only a closed book to most buyers, but to most dealers as well. One has to be a piano maker to tell the future wearing qualities of instruments, and therein lies the secret of our reputation for reliability. Over 40 years we have been selling reliable pianos and you will not regret it if you buy your piano or player here. We carry an immense assortment, in all the different prices and styles, and arrange terms to suit you. Come and see.

HOSPITAL RUN BY DR. LUTZ HAS ONLY ONE PATIENT

Inquiry Reveals That Board of Directors Has Had No Meeting for Five Years.

INSTITUTION IN DEBT

Funeral of Physician Will Be Held This Afternoon From Lafayette Avenue Home.

The Josephine Hospital, 1630 South Grand avenue, has one patient, a woman, it was learned yesterday, in the course of the inquiry into the institution's affairs. The inquiry also showed that the hospital, chartered as an institution taking charity patients, and having a Board of Trustees, was left by the board entirely to the direction of Dr. Frank J. Lutz, whose death has called public attention to the hospital's finances.

Dr. Lutz's funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from his home, 3337 Lafayette avenue, and will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. John F. Cannon, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church.

No meeting of the Board of Directors of the hospital has been held for more than five years, it has been learned, and the hospital has been run as a "one-man" institution. It is now several thousand dollars in debt, and of its assets, the realty bequeathed by Miss Josephine Heitkamp, only a small equity in one piece of property remains.

Says Lutz Spent Own Funds.

Morton Jourdan, legal adviser and personal friend of Dr. Lutz, says the sales of three pieces of the Heitkamp property, negotiated at different times by Dr. Lutz, were necessary for the support of the hospital, and that the money derived from the sales was expended by Dr. Lutz for the hospital's needs. He said Dr. Lutz also put several thousand dollars of his personal funds into the maintenance of the hospital, and that when a part of the building was damaged by fire two years ago, he spent $3000 of his own money for repairs.

Dr. Remy J. Stoffel, treasurer of the hospital, told a Post-Dispatch reporter of the manner in which the trustees had left the hospital in Dr. Lutz's hands. He said the investigation into the hospital's affairs was started a month ago by John A. Harrison, an attorney, secretary of the hospital, at his (Dr. Stoffel's) request.

Dr. Stoffel said he found, about a month ago, that the hospital was "head over heels in debt." He suggested to Dr. Lutz that some of the Heitkamp property be sold, and Dr. Lutz replied that it had been sold. When Dr. Stoffel asked what authority had been given for the sale, Dr. Lutz replied, he said, that he was very busy. Dr. Stoffel then took the matter up with Harrison.

Signed Checks in Blank.

He said he found that the only remaining piece of property, that at 1113 St. Ange avenue, was so far in arrears for taxes that, if sold, it would bring not much more than $150. He found that there was an indebtedness of $1200 to the Tower Grove Bank, a coal bill of $700 and a milk bill of $200, and a considerable amount of unpaid bills. He said that, as treasurer, he used to sign checks in blank and leave them with Dr. Lutz.

The hospital "occasionally had a charity patient," Dr. Stoffel said. For many years, he declared, it was a one-man institution, run entirely by Dr. Lutz, who performed all the operations. All United Railways accident cases within a mile of the hospital were taken there. A considerable number of patients were sent to the hospital by the United Railways Co.

The members of the board, besides Dr. Lutz, Harrison and Dr. Stoffel, were J. A. Hamilton and Joseph Paule.

The property bequeathed by Miss Heitkamp, and which the records of the Recorder's office show has been sold, consisted of two lots on Maffit avenue, sold in 1912 to Mary Maloney for $4000; 1011 Market street, sold in 1914 to John P. Hermann for $7272.72, and 3147 Locust street, sold in 1911 to the Welfare Realty Co., the deed containing a nominal consideration of $10. All the deeds were made in the name of the Josephine Hospital Corporation, and signed by Dr. Lutz as president, but instead of bearing the seal of that corporation, they bore a seal reading, "Training School for Nurses, Josephine Hospital, Incorporated 1895."

Realty Company's Statement.

The John P. Herrmann Jr. Real Estate Co., which acted as the hospital's agent in the rental and sale of the different properties for the hospital, made a statement yesterday, calling attention to the responsibility of the trustees, and particularly of the secretary and treasurer.

"When the Board of Trustees, or its secretary and treasurer, failed to receive our monthly statements, with check for rents collected," the Herrmann statement says, "they had ample evidence that this company was no longer collecting the rents, and that the properties had either been placed in the hands of another agent, disposed of, or sold. Whether these gentlemen kept in touch with those matters remains to be seen. It seems poor taste for any one who has taken credit for acting for a corporation, which has done charity work (and who, no doubt, have a set of by-laws indicating as to how its affairs are to be conducted) as a member of its board of trustees—to cast a reflection on a dead man if they themselves failed to fulfill their duties. A trustee who is not satisfied with the manner in which matters are conducted has the privilege to bring the corporation into court, or to resign; it seems this was not done."

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of George J. Dippel, who departed from this life March 22, 1915.

WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear son and brother, Joseph Vasterling, who died March 28, 1911.
Just five years ago you left us,
How we miss you, Joseph, dear,
You are gone but not forgotten
By the ones who loved you dear.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS AND BROTHERS.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear brother, Julius C. Franz, who departed this life one year ago, March 26, 1915.
Sad and sudden was the call
For our dear brother, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
He would be called so far away.
Sadly missed by his SISTERS AND BROTHERS.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my dear wife and our dear mother, Lillian Hill, who died March 20, 1915.
Just one year ago you left us.
How we miss you, mother dear;
You are gone but not forgotten
By the ones who love you dear.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my beloved father, August Rick, who died March 23, 1915.
O Lord, keep green the grave that lies
Beneath the wild and stormy skies;
Keep sweet with sleep and give him rest
Whose hands are folded on his breast.
For all of us he did his best,
May God grant him eternal rest.
Sadly missed by his devoted daughter,
MRS. AMANDA CAMENZIND.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear nephew, Henry C. Gerwiner, who died suddenly, March 22, 1914, aged 11 years.
There was an angel band in heaven
Which was not quite complete,
So God called our darling Henry
To fill the vacant seat.
Sadly missed by his two aunts,
MRS. REUBEL AND MRS. SWEEDER.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my mother, Mrs. Ella Bryant, who died March 20, 1915.
My mother, since you have gone away
For your soul to rest I nightly pray,
Though your life here seemed hard to bear,
I pray that now you are happier there,
In the great beyond above the skies
Where all is sunshine, no one sighs.
Your daughter, LAURA FRETZ.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear mother, Lizzetta Heitert, departed this life March 28, 1915.
A loving mother, true and kind,
No friend like her on earth we'll find.
God called her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still;
For all of us she did her best,
May God grant her eternal rest.
Sadly missed by HER CHILDREN.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my dear wife, Ida Reinheimer, who departed this life one year ago, March 25, 1915.
Sad was the call when you were called from us,
And lonely was our home and hearts,
But God, our Judge, He knows best,
So He took you home to rest.
Sadly missed by husband and daughter.
ARTHUR REINHEIMER.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear beloved mother and grandmother, Catharine Winkler, who passed away March 23, 1915.
One year it will be since we laid you to rest,
And placed your cold hands upon your dear breast;
In silence you suffered, with patience you bore,
'Till God called you home to suffer no more.
Sadly missed by
RIECKE FAMILY.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my beloved wife and mother, Elsie Kerr (nee Kline), who departed this life one year ago March 26, 1915.
Under the ivy a grave is made,
Where a dear wife and mother is laid;
Under the sod, it cannot be thus,
We are sure that in heaven she is waiting for us.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND AND BABY AND THOSE WHO LOVED HER.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dearly beloved mother, Mary Erfmann, who passed away March 26, 1915.
Just one year ago today
Since our dear mother and grandmother passed away;
O, Lord, keep green the grave that lies
Beneath the wild and starry skies.
Keep sweet with sleep and give her rest,
Whose hands are folded on her breast.
A loving mother, kind and true,
No friend like her on earth we find.
God called her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
For all of us she did her best,
May God grant her eternal rest.
Sadly missed by her
TWO DAUGHTERS.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Beatrice Carmody Meehan, on March 21, 1915.
'Twas Passion Sunday,
And the first day of spring,
When the clock struck 10,
Then the half hour 1;
Oh, mother, we knew then
That the hour had come.
Just one year ago today
Since our dear mother passed away.
O, Lord, keep green the grave that lies
Beneath the wide and starry skies;
Keep sweet with sleep and give her rest,
Whose hands are folded on her breast.
A loving mother, true and kind,
No friend like her on earth we'll find.
God called her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still;
For all of us she did her best,
May God grant her eternal rest.
Sady missed by her
HUSBAND, CHILDREN AND BROTHER.

DEATHS

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of darling son, Henry C. Gerwiner, who died suddenly, March 22, 1914, aged 11 years.
In Park Lawn softly sleeping
Lies a mother's dearest pride,
A flower that scarce had waked to life,
And light and beauty, ere it died.
Fondly we think of you, Henry,
With thoughts that are prompted by love,
And oft in deep, silent slumber,
We dream of our loved one above.
Henry was our own sweet darling,
Pride of all the hearts at home,
But the angels floating lightly
Whispered softly, "Henry come."
Sadly missed by
HIS PARENTS AND LITTLE SISTER.

In Memoriam.

In loving remembrance of our dear brother, Fred Gillman, who departed this life suddenly, March 25, 1914, in Honolulu harbor, with the S-4.
Sad and sudden was the call,
For our dear brother, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
Our dear brother would be called away.
We could not realize what was said
When the message came that he was dead;
No one knows how much we miss you,
It's hard to bear that you are missing.
We sigh, we weep, we pray for you,
Although you are gone, but not forgotten,
Never shall your memory fade,
Loving hearts will often linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
SISTER, BROTHER AND WIFE.

Exceptional Bargains in

USED PACKARD CARS

We are now making regular deliveries of the new Packard "TWIN SIX." Many buyers of this wonderful car have old cars which they now wish to dispose of. We do not take any cars in exchange, but maintain a Used-Car Department to aid our customers in disposing of their Packards of former models, or cars of other makes.
We now have in this department some excellent bargains in touring cars, roadsters and limousines.
Wouldn't you rather have a fine RENEWED PACKARD than a cheap new car?

IMPROVED PROPERTY FOR SALE

A good week in Hayden's Boulevard Heights. Four new flats rented, four more ready next week. Go and see them.

There have been built and sold 4 California Bungalows this Winter. There are being built 15 more Bungalows of a similar kind which are about ready for the market; also two 4-family 3-room modern flats with sleeping porch in rear and a nice porch in front—nearly completed. The flats are for sale or rent. Also have sold several lots to private parties, who will improve soon. We are also figuring with several prominent and successful builders for ground to build on.

If you are interested in a Bungalow, a Flat or a Lot in a pretty neighborhood, go out and look these over. Agents on the ground every day. Ask for Mr. Hohenschild.

Take Chouteau, Southampton or Cherokee car to Rose avenue.

COTTAGES

The idea of always paying rent is certainly ridiculous. Why not buy a home on our plan of paying a small amount down and the balance is paid just like you pay your rent, just as you earn it. You will then live without the landlord and some day be independent of anyone. You are building up an estate and having the benefit of a house while paying for it. You could go on paying rent forever if you lived that long and you could not get anything for your rent receipts, all this time; be your own landlord and buy one of these dandy 4-room modern brick cottages we are now building at the end of the Cherokee line on Germania st., just one-half block east of loop. The cottages have 4 very nice, large, light rooms, with a modern bathroom, medicine chest, hot and cold water, Georgia marble sink, wired for electric lights, cabinet mantel, granitoid walks, each has a lot 30x120. Price only $2300. You cannot duplicate the house and lot for less than $2700; but you look at them today and see us about terms. You certainly will like them.

Your Opportunity

Read carefully. This is no ordinary real estate proposition; a two-story residence, 8 rooms, large bath, granitoid basement, electric lights; Telford street; on a beautiful level lot; 40x155 feet, with a five-foot terrace; the lot alone is worth $40 per front foot; owner must sell in 60 days. It is a bargain if you want a home; satisfactory arrangements as to payments may be made; investigate this; write or phone today or phone Marshall 65X.

WISHART REALTY CO.

Can Raise Crops the Year Round.

For Sale—Farm Land on Which You

Located in the Ozone Belt, Marion County, Miss., 90 miles north of New Orleans; all easy rolling upland; no swamps or mosquitoes; healthiest climate in the South; no excessive heat; soil a mellow, fertile chocolate loam; no rocks; you do not have to buck frost or mud 6 months of the year; you can plow every acre now or any day in the year; up North you grow one crop; here you grow three; here spring crops are 6 weeks earlier than up North; when the North is frozen up in the fall you harvest your second crop here; that's what brings high prices and profit; plenty of rain at all times; close to railroad and a world's market, New Orleans. Government expert and demonstration farm within a few miles; good roads; one of the best stock and dairy countries; several thrifty settlements of farmers have established themselves on adjacent land within the past 2 years and they are making good; so why not you? This is a well-developed country; it is new and fertile land; a friend and I have bought 12,000 acres of this land, and I am making my home on 1400 acres of it, and my friend on 1100 acres, and I want you farmers to buy and make your home here; the land is cheap now at $25 per acre and will double in value in a short time; terms are easy and within reach of all; from $5 to $10 per acre down; now you men from the North, or anywhere else, look into this if you want to better yourself; it is a golden opportunity and it is not a land agents' scheme; write for any information that you may want; I am a gardener, horticulturist and farmer myself; that's why I want farmers to buy this land. FARMS FOR SALE

MISSOURI

SUCCESSFUL
HIGHLY PRODUCTIVE
1000-ACRE ORCHARD AND FARM
WILL SELL
20-ACRE FARMS FOR ONLY
$300
ON TERMS OF $10.00 CASH AND $5.00 MONTHLY,
WITHOUT INTEREST OR TAXES.

I am having splendid success with my 1000-acre orchard and farm in Southeast Missouri. Have 100 more acres in peaches, 133 in apples, 6 in grapes, 8 in strawberries, 4 in blackberries and raspberries and 150 in vegetables, grains and grasses. The balance will be planted to grapes and fruit trees next spring. The peaches have been running over $100 per acre, berries and grapes $300, tomatoes $100 ($10 per ton at the canning factory), etc. Apples just coming into bearing.

I have a large amount of land surrounding my 100-acre orchard and farm, much more than I will ever be able to get under cultivation myself, and will sell 10 or 20 acre tracts at $300, on terms of $10.00 cash and $5.00 monthly, without interest or taxes.

FARMS FREE TO LIMITED NUMBER.

For a limited number of persons I have an arrangement whereby they can obtain a farm tract free.

My location is in Southeast Missouri, midway between the Ozarks and the lowlands, elevation above sea level about 550 feet.

Before offering any of the land for sale, I went to the authorities of the seven nearby states having the so-called "Blue Sky" laws and asked them to pass on the printed matter I had prepared and to send their expert land men to inspect my orchard, farm and land offered. After doing this, and also investigating my financial responsibility and past business record, they quickly granted permission to sell my land in their states.

A few acres here, properly looked after, will bring you a splendid income, besides providing the best of everything for your own use. $100 to $800 clear profit per acre can be made. Fruits, berries, vegetables, grains and grasses will produce these results. A single cow can be made to pay $12 clear profit every month. $100 will build you a cozy, comfortable home in our mild climate that will seem like a little palace compared with the ordinary, crowded brick-bound city flat.

With a few chickens, pigs and a cow, fruits, berries, vegetables and a little meadow to start with, your health, wealth and happiness come into your own hands. You are boss of all, with room to grow, and no one is big enough to come in and give you orders. We have good schools, churches, rural free delivery and mutual rural telephone lines and good towns.

FREE RAILWAY FARE

to purchasers; 90 days' time to visit land and make your selection; money back after one year if dissatisfied; payments stop in case of death, money loaned for improvements; perfect title; immediate possession.

I have made about 50 kodak views in and around the big orchard and farm and on the land I am offering and have had them reproduced in a 16-page pamphlet, in which also I have placed all the information to be obtained regarding the topography, productivity, products and about everything you want to know; also 50 letters from men in St. Louis and nearby towns who have gone down to look and who have bought. I'll gladly send you a copy if you will write.

BIG BATTLES IN THE EUROPEAN WAR

A RECORD OF DATES

LACKING a few days, the great war in Europe has been going on for 21 months. As yet no battle has been fought which, in the large sense, can properly be called decisive. The following, however, is a list of the important engagements in which one army or another has emerged with an advantage.

THE IMPORTANT GERMAN SUCCESSES.

AUG. 9.—Liege occupied after a heroic resistance by the Belgians.
AUG. 20.—Brussels occupied.
AUG. 27.—Longwy and Namur taken by storm and the way paved for the great drive on Paris.
AUG. 29.—Amiens occupied after a series of sledge-hammer blows at the British, French and Belgians, compelling the removal of the French capital to Bordeaux.
SEPT. 1.—Russian army of 120,000 defeated and 70,000 taken prisoners at the battle of Tannenburg.
OCT. 9.—Antwerp occupied after 11 days' bombardment.
NOV. 1.—British squadron defeated off Chili coast, with two cruisers, Monmouth and Good Hope, sunk.
NOV. 11.—British and Belgians defeated and Dixmude occupied.
NOV. 17.—Second Russian advance on the Vistula checked and Russians forced to retire.
DEC. 1.—Germans cut their way out of serious enveloping movement by the Russians and begin new offensive which results in the recapture of Lodz.
DEC. 17.—Russians decisively defeated in Poland and compelled to withdraw along whole front.

1915

JAN. 15.—North bank of Aisne cleared northeast of Soissons and six French villages are captured.
JAN. 26.—Germans in drive gain 1200 yards on La Bassee canal, held by the British.
FEB. 15.—Russians defeated in East Prussia and forced back into their own territory.
FEB. 21.—Russians decisively defeated near the Mazurian lakes, suffering losses of nearly 100,000 men.
APRIL 30.—Russians defeated near Swale in Poland and Russian attacks on Plock, Kalwarya and Suwalki repulsed.
MAY 2.—German-Austrian forces under Von Mackensen defeated Russians in Galicia and capture 20,000.
MAY 8.—Libau, important Russian base on the Baltic, captured in a combined land and naval assault.
MAY 14.—German-Austrian armies take Jaroslau and begin campaign which results in recapture of Przemysl and the great Russian retreat.
JUNE 22.—Lemberg occupied, paving the way to the capture of Warsaw.
AUG. 5.—Warsaw occupied after weeks of terrific battles extending along a 900-mile front and involving 6,000,000 men.
AUG. 18.—Kovno fortress with 400 cannon and much war material captured.
AUG. 19.—Novogeorgievsk fortress with garrison of 20,000 and 700 guns taken.
OCT. 10.—Semendria captured, marking the beginning of the Serbian campaign.
NOV. 28.—Germany declares Serbia entirely conquered with 100,000 men taken and the rest of its army driven into Albania and Montenegro.

1916

FEB. 21.—Germany begins the great drive on Verdun by capturing advanced French trenches.

THE IMPORTANT RUSSIAN SUCCESSES.

AUG. 14.—Austrians utterly defeated in the first great battle of the war on the Dniester River.
AUG. 19.—Russians defeat Germans in the battle of Eydtkuhnen and pave the way for the first East Prussia campaign.
SEPT. 2.—Utterly defeat Austrians at Lemberg after seven days' fighting, capturing 130,000 men and 200 guns.
SEPT. 12.—Defeat the Austrians everywhere in Galicia and force them to retreat along entire line.
SEPT. 22.—Capture Jaroslau after 10 days' fighting.
SEPT. 24.—Occupy Uzsoc Pass after bitter struggle, paving the way for a descent upon the plains of Hungary and forcing Germany to send army to prevent a catastrophe in Austria.
SEPT. 26.—Capture city of Przemsyl practically cutting off the foremost Galician fortress besieged by the Austrians.
OCT. 3.—Defeat the Germans at Augustowo, East Prussia.
OCT. 27.—Defeat the Germans decisively at Noevo Alexandria, capturing 3000 men, 30 officers, checking advance on Warsaw and forcing the evacuation of Czernowitz, Galicia.
NOV. 7.—Defeat Turks in first important battle in the Caucasus mountains.
NOV. 17.—Drive Germans back on the whole East Prussian front between Augeburg and Gumbinnen.
NOV. 23.—Defeat the Germans on the Warthe-Vistula line in Poland, capturing an entire army corps at Lodz and placing a German army in the most precarious position one has occupied in the entire war.
DEC. 16.—Defeat a German army advancing on Warsaw at Mlawa.
DEC. 25.—Defeat the Austrians at Tarnow.
DEC. 30.—Defeat the Turks decisively at Sarikamysh, annihilating whole army corps.

1915

JAN. 14.—Defeat the Turks decisively in the battle at Kara-Urgan.
JAN. 30.—Capture Tabriz, Persia, after inflicting heavy defeat on the Turks.
FEB. 5.—Defeat Germans who had attacked at Borjimow with 100,000 men and 100 batteries in a desperate effort to break the Russian lines.
MARCH 1.—Defeat Germans at Przasnysz.
MARCH 2.—Defeat Austrians in terrific battle, taking Lupkow pass and 6000 prisoners.
MARCH 22.—Capture Przemysl and its garrison of 117,000 Austrians.
APRIL 5.—Defeat Austrians for the greatest Carpathian advance and take 70,000 prisoners.
MAY 10.—Defeat Austrians on a 100-mile front in Galicia.
MAY 28.—Defeat Turks and take important strategic point of Urumiah, Persia.
JUNE 10.—Defeat Germans south of Lemberg and drive them across the Dniester with heavy losses.
AUG. 10.—Defeat Turkish army of 90,000 in Caucasus and drive Turks back into Armenia.
NOV. 16.—Finally halt the great Austro-German drive by repulsing a desperate attack at Dvinsk.

1916

JAN. 20.—Decisively defeat Turks for possession of the Caucasus passes and begin drive on Erzerum.
FEB. 14.—Capture Erzerum and begin movements towards Trebizond and the Bagdad railway.

THE IMPORTANT BRITISH SUCCESSES.

AUG. 26.—Colonial troops complete campaign which results in the surrender of Togoland.
AUG. 28.—British cruiser squadron sinks three German cruisers and two destroyers in the North Sea.
SEPT. 28.—Occupy Duala, government seat of the Kamerun, making conquest of the entire colony only a matter of details.
OCT. 7.—British cruiser and four destroyers sink four German destroyers in the North Sea.
NOV. 2.—Drive Germans from the left bank of the Yser after a sanguinary struggle which cost the Germans 20,000 men.
DEC. 1.—Capture Gen. DeWet, breaking backbone of South African revolt.
DEC. 8.—Fleet under Admiral Sturdee sinks German cruisers Scharnhorst, Leipzig, Gneisenau and Nurnberg off Falklands.

1915

JAN. 25.—Battle cruiser squadron defeats German squadron in North Sea, sinking the Bluecher.

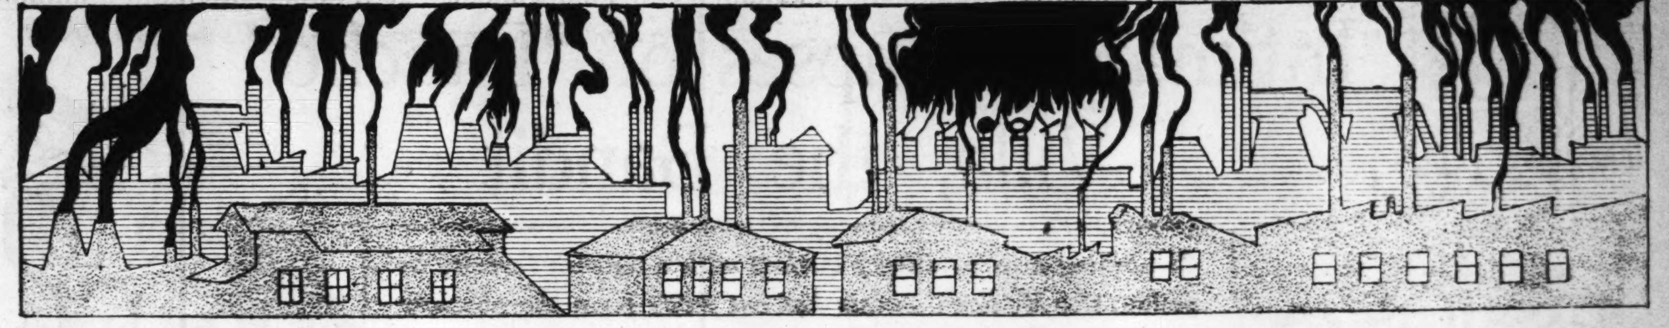
SEPT. 10.—The Serbians defeated the Austrians and occupied Semlin.
SEPT. 12.—The Belgians repulsed the Germans at Cortenberg, causing them to fall back in two directions to save their center.
SEPT. 18.—The Belgians repulsed the Germans and drove them back across the Yser.
OCT. 13.—The Montenegrins defeated an Austrian army near Sarajevo.
NOV. 7.—The Japanese captured Kiauchau, paving the way to the surrender, two days later, of Tsingtau.
DEC. 1.—The Turks checked the British army advancing on Bagdad and forced it to retire to Kut-el-Amara.
DEC. 4.—The Turks announced a victorious completion of the Gallipoli campaign with the withdrawal of British troops from the peninsula.



A Survey of the Nation's Prosperity

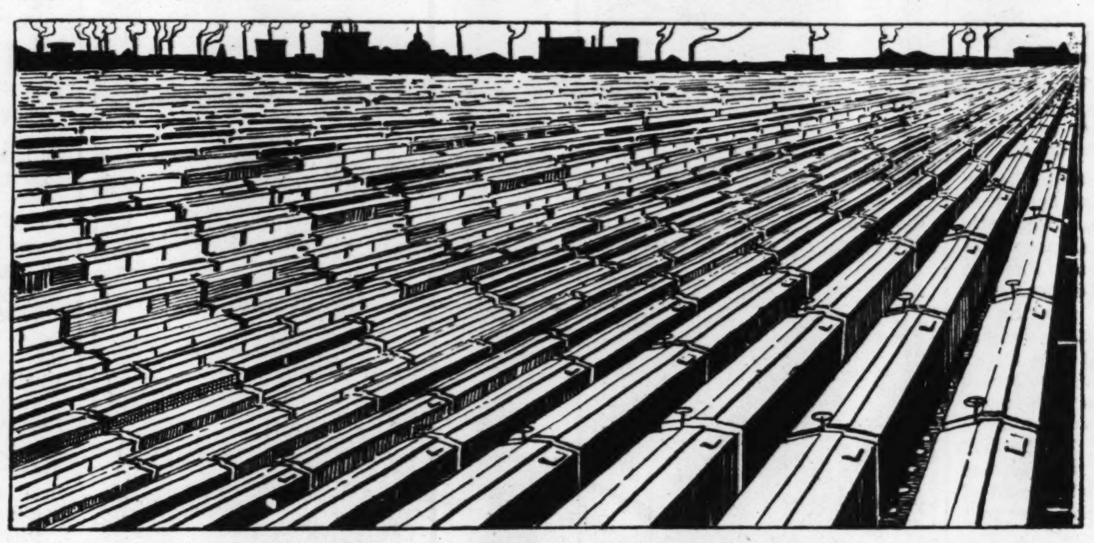
Factories everywhere working at full capacity to turn out orders, railroads are unable to get enough cars to move freight, labor is at a premium, and all records in prices and volume of business are being smashed, bringing good times to all classes, from the capitalist to the newsboy -o- -o- -o- -o-

FEW people realize the extent of the prosperity now prevailing in most sections of the United States. It is doubtful if anyone now living can recall in his lifetime an era as good. The three great barometers of economic conditions—agriculture, steel and railroads—have never given so joyous a reading.

With the smoke pouring from thousands of factories in the East, some of them employing three eight-hour shifts of men every 24 hours, the iron, copper and zinc mines operating to their greatest capacity, machine shops everywhere hustling on hurry-up orders, the railroads congested with miles and miles of heavily loaded freight cars, waiting in some cases weeks for overburdened terminals to unload them, orders for hundreds of new locomotives and thousands of cars yet unplaced, the steel mills and foundries illuminating the skies at night with the glare of their furnaces, no bread line for the first time in years in the large cities, loud calls for more laborers, the automobile concerns busy as never before, cotton selling again at profitable prices, wheat up around $1.17 and corn at 74c—can you not realize what all this tremendous activity means in wages and dividends to the nation at large?

It is worth while to recall how this happy condition has arrived since the start of the European war nearly 21 months ago. For the moment, mentally picture what happened in August, 1914. Simultaneously with the closing of all the stock exchanges in the country—and this meant 30,000 idle clerks and stenographers in and around Wall Street alone—industry got a bad case of the blues. No one knew but that a tremendous panic was brewing—or at least a long period of business depression. Factories began to curtail their productions and many put their help on half time or reduced the number of their employes materially. Banks became timid in making loans. For a time capital and labor was in something like a funk.

Here in the Middle West we did not feel the effects as much as those in the East and South. It was just like the chap who is straddling the middle of a see-saw. The one on the end goes to the limit of ups and downs, business depression or business prosperity, while the one in the center gets only a little of the oscillation. So, the same way, the return of good times was first and most easily noted in the Eastern manufacturing and financial centers. Then it came westward.



Railroad yards are choked with loaded freight cars

The start of the whole thing, virtually, came with the war orders. It was like a stone thrown into a still pond. The first ripples were of narrow compass but they began widening and widening, extending first to kindred trades and then gradually touching almost every phase of business life. No industry is complete within itself.

New factories all over the East were built to care for the war orders which those already in operation were unable to handle, or to make the machinery which the new plants needed. Enter, then, the carpenter, the steel worker, the mason, the electrician, the plumber, the painter, the glazier, the common laborer—every member of the allied trades. Dealers in building materials suddenly found their business growing more brisk; money was becoming more plentiful. Allied industries, such as the makers of electrical supplies, felt the impulse. Then there was demand for more bookkeepers, stenographers, shipping clerks and the clerical help a new or rapidly expanding business requires.

All these men, many of whom had previously been idle, soon returned to normal modes of living, and thus homes were re-established, and property owners reaped increased rentals. Wages of the new workers were placed in circulation among merchants—clothiers, grocers, butchers, shoe dealers. Clothing men, suddenly finding sales on the incline were enabled to lay in additional stocks from the wholesaler; he made his demands on the textile industry and that, in turn, passed the benefits on to the original source of supply, the farmer and wool and cotton growers. Much the same process was followed in other lines. Originating with the wage earner who had wages to spend, money was passed along from the ultimate consumer to the producer. The general revival of business in industry after industry meant much more than the putting at work of additional men in factories. It would be an almost endless job to name all the spheres of activity which were quickened when any line of manufacturing speeded up. Take shoes, for instance. As the outlook brightened a small army of salesmen set forth to hunt customers. This meant revenue for railroads, hotels, porters and the like. New catalogues had to be prepared which gave employment to printers and photo-engravers. In anticipation of trade both pasteboard and wood boxes had to be ordered. More teamsters had to be hired. Multiply the increased volume of a single business like the one named by hundreds and hundreds of others, and scatter them all over the industrial United States, and you will get an idea of the ramifications prosperity produces. This is what really happened on a tremendous scale. Prosperity had now become like a snowball rolling down hill, growing in volume and enfolding new lines of business in its increasing bulk as it sped onward.

People who before had had no money for luxuries found that they could afford occasional amusements. Dimes flowed faster into the windows of the moving picture houses. Children had more pennies to help along the man at the corner candy store. Men who formerly could not afford it again resumed their daily custom of buying a paper from the newsboy on the street. Thus, from the factory owner, through all lines of business down to the little newspaper vender, good times returned for all.

By no means can this tremendous prosperity be attributed to the war orders alone. Its foundation lies in the unusually large crops in the United States in the years 1913 and 1914. With the exception of the cotton crop, not only were the yields far above normal but products of all kinds commanded extraordinary prices. Agriculture being the principal economic foundation of the United States this meant that the persons engaged in agriculture, forestry and animal husbandry, of whom there are about 13,000,000 in the country today, had more money to spend, and the more money they have to put into circulation, the more work it means for factories and producers in other lines. Therefore, prosperity would have come even if there had been no war. The outbreak in Europe and its resultant benefits to American business men, provided merely an impetus.

When the real revival began the railroads were unprepared. They first increased the number of their employes in all departments—in some cases by thousands—and then discovered that they were without adequate equipment. This meant the placing of orders for more rolling stock, and general prosperity in those kindred branches of manufacture.

Increased business for the railroads has resulted in increased dividends, and these have added the holders of stocks to the army of persons who have more money to spend. The same holds true of investors in other stocks. In the steel industry, in addition to the impetus given to it by the increased manufacture of rails, engines and cars for the railroads, building operations have become more active and this has called for a greater output of structural steel. A feverish activity in the ship building line has created a demand for steel for this purpose and the steady onward march of the automobile business also can be cited as a potent factor in causing the vast mills of the country to work to their fullest capacity.

Proof that prosperity, if not already very widespread, is in a fair way of rapidly becoming so, is contained in figures which show the amazing extent of these railroad operations. The returns of 476 railroads for December showed an increase of $62,438,000, or 27 per cent in gross earnings and a gain of $44,692,000, or 73 per cent in net earnings, compared with the corresponding month of the previous year. In February the gross earnings of the principal lines were 19.8 in excess of a year ago, the largest February increase ever known. In January, the total gross earnings in the country showed a gain of 21.3 per cent over the year before and in net earnings a gain of 52.4 per cent. For seven months the gross earnings showed an increase of 14.4 per cent and the net earnings of 36 per cent.

These enormous profits could be considerably increased if the railroads had enough equipment on hand to move the freight. The net car shortage in the United States and Canada on March 1 was 20,551 cars. Incidentally, this is the first shortage on record in two years and a half. Railroads in both the East and West are choked with freight, especially in the East, where mile after mile of filled cars are standing in the yards. One big Eastern road recently refused to accept any more freight until it could dispose of what it had.

To state the case in another form, there were in the United States a year ago 321,724 idle railroad cars, enough to make a merchandise train 3000 miles long. These cars now are all bulging with merchandise and if the railroads had the additional 20,551 cars demanded, the train would be 200 miles longer.

As a result of the car congestion in the East, there are thousands of bushels of corn lying on the ground near railroad stations in Kansas, waiting to be moved to market. When the car shortage developed last fall, many farmers did not husk their corn, but allowed it to stand in the fields. Almost anywhere in Kansas now can be seen men in the fields husking corn, the railroads recently having made strenuous efforts to move the grain, with some success.

The shortage is said to have been more severe on the farmers this winter than for many years. Starting in the middle of the wheat movement, it resulted in there being in Kansas now thousands of bushels of wheat that has not been threshed because the farmers knew they could not get cars to ship it.

C. W. Nelson, vice president in charge of operation of the Cotton Belt Railroad, declared recently that lumber mills along his road were receiving only about one-half the necessary number of freight cars and he predicted a rise in lumber prices as a result of this condition.

The lack of transportation facilities is felt not only in domestic commerce, but by exporters as well. In the week ending Feb. 28, exports of cotton showed a heavy falling off due to continued inability to obtain sufficient vessel room. Thus it is seen that the business of the country as a whole would attain even greater proportions if means of transportation, both domestic and foreign, could be enlarged, trade being limited only by the capacity of manufacturing plants and transportation facilities.

Some idea of the situation in the field of steel is obtained from the statement that the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation at the end of February amounted to 8,568,966 tons. This never has been equaled in the corporation's history. And despite the unprecedented rise in steel—from 40 to 100 per cent in the last nine months for fabricated—there was an increase in orders in February of 646,199 tons. From Jan. 1 to March 4 the orders received by all the steel mills totaled 4,000,000 tons, valued at $240,000,000, and the end of the boom is nowhere in sight. One million tons a year is being used by the ship-building industry, which has reached proportions never before witnessed in America.

In addition to all the steel cars now in process of manufacture for the railroads, from 15,000 to 20,000 more and many locomotives are wanted, but contract awards for them have not been made because of the scarcity and high prices of steel, or inability of makers to accept new work. On a large order pending for the Russian State Railways, Eastern builders are quoting from 100 to 110 per cent higher than the prices of which they accepted the original orders from that country several months ago. Fifty-ton freight cars are being quoted at from $1400 to $1500 each, as against $1000 and $1100 in recent normal times and $650 in times of depression.

This great demand for steel necessarily requires at least a corresponding amount of steel-making pig iron. The output of this commodity, based on February's production, is at the rate of 39,200,000 tons a year, the highest ever known in any country in the world. Iron and steel exports of 1915 were 3,513,453 tons, against the previous high record of 1912 of 2,948,466 tons. The increase in the value of all exports in 1915 over 1914 was $1,433,000,000.

Copper, an important ingredient in the manufacture of war munitions, is selling today at around 28.50 cents a pound, an increase from 18 cents, which was the price a year ago. Before the war this commodity brought only 12 cents. So great has been the demand for this mineral at prices which are unprecedented that old, abandoned copper mines, which were regarded as not worth operating, have been reopened and an inferior grade of ore obtained from them is being sold at high prices.

The zinc industry, in which Missouri is vitally inter-

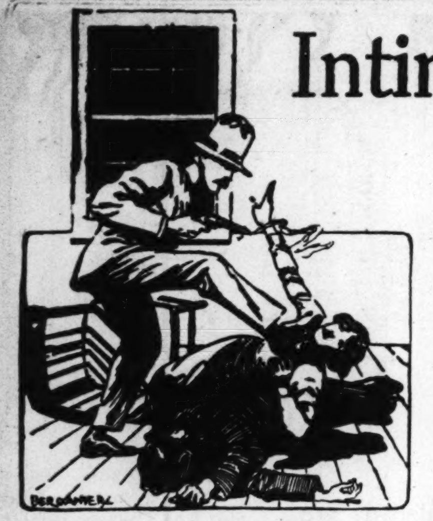
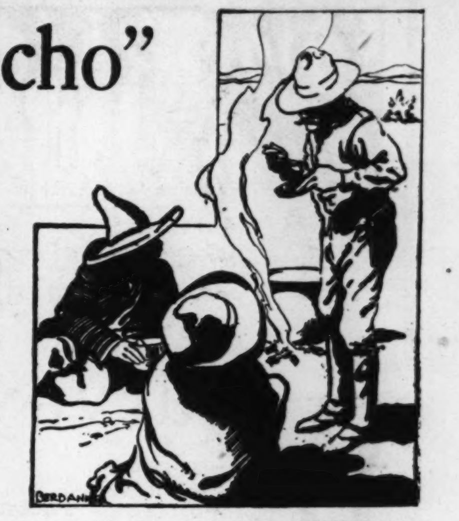
Intimate Glimpses of "Pancho" Villa, the Bandit

Combining a rare military instinct with a tigerish ferocity in action, the Mexican outlaw has cut away from the obsolete military methods of his country—His naive precautions against death by poison—How he surrounded himself with a mobile and devoted following :: :: :: ::



At Santa Rosalia, Villa shot the cashier of a large business house and personally kicked the cashier's wife in the face when she fell prostrate over the body of her husband.



He will not eat food especially prepared for him but goes among his soldiers and makes a meal from the rations they are preparing for themselves.

WHEN a band of Mexican revolutionists, in May, 1913, captured the town of Santa Rosalia, Chihuahua, the cashier of one of the largest business houses in the place was shot dead over the head of his wife, who was trying to protect him, and when the woman fell prostrate over the form of her husband, the leader of the revolutionists, Francisco Villa, personally kicked her in the face. He also personally shot and killed, for no apparent reason, a Senor Ramos, secretary of the Court of First Instance of Santa Rosalia, and at no time did he move to restrain his soldiers until their lust for blood and treasure in the little city was satisfied.

Later, when this same Villa became Governor of Chihuahua, it is related of him that when the widow of a soldier called at his palace one day and sobbingly told him that she was destitute, he called out, "Here, give her a hundred pesos for the children," and sent her away with a friendly slap on the shoulder. Hundreds of black-garbed women in similar plight came to see him, and it is declared that he would hear their stories and would make every effort to help them, keeping officers and civilians with important business to transact waiting because he "had no time" to listen to them.

These are widely contrasted incidents from the life of the man whom United States soldiers were ordered to "get," dead or alive. Many similar ones, all well authenticated, have reached this country since April, 1913, when he started out from El Paso, Tex., with four companions, three extra horses and two pounds of sugar and coffee and one of salt, to conquer Mexico. In their entirety they give a fair indication of what manner of man it is against whom Brigadier-General Pershing, as leader of the American force, was pitted.

Of Francisco Villa's life before he became one of the foremost figures of Mexico, little is known. Romantic stories have been sent abroad, now mostly acepted as traditional, like the one which affirms that he became a bandit and outlaw after shooting to death an officer of the Mexican Federal army who had ill-treated his sister. But since he broke with Victoriano Huerta after the latter had condemned him to death, and constituted himself the leader and patron of the Mexican peons, some of his doings have become a part of the Congressional Record of the United States and a still larger part have been collected and sent to this country by newspaper and magazine correspondents who were witnesses to them.

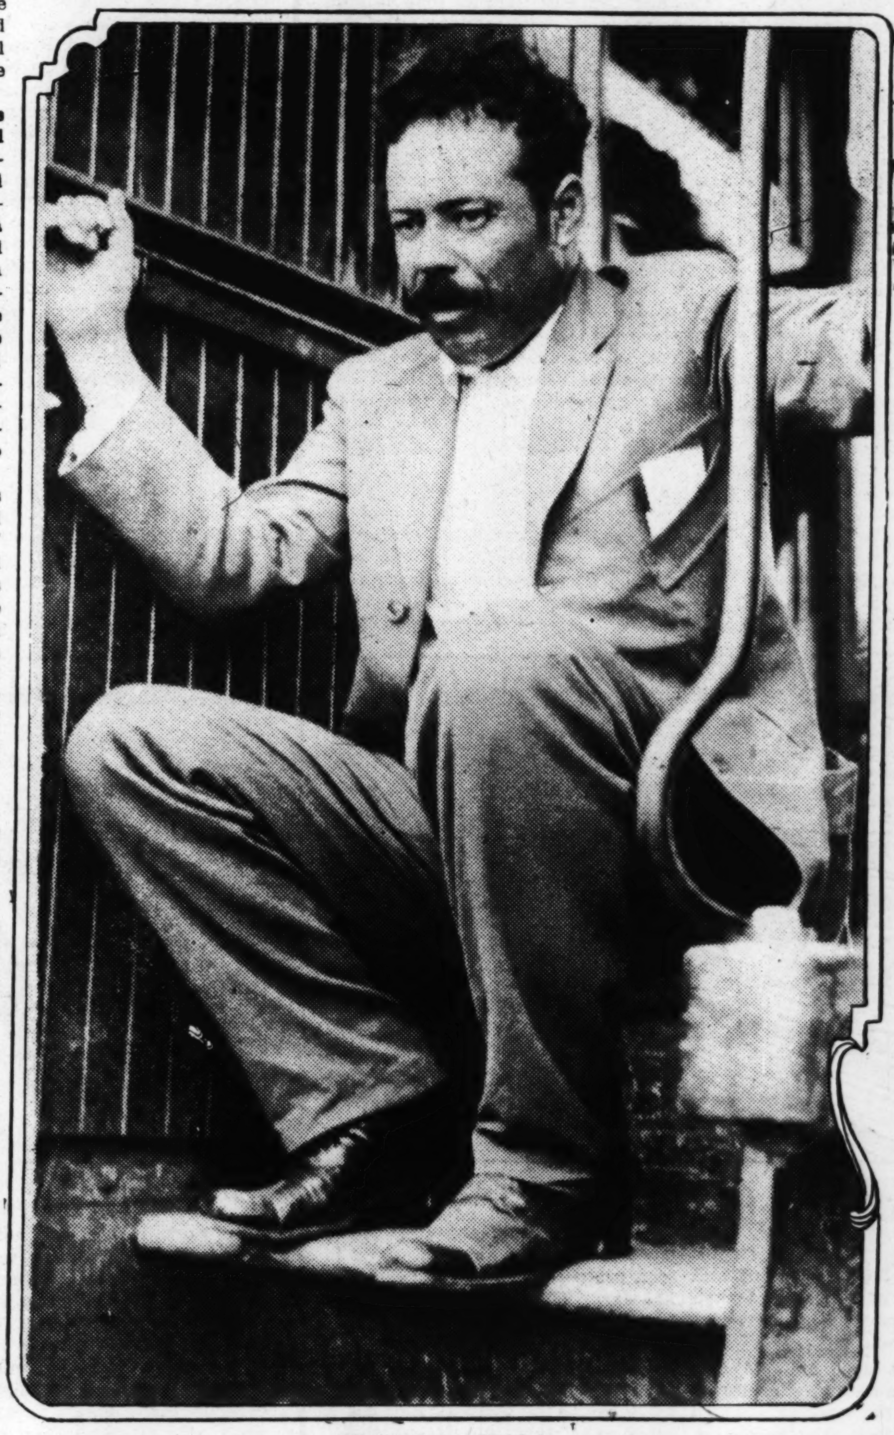
The name Villa's parents gave him in the town of Las Nieves, Durango, 39 years ago, was Doroteo Aranzo. Where and how he acquired the Francisco is not known, but even this has been shortened to "Pancho," the nickname by which he is known to his followers. Today, Villa is described as a man of medium height, inclined to be thick-set, brown eyes, a mustache, an ugly mouth, with blackened, irregular teeth, and seemingly possessing a vast amount of latent energy. His mental characteristics are a somewhat violent temper and an impatience of contradiction, but quickly re-acting to good humor. He is easily flattered, but nobody can gain a predominating influence over him. He is vain to a certain extent, but this vanity never takes the form of display. Some of his artillery officers, for instance, were compelled to make three efforts before they could induce him to accept a medal at a public presentation in the palace at Chihuahua. He is a man of quick decisions and likes to express them by an explosive yes or no.

When Villa was a cattle rustler, outlaw and general all around bad man, it is declared he was a heavy drinker. Since he became the head of an army he has been one of the most absteminous of men, and more than that, uses tobacco but rarely. If he drinks at all, it is a little wine at dinner. In the caboose which he occupied before the capture of Torreon was a box of oranges, and when drinks were passed around, Villa took an orange. He can sign his own name, but otherwise can neither read nor write.

A glimpse of Villa's mental processes is hard to obtain, but he gave one shortly after the assassination of William S. Benton, the Englishman, which caused him much worry because of the excitement it had caused.

He explained to a group of correspondents that Benton's body had been placed in one of the finest coffins obtainable and had been buried in the most exclusive cemetery in Chihuahua. He gave the impression that he thought these honors should go a long way toward placating the United States, Great Britain and the widow. But he never expressed an iota of regret for the execution.

Many stories have been told to show that Villa is a man absolutely without physical fear. Unlike most Generals, when his men are in the midst of a hot engagement, he is not to be found far in the rear, but usually just to the rear of the center of his firing line. His actions here have been described as not unlike those of a good quarterback directing the moves in a spirited football game. Crouching or lying on the ground, he watches and directs the movements of his men, and frequently calls out to some of them by name. His actions at these times are tigerish and malevolent to a high degree, and he rises to emotional heights that cause perfect streams of profanity to issue from his lips. But, withal, he is an inspiration to all who are within eye and earshot of him.



FRANCISCO VILLA.

But with all his scorn of flying bullets, Villa is constantly suspicious and apprehensive of death by more subtle means than a ball of lead or a knife thrust. He rarely, when in camp, eats food that has been especially prepared for him, but goes wandering about among his men, stopping here and there to make a meal out of rations which they are preparing for themselves, and reducing the possibility of poisoning to a minimum. He even suspects tobacco, his occasional smokes consisting of cigars or cigarettes taken from any followers he may meet. In this way he combines caution with guile; his men never suspect that in thus circulating among them he is not one of themselves and does not eat their food and smoke their tobacco out of more than a spirit of comradship.

Asleep or awake, Villa's cat-like alertness never deserts him. One of his trusted lieutenants, when he was at the head of the Constitutionalist army, was Gen. Garibaldi, his Italian chief of staff, who relates that one night Madero sent an officer into a room where Villa lay sprawled on a bed, snoring, and apparently in a deep sleep. No sooner had the man set his foot across the threshhold than Villa sprang to his feet, a revolver in each hand, covering the intruder. When he is in the field, though he eats their food and shares their tobacco, he rarely bivouacs near his men. Instead, at night, he rides away with two or three trusted companions, to reappear at daybreak from some unknown encampment.

Villa, in his career as leader of the revolutionary army, obtained a remarkably complete control over two widely varying types of men. As an example of one type might be cited Fierro, who is generally charged with being the man who carried out the order to kill Benton, and who has been called Villa's "lord high executioner."

Fierro at once time was in charge of the rail transportation of Villa's army. After a hard night's fighting near Torreon, one of the water and provision trains was 30 minutes late. Villa called Fierro before him and "reprimanded" him, his screams of rage being heard the length and breadth of the camp. Fierro made not a murmur against the terrible castigation, but 30 minutes later, when the train arrived, shot the conductor dead before he could make any explanation. In addition to this type he won the unequalified fealty of such educated men as Maclovia Herrera, a General of proved ability, Gen. Angeles, a soldier who had been trained in the military school at Chapultepec, and Dr. Villareal, his chief medical officer, a graduate of Johns Hopkins University.

Villa became Governor of Chihuahua six months after his pilgrimages from El Paso to take part in the revolution and had determined what should be done in the way of restoring government. He called his subordinate officials about him, all of them men of education, and outlined to them the entime policy of the state, legislative, financial, judicial and, though himself illiterate, educational. It took a long time to persuade him that Government bonds should have to pay interest.

"They have got their money, all right, haven't they?" he asked. "And if they buy Government bonds it helps the state and is safer than a bank."

Neither could he see why rich men should be granted huge tracts of land and poor men should not. The financial question vexed him. Silver and Mexican bank notes were hoarded and no money was available for trade.

"Why, if all they need is money, let's print some," he said, and issued a decree ordering the acceptance of this money at par on penalty of 60 days in jail. They did not bring the silver out, however, and, needing money for supplies for his army, he issued another decree that after such a date all silver and Mexican bank notes would be considered counterfeit, but up to that time they would be accepted in exchange at par for his own printed money. This brought the real money out and the problem was solved.

Villa's military methods have been a marvel to all students of that science. A correspondent who traveled with his army declares that he possesses some of the chief attributes of Gen. Grant—aggressiveness, doggedness and "horse sense." Asked one day at Torreon when he had met with a succession

When the widow of one of Villa's soldiers came to him and sobbingly told him she was destitute, he ordered a hundred pesos given her.

Explaining Charlie Chaplin

How the eccentric movie comedian arose to a salary of $670,000 a year, why his employers think they can afford to pay it and where most of it will remain after it gets into the pockets of a man "thriftier" than Harry Lauder — Also why Charlie hasn't married :: :: :: :: :: :: :: ::

It is difficult to dissociate Charlie Chaplin and his little black hirsute appendage.

WHEN the announcement was published to the world several weeks ago that Charlie Chaplin, premier movie comedian, had signed a contract calling for $670,000 for a year's work with the Mutual Film Corporation, it was greeted everywhere with incredulity. The knowing ones murmured "press agent!" and others got out pencil and paper to figure how many times the salary of the President of the United States could be divided into Charlie's reported stipend.

The conclusion was pretty much the same as that of the farmer when he saw his first elephant. People said "Shucks! They aint no such salary!" and let it go at that.

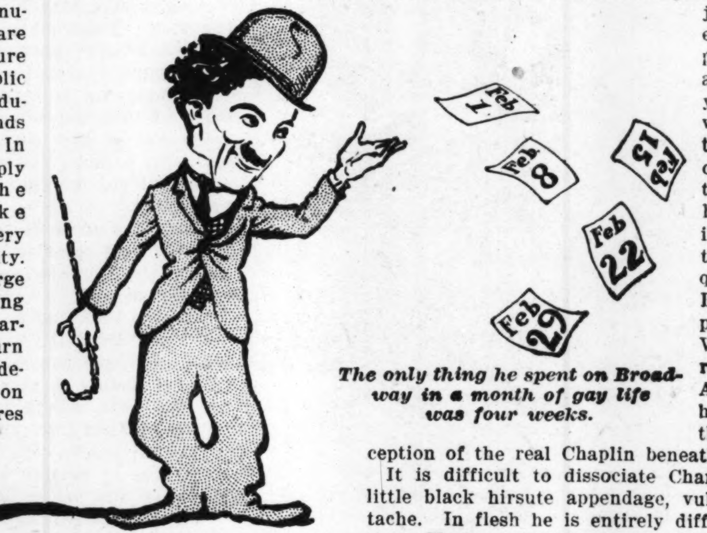
Notwithstanding this pretty general view, both Charlie and his new employers stuck to their story. They even told how much was to be paid down and how much to be paid each week. At last, however, they gave an explanation which really appeared to explain.

There are 20,000 moving picture houses in this country, they hasten to point out. If only one-fourth of them take Chaplin films at $10 a week, that means $50,000, so that the $10,000 a week salary is not so large after all. As a matter of fact, these films sell at a much higher figure than that.

It must be remembered also that the United States is not the only market for Chaplin films. The limber comedian is as popular in England and Australia as he is in this country and that should swell the grand total of picture houses which will buy his films. Moving picture dealers who have tried to figure the thing out have expressed doubt that he really is getting so much money. Some of them are inclined to think that a large part of the annual stipend is really in the nature of a royalty or commission, depending upon the income from the pictures. Even so, it is still possible to see where Charlie will get the money and right here another item demands consideration.

Charles Chaplin just after signing that $670,000 contract.

The greatest competition in the movie business today is between the manufacturers of what are known as "feature films." The public has been so well educated that it demands good "features." In an effort to supply this demand, the manufacturers take advantage of every possible opportunity. They spend large sums in preparing each one for the market and their return on the investment depends entirely on whether the pictures please the public.



The only thing he spent on Broadway in a month of gay life was four weeks.

The present employers of Chaplin are in the feature film business extensively. Suppose they couple each Chaplin film with one feature. The theater manager has to buy both, doesn't he? It's better than fire, life, marine and tornado insurance all combined.

Charlie is enjoying his riches with becoming modesty. He spent a month in New York before he signed his contract, and it was a dizzy month, up and down and across Broadway dining, wining, playgoing, dancing and having the time of his young life, but—keeping his bankroll exclusively to himself.

For at the age of 26 and with an annual income of $670,000, Charlie Chaplin has the finance idea developed to 100 per cent efficiency. The only thing he spent on Broadway in a month of gay life was four weeks. Not since Harry Lauder astonished and then amused New York with his Scotch thrift, to use a pleasant word, has Broadway known such a frugal celebrity.

In justice to Chaplin it must be said that he has had comparatively little opportunity to spend money, for the reason that during his stay on Broadway he was the most sought after man in New York. With a dozen moving picture magnates and their hirelings literally breaking their necks to place him under contract at an almost unbelievable salary, he was feted as no actor who ever visited New York was feted before. The most elaborate luncheons, dinners and midnight suppers were given in his honor. He was presented to all the celebrities of Lobster Square, his merest whims were instantly gratified and when he departed for California he took with him a trunkful of costly presents from his admiring friends.

Still, the fact remains that he did not spend a nickel foolishly during his stay in New York. And the reason for that fact is Chaplin's natural "tightwadedness." Despite the fact that his income last year was in excess of $200,000—his former contract called for $7800 a week in salary and royalties that more than doubled that sum—his mode of living is practically the same as it was five years ago when he was earning $50 a week playing "small time," as bookings in low-priced theaters are called. For the money has not gone to Chaplin's head—although it must be admitted that his earning capacity is in no small way indebted to his feet.

His only extravagance is a 12-cylinder automobile. He does not even allow himself the luxury of a wife. Jewelry, slow horses and fast company, country homes, objets d'art and other expensive fads of the predatory rich do not appeal to this slender young movie actor, who has risen in less than five years from obscurity to the distinction of being the highest-paid employe in the world. He has the traditional frugal qualities of the typical English music hall performer—for that is What Charlie Chaplin really is. The great American public that has seen him only on the screen has no conception of the real Chaplin beneath his comic makeup.

It is difficult to dissociate Charlie Chaplin and his little black hirsute appendage, vulgarly called a mustache. In flesh he is entirely different from the gelatine. He is of suprisingly small stature—he weighs less than 125 pounds—and he possesses a perfectly ordinary face—a face that would not attract attention in a crowd of five, let alone 500. To be sure, he has black eyes of more than ordinary brilliance and a mass of coal black hair inclined to curl, but all in all his appearance is absolutely undistinguished. His manner, too, is in striking contrast to his film antics. For in private life he is unusually shy, quiet and reserved. When he talks, his cockney speech betrays his origin. Strangely enough, he speaks without gestures, a remarkable thing for an actor of any brand.

He was born in France.

For the benefit of those who are unfamiliar with this remarkable young man's career it may be said that he was born in France, while his parents, English music hall performers, were touring continental music halls. That was in 1889, April 16, to be exact. While he was still a youth he adopted the variety stage as his calling and for several years toured the "provinces," as the smaller towns of England are known to the profession. His father died in the early '90s, but his mother is still living in England. His acting was largely confined to pantomime and acrobatic feats, but he learned to play the violin and cello—holding the bow in his left hand—and he composed several marches which to this day remain unpublished. However, he really plays the cello quite well. He never earned more in those days than 6 pounds sterling, less than $30, a week and he was often idle months at a time. Consequently when the opportunity presented itself for him to come to America with Fred Karno's "A Night in a London Music Hall," at $50 a week, he jumped at it. And at the age of 22 he found himself playing the part of a "drunk" in this vaudeville offering in New York. His acrobatic feats and his sense of comic values attracted the attention of George Kessel, who engaged him for comedy roles in the movies and sent him to California rejoicing, with a $75 a week salary.

The rest is history. And the best answer to his critics is that Chaplin will receive $670,000 for his clowning during the next 12 months. Already he has $150,000 of it, for he demanded that amount in advance, and his weekly salary will be $10,000 for exactly 52 weeks.

How much of this $670,000 will Charlie Chaplin save during the coming year?

In all probability $665,000. For he confessed to the writer that his personal expenditures last year were considerably less than $5000 and there are no indications that his new contract has turned his head. If anything, it has caused him to be even more tight fisted. Chaplin's theory of life may not be plain living and high thinking—he is more interested in prize fights than art or literature—but the fact remains that he lives plainly—except when somebody else foots the bill.

Instead of a secretary he has his brother Sidney—who is four years older than himself—to look after his social and business engagements. He is without a valet for the reason that he has less than half a dozen suits of clothes. Unless he is especially requested to wear evening dress he appears at the theater or even a more formal function in a tweed suit.

Perhaps he will marry, you venture. Perhaps. But this is what Chaplin said when asked about that possibility:

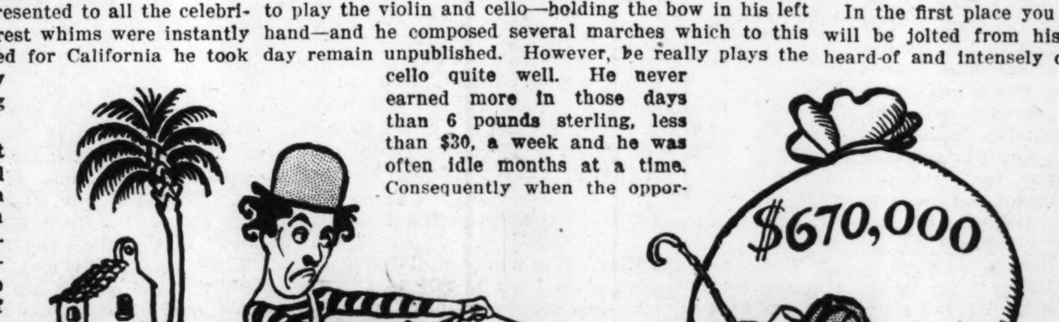
"When I wanted to marry I didn't have the money. Now that I have the money I don't care to marry. Besides, there's plenty of time for that sort of thing when I quit work. No one realizes more than I do that my services may not be worth $100 a week five years from now. I'm simply making hay while the sun shines."

A very sensible, unassuming little fellow is Charlie Chaplin, despite the fact that his income at the present time is $1.30 a minute.

Many critics have assigned many reasons for Charlie's phenomenal success as a pantomime comedian. He owes much of it, doubtless, to the fact that he has found new ways to meet old situations in comedy. Everything he does is done in a way that no one but Charlie Chaplin ever did it. When he drops a cigarette and picks it up there are laughs, not only at the moment of dropping and the moment of the picking up, but there are a dozen laughs in between. He can take up three minutes of film time with this episode and every second will be filled with laughter

In the first place you may be sure that the cigarette will be jolted from his mouth in some new and unheard-of and intensely comical way. Then it will fall in some place where the effort to regain it will necessarily be difficult and awkward. Chaplin does the rest.

The turn of his head, the bend of his back, the shifting of his feet, the serious effort expressed in face in strange contrast with the lack of co-ordination in his movements are irresistably funny. And after he has recovered the cigarette he is funnier when he straightens up than he was when he stooped. Like as not, after all these pains, he will hold the cigarette out in front of him, look at it as if he had never seen it before and throw it away.



He took with him a trunkful of costly presents.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND

BY O. HENRY

Fourth of a series of short stories by the modern master of brief fiction—Complete in this issue

FINCH keeps a hats-cleaned-by-electricity-while-you-wait establishment, nine feet by twelve, in Third avenue. Once a customer, you are always his. I do not know his secret process, but every four days your hat needs to be cleaned again.

Finch is a leathern, sallow, slow-footed man, between 20 and 40. You would say he had been brought up a bushelman in Essex street. When business is slack he likes to talk, so I had my hat cleaned even oftener than it deserved, hoping Finch might let me into some of the secrets of the sweatshops.

One afternoon I dropped in and found Finch alone. He began to anoint my headpiece de Panama with his mysterious fluid that attracted dust and dirt like a magnet.

"They say the Indians weave them under water," said I, for a leader.

"Don't you believe it," said Finch. "No Indian or white man could stay under water that long. Say, do you pay much attention to politics? I see in the paper something about a law they've passed called 'the law of supply and demand.'"

I explained to him as well as I could that the reference was to a politico-economical law, and not to a legal statute.

"I didn't know," said Finch. "I heard a good deal about it a year or so ago, but in a one-sided way."

"Yes," said I, "political orators use it a great deal. In fact, they never give it a rest. I suppose you heard some of those cart-tail fellows spouting on the subject over here on the East side."

"I heard it from a King," said Finch—"the white King of a tribe of Indians in South America."

I was interested but not surprised. The big city is like a mother's knee to many who have strayed far and found the roads rough beneath their uncertain feet. At dusk they come home and sit upon the door-step. I know a piano player in a cheap cafe who has shot irons in Africa, a bellboy who fought in the British army against the Zulus, an express driver whose left arm had been cracked like a lobster's claw for a stew-pot of Patagonian cannibals when the boat of his rescuers hove in sight. So a hat-cleaner who had been a friend of a King did not oppress me.

"A new band?" asked Finch, with his dry, barren smile.

"Yes," said I, "and half an inch wider." I had had a new band five days before.

"I meets a man one night," said Finch, beginning his story—"a man brown as snuff, with money in every pocket, eating swhmeinedknuckel in Schlagel's. That was two years ago, when I was a hose-cart driver for No. 98. His discourse runs to the subject of gold. He says that certain mountains in a country down South that he calls Gaudymala is full of it. He says the Indians wash it out of the streams in plural quantities.

"'Oh, Geronimo!' says I. 'Indians! There's no Indians in the South,' I tell him, 'except Elks, Maccabees, and the buyers for the fall dry goods trade. The Indians are all on the reservations,' says I.

"'I'm telling you this with reservations,' says he. 'They ain't Buffalo Bill Indians; they're squattier and more pedigreed. They call 'em Inkers and Aspics, and they was old inhabitants when Mazuma was King of Mexico. They wash the gold out of the mountain streams,' says the brown man, 'and fill quills with it; and then they empty 'em into red jars till they are full; and then they pack it in buckskin sacks of one arroba each—an arroba is 25 pounds—and store it in a stone house, with an engraving of a idol with marcelled hair, playing a flute, over the door.'

"'How do they work off this unearth increment?' I asks.

"'They don't,' says the man. 'It's a case of "Ill fares the land with the great deal of velocity where wealth accumulates and there ain't any reciprocity."'"

"After this man and me got through our conversation, which left him dry of information, I shook hands with him and told him I was sorry I couldn't believe him. And a month afterward I landed on the coast of this Gaudymala with $1300 that I had been saving up for five years. I thought I knew what Indians liked, and I fixed myself accordingly. I loaded down four pack-mules with red woolen blankets, wrought-iron pails, jeweled side combs for the ladies, glass necklaces, and safety razors. I hired a black mozo, who was supposed to be a mule driver and an interpreter, too. It turned out that he could interpret mules all right, but he drove the English language much too hard. His name sounded like a Yale key when you push it in wrong side up, but I called him McClintock, which was close to the noise.

"Well, this gold village was 40 miles up in the mountains and it took us nine days to find it. But one afternoon McClintock led the other mules and myself over a rawhide bridge stretched across a precipice 5000 feet deep it seemed to me. The hoofs of the beasts drummed on it like before George M. Cohan makes his first entrance on the stage.

"This village was built of mud and stone, and had no streets. Some few yellow-and-brown persons popped their heads out-of-doors, looking about like Welsh rabbits with Worcester sauce on 'em. Out of the biggest house, that had a kind of a porch around it, steps a big white man, red as a beet in color, dressed in fine tanned deerskin clothes, with a gold chain around his neck, smoking a cigar. I've seen United States Senators of his style of features and build, also head waiters and cops.

"He walks up and takes a look at us, while McClintock disembarks and begins to interpret to the lead mule while he smokes a cigarette.

"'Hello, Buttinsky,' says the fine man to me. 'How did you get in the game? I didn't see you buy any chips. Who gave you the keys of the city?'

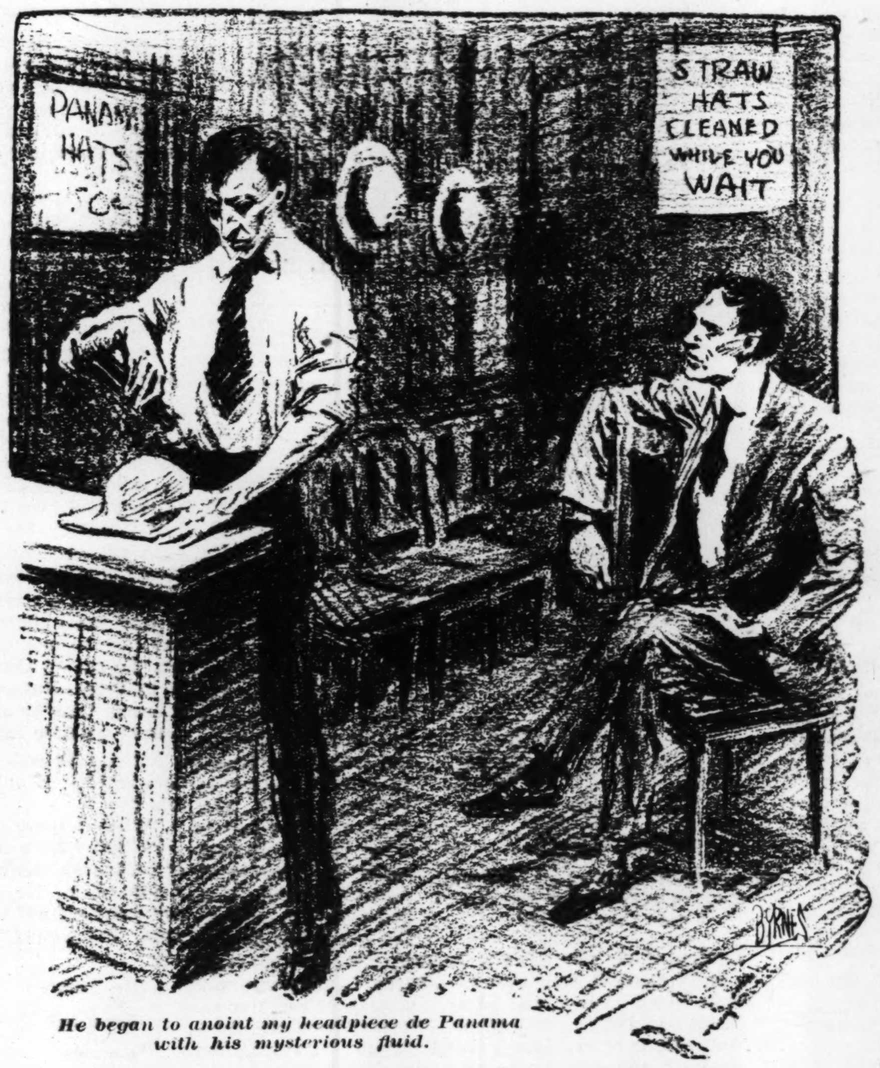
"'I'm a poor traveler,' says I. 'Especially mule-back. You'll excuse me. Do you run a hack line or only a bluff?'

"'Segregate yourself from your pseudo-equine quadruped,' says he, 'and come inside.'

"He raises a finger, and a villager runs up.

"'This man will take care of your outfit,' says he, 'and I'll take care of you.'

"He leads me into the biggest house, and sets out the chairs and a kind of a drink the color of milk. It was the finest room I ever saw. The stone walls was hung all over with silk shawls, and there was red and yellow rugs on the floor, and jars of red pottery and Angora goat skins, and enough bamboo furniture to misfurnish half a dozen seaside cottages.



He began to anoint my headpiece de Panama with his mysterious fluid.

"'In the first place,' says the man, 'you want to know who I am. I'm sole lessee and proprietor of this tribe of Indians. They call me the Grand Yacuma, which is to say King or Main Finger of the bunch. I've got more power here than a charge d'affaires, a charge of dynamite and a charge account at Tiffany's combined. In fact, I'm the Big Stick, with as many extra knots on it as there is on the record run of the Lusitania. Oh, I read the papers now and then,' says he. 'Now, let's hear your entitlements,' he goes on, 'and the meeting will be open.'

"'Well,' says I, 'I am known as one W. D. Finch. Occupation, capitalist. Address, 541 East Thirty-second'——

"'New York,' chips in the Noble Grand. 'I know,' says he, grinning. 'It ain't the first time you've seen it go down on the blotter. I can tell by the way you hand it out. Well, explain capitalist.'"

"I tells this boss plain what I come for and how I come to came.

"'Gold-dust?' says he, looking as puzzled as a baby that's got a feather stuck on its molasses finger. 'That's funny. This ain't a gold mining country. And you invested all your capital on a stranger's story? Well, well! These Indians of mine—they are the last of the tribe of Peches—are simple as children. They know nothing of the purchasing power of gold. I'm afraid you've been imposed on,' says he.

"'Maybe so,' says I, 'but it sounded pretty straight to me.'

"'W. D.,' says the King, all of a sudden, 'I'll give you a square deal. It ain't often I get to talk to a white man, and I'll give you a show for your money. It may be these constituents of mine have a few grains of gold dust hid away in their clothes. Tomorrow you may get out these goods you've brought up and see if you can make any sales. Now, I'm going to introduce myself unofficially. My name is Shane—Patrick Shane. I own this tribe of Peche Indians by right of conquest—single handed and unafraid. I drifted up here four years ago, and won 'em by my size and complexion and nerve. I learned their language in six weeks—it's easy: you simply emit a string of consonants as long as your breath holds out and then point at what you're asking for.

"'I conquered 'em, spectacularly,' goes on King Shane, 'and then I went at 'em with economical politics, law, sleight-of-hand, and a kind of New England ethics and parsimony. Every Sunday, or as near as I can guess at it, I preach to 'em in the council house (I'm the council) on the law of supply and demand. I praise supply and knock demand. I use the same text every time. You wouldn't think, W. D.,' says Shane, 'that I had poetry in me, would you?'

"'Well,' says I, 'I wouldn't know whether to call it poetry or not.'

"'Tennyson,' says Shane, 'furnishes the poetic gospel I preach. I always considered him the boss poet. Here's the way the text goes:

"For, not to admire, if a man could learn it, were more Than to walk all day like a Sultan of old in a garden of spice."

"'You see, I teach 'em to cut out demand—that supply is the main thing. I teach 'em not to desire anything beyond their simplest needs. A little mutton, a little cocoa, and a little fruit brought up from the coast—that's all they want to make 'em happy. I've got 'em well trained. They make their own clothes and hats out of a vegetable fiber and straw, and they're a contented lot. It's a great thing,' winds up Shane, 'to have made a people happy by the incultivation of such simple institution.'

"Well, the next day, with the King's permission, I has the McClintock open up a couple of sacks of my goods in the little plaza of the village. The Indians swarmed around by the hundred and looked the bargain counter over. I shook red blankets at 'em, flashed finger rings and ear-bobs, tried pearl necklaces and side combs on the women, and a line of red hosiery on the men. 'Twas no use. They looked on like hungry graven images, but I never made a sale. I asked McClintock what was the trouble. Mac yawned three of four times, rolled a cigarette, made one or two confidential side remarks to a mule, and then condescended to inform me that the people had no money.

"Just then up strolls King Patrick, big and red and royal as usual, with the gold chain over his chest and his cigar in front of him.

"'How's business, W. D.?' he asks.

"'Fine,' says I. 'It's a bargin day rush. I've got one more line of goods to offer before I shut up shop. I'll try 'em with safety razors. I've got two gross that I bought at a fire sale.'

"Shane laughs till some kind of mameluke or private secretary he carries with him has to hold him up.

"'O my sainted Aunt Jerusha!' says he, 'ain't you one of the Babes in the Goods, W. D. Don't you know that no Indians ever shave? They pull out their whiskers instead.'

"'Well,' says I, 'that's just what these razors would do for 'em—they wouldn't have any kick coming if they used 'em once.'

"Shane went away, and I could hear him laughing a block, if there had been any block.

"'Tell 'em,' says I to McClintock, 'it ain't money I want—tell 'em I'll take gold dust. Tell 'em I'll allow 'em $16 an ounce for it in trade. That's what I'm out for—the dust.'

"Mac interprets, and you'd have thought a squadron of cops had charged the crowd to disperse it. Every uncle's nephew and aunt's niece of 'em faded away inside of two minutes.

"At the royal palace that night me and the King talked it over.

"'They've got the dust hid out somewhere,' says I, 'or they wouldn't have been so sensitive about it.'

"'They haven't,' says Shane. 'What's this gag you've got about gold? You been reading Edward Allan Poe? They ain't got any gold.'

"'They put it in quills,' says I, 'and then they empty it in jars, and then into sacks of 25 pounds each. I got it straight.'

"'W. D.,' says Shane, laughing and chewing his cigar, 'I don't often see a white man, and I feel like putting you on. I don't think you'll get away from here alive, anyhow, so I'm going to tell you. Come over here.'

"He draws aside a silk fiber curtain in a corner of the room and shows me a pile of buckskin sacks.

"'Forty of 'em,' says Shane. 'One arroba in each one. In round numbers, $220,000 worth of gold dust you see there. It's all mine. It belongs to the Grand Yacuma. They bring it all to me. Two hundred and twenty thousand dollars—think of that, you glass-bead peddler,' says Shane—'and all mine.'

"'Little good it does you,' says I, contemptuously and hatefully. 'And so you are the government depository of this gang of moneyless money makers? Don't you pay enough interest on it to enable one of your depositors to buy an Augusta (Me.) Pullman carbon diamond worth $200 for $4.85?'

"'Listen,' says Patrick Shane, with the sweat coming out on his brow. 'I'm confidant with you, as you have, somehow, enlisted my regards. Did you ever,' he says, 'feel the avoirdupois power of gold—not the troy weight of it, but the 16-ounces-to-the-pound force of it?'

"'Never,' says I. 'I never take any bad money.'

employed the secret is cleverly concealed somehow in the mystery of the skirt.

And bustles. Oh, no! It is a butterfly back. It does look exactly like a bustle, but we would not resurrect those instruments of coils and springs that have been the laughing stock of generations. Be that is it may, the bustle may be in the background and it may be a back number, but there is something behind the dancing frock and in the ripple of the new coats that is very perky and prancing; and a very small thing makes a very big bustle, sometimes, you know.

And big sleeves? They hasten to assure us that although they look as if they were padded as sleeves were of yore, they are not—yet. Sleeves wouldn't even look as prominent as they do if it were not such a short time since they either were the least considered part of the costume or else were dispensed with altogether. From being absolutely immaterial or the mere extension of the blouse, kimono-wise, it has come in one short season to be that first the sleeve and then the dress is the order of consideration.

Originality and variety in the shape of the sleeves brought about by puffs, ruffles and draperies, are the distinguishing feature of the new models. And while sleeves are outdoing themselves striving for new effects, collars are giving the sleeves something to think about.

Wide collars that become shoulder capes, or with bunches and bows and anything that is fluffy and frivolous and foolish, add their touch to complete the full, flaring, floating, flouncyness of the whole scheme.

The new hats show soaring proclivities, too. Skyward goes the trimming of turbans and small hats, with the lines spiraling up, up to dizzy heights. This is true of the earliest hats. Later in the summer it is authoritatively predicted they will volplane down again, becoming flat and wide spread—more tempting to the breezes, perhaps, than hats actually built upon aspiring lines. Ribbons and wings lend themselves most readily to the decoration of the sky scraping as well as the wide sweeping lines. But many new and strange devices never before employed as hat-trimming are seen this season. Celluloid and a transparent rubber composition construct many of the flowers and fruits, to say nothing of the vegetables ornamenting the new hats.

An effort is made to trace the present styles to Spanish origin. Maybe our position of neutrality drove the fashion creators to this extremity. The new silhouette does resemble the grande dames of Valesquez a little, except that the painted ladies are too stately and stolid. With the dashing short skirt, the high, smooth coiffure, curls in front of the ears, the large fan and high Spanish comb, rather it may be the wraith of Carmen flashing upon the scene.

But undoubtedly the Russian artist Bakst has had an influence upon the color schemes of the day. We are told there is a shortage of dyes and fashion must have been in a panic until this impressionist came along and showed how the combination and juxtaposition of raw, primary colors could be made to produce charming effects as delicate, as neutral or as clear and vivid as were the dyes that are lost.

FROM the bouffant effects of a season since it was not a long step to the buoyancy that characterizes the fashicnable silhouette of this spring.

Billowy, bouncing, bounding, balloony, bubbling—we can hope the new lines do not end by blowing up and bursting, although a whirl through the spring openings does leave one giddy, light headed, very much up in the air.

Bustles and hoops, my dear! and big, puffy sleeves—these are details that are only partly responsible for the bouffant outline. Of course, the authorities hasten to assure us that, no, we have not gone back. Style does not acknowledge retrogression. We evolve while we revolve. Fashion may whirl in circles, but we gain new ideas and improve with each revolution of the wheel.

The hoops of today are nothing like those atrocities 50 years ago. They were crude, unvarnished facts. Today the swaying, distended, aerial effect is got in the artful cut of the skirt. When a wire or featherbone is

THE TEETH of THE TIGER

New Adventures of Arsene Lupin

By MAURICE LeBLANC

In the recess containing the window, the lower part of the wall, which formed a very wide box underneath the casement, had the top of its woodwork raised and resting against the panes, exactly like the lid of a chest. And inside the open chest he saw the upper rungs of a narrow descending ladder.

In a second, Don Luis conjured up the whole story of the past: Count Malonyi's ancestress hiding in the old family mansion, escaping the search of the perquisitors, and in this way living throughout the revolutionary troubles. Everything was explained. A passage contrived in the thickness of the wall led to some distant outlet. And this was how Florence used to come and go through the house; this was how Gaston went in and out in all security; and this also was how both of them were able to enter his room and surprise his secrets.

His eyes were attracted by a sheet of paper on the table. With a feverish hand, Gaston Sauverand had scribbled the following lines in pencil:

"We are trying to escape so as not to compromise you. If we are caught, it can't be helped. The great thing is that you should be free. All our hopes are centered in you."

Below were two words written by Florence:

"Save Marie."

Downstairs the detectives were battering at the door of the passage in which they were imprisoned. Perhaps he would still have time to reach his motor before they succeeded in breaking down the door. Nevertheless, he preferred to take the same road as Florence and Sauverand, which gave him the hope of saving them and of rescuing them in case of danger.

He, therefore, stepped over the side of the chest, placed his foot on the top rung and went down. Some twenty bars brought him to the middle of the first floor. Here, by the light of his electric lantern, he entered a sort of low-vaulted tunnel, dug, as he thought in the wall, and so narrow that he could only walk along it sideways.

Thirty yards farther there was a bend at right angles; and next, at the end of another tunnel of the same length, a trap door, which stood open, revealing the rungs of a second ladder. He did not doubt that the fugitives had gone this way.

It was quite light at the bottom. Here he found himself in a cupboard which was also open and which, on ordinary occasions, must have been covered by curtains that were now down. This cupboard faced a bed that filled almost the whole space of an alcove. On passing through the alcove and reaching a room from which it was separated only by a slender partition, to his great surprise he recognized Florence's sitting room.

Don Luis went through the entrance hall and down the steps and, a little way before the pantry, came upon the cellar stairs. He ran down these and soon recognized the low door that served to admit the wine casks. The daylight filtered in through a small, grated spyhole. He groped till he found the lock. Glad to have come to the end of his expedition, he opened the door.

"Hang it all!" he growled, leaping back and clutching at the lock, which he managed to fasten again.

Two policemen in uniform were guarding the exit, two policemen who had tried to seize him as he appeared.

Where did those two men come from? Had they prevented the escape of Sauverand and Florence? But in that case Don Luis would have met the two fugitives, as he had come by exactly the same road as they.

"No," he thought, "they effected their flight before the exit was watched."

He went up the cellar stairs again, intending to hasten matters, to slip into the courtyard through the outhouses, to jump into his motor and to clear a way for himself. But, when he was just reaching the yard, near the coach-house, he saw four detectives, four of those whom he had imprisoned, come up waving their arms and shouting. And he also became aware of a regular uproar near the main gate and the porter's lodge. A number of men were all talking together, raising their voices in violent discussion.

Perhaps he might profit by this opportunity to steal outside under cover of the disorder. At the risk of being seen, he put out his head. And what he saw astounded him.

Gaston Sauverand stood with his back to the wall of the lodge, surrounded by policemen and detectives who pushed and insulted him. The handcuffs were on his wrists.

Gaston Sauverand a prisoner! What had happened between the two fugitives and the police?

His heart wrung with anguish, he leaned out still farther. But he did not see Florence. The girl had, no doubt, succeeded in escaping.

Weber's appearance on the steps and the deputy chief's first words confirmed his hopes. Weber was mad with rage.

"Ah!" he roared, as he saw the prisoner. "There's one of them, at any rate! Gaston Sauverand! Choice game that! . . . Where did you catch him?"

"On the Place du Palais-Bourbon," said one of the inspectors. "We saw him slinking out through the cellar door."

"And his accomplice, the Levasseur girl?"

"We missed her, Deputy Chief. She was the first out."

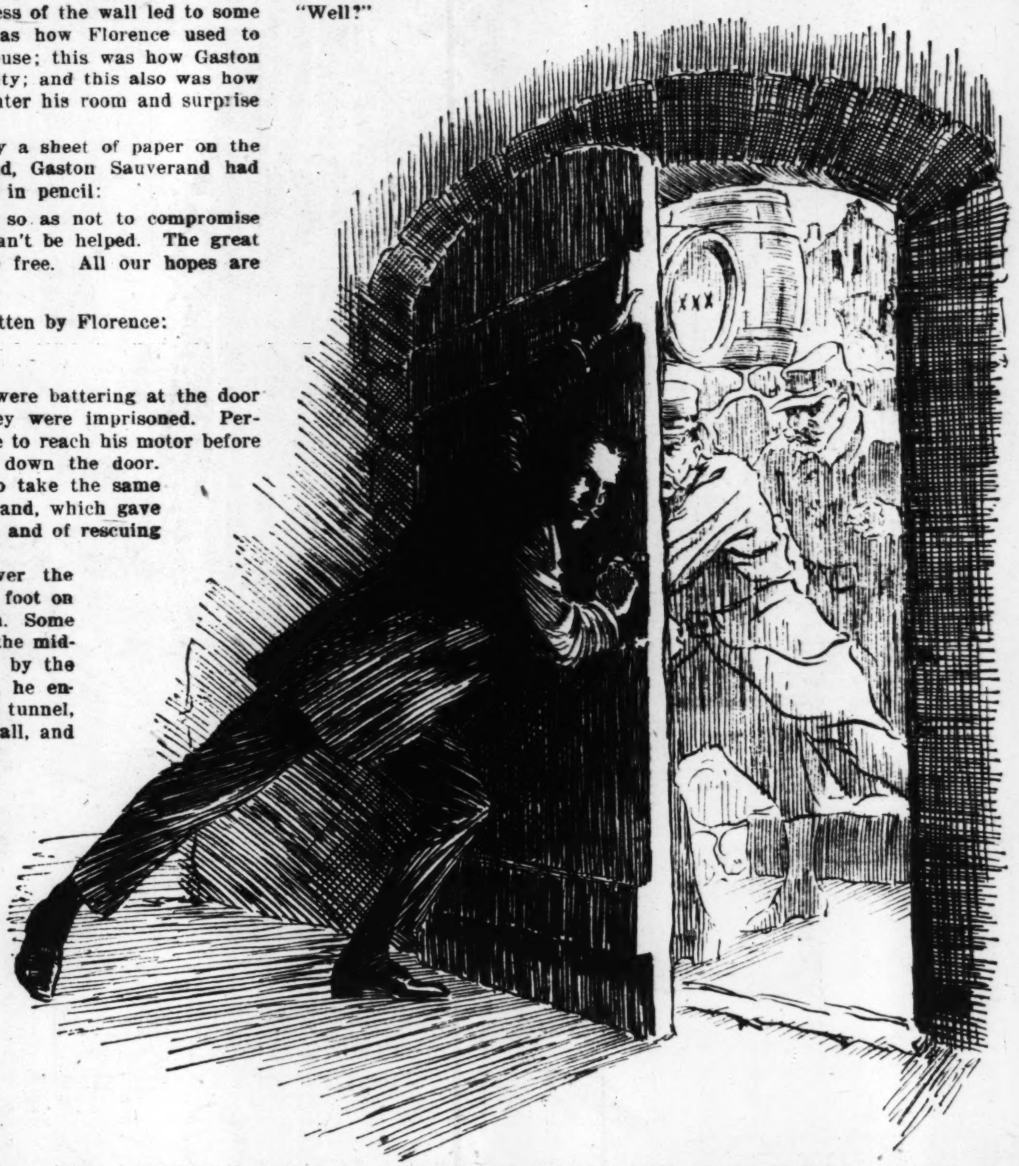
"And Don Luis?"

"He tried to get out through the cellar door five minutes after."

"Who said so?"

"One of the men in uniform posted outside the door."

"Well?"



"Hang it all," he growled, leaping back and clutching at the lock which he managed to fasten again.

"The beggar went back into the cellar."

Weber gave a shout of delight.

"We've got him! And it's a nasty business for him! Charge of resisting the police! . . . Complicity! . . . We shall be able to unmask him at last."

Don Luis did not wait for the enemies' attack. He beat a retreat, unseen, toward Florence's room. Here, as Weber did not yet know the short cut through the outhouses, he had time to make sure that the trapdoor was in perfect working order, and that there was no reason why they should discover the existence of a secret cupboard at the back of the alcove, behind the curtains of the bed.

Once inside the passage, he went up the first staircase, followed the long corridor contrived in the wall, climbed the ladder leading to the boudoir, and, perceiving that this second trap-door fitted the woodwork so closely that no one could suspect anything, he closed it over him. A few minutes later he heard the noise of men making a search above his head.

And so, on the twenty-fourth of May, at five o'clock in the afternoon, the position was as follows: Florence Levasseur with a warrant out against her, Gaston Sauverand in prison, Marie Fauville in prison and refusing all food, and Don Luis, who believed in their innocence and who alone could save them, was being blockaded in his own house and hunted down by a score of detectives.

"Capital!" said Don Luis, with a grin. "This is life as I understand it. The question is a simple one and may be put in different ways. How can a wretched, unwashed beggar, with not a penny in his pocket, make a fortune in twenty-four hours without setting foot outside his hovel? How can a general, with no soldiers and no ammunition left, win a battle which he had lost? In short, how shall I, Arsene Lupin, manage to be present tomorrow evening at the meeting which will be held on the Boulevard Suchet and to behave in such a way as to save Marie Fauville, Florence Levasseur, Gaston Sauverand and my excellent friend Don Luis Perenna in the bargain?"

CHAPTER XII.

"Help!"

HOURS and hours passed. Suddenly, in the middle of the night, he gave a start. He took out his watch. By the light of his electric lamp he saw that it was 17 minutes to 12.

For two hours more he devoted all his mental powers to examining the situation from every point of view. But when, wishing to try his chance of escaping, he went up through the underground passage and climbed to the top of the upper ladder—that is to say, to the level of the boudoir—he heard through the trapdoor the voices of men in the room.

"By Jove!" he said to himself, "the thing is not so simple as I thought! In order to escape the minions of the law I must first leave my prison; and here is at least one of the exits blocked. Let's look at the other."

He went down to Florence's apartments and worked the mechanism, which consisted of a counterweight. The panel of the cupboard moved in the groove.

Driven by hunger and hoping to find some provisions which would enable him to withstand a siege without being reduced to famine, he was about to pass through the alcove, behind the curtains, when he was stopped short by a sound of footsteps. Someone had entered the room.

"Well, Mazeroux, have you spent the night here? Nothing new?"

Don Luis recognized the Prefect of Police by his voice; and the question put by the Prefect told him, first, that Mazeroux had been released from the dark closet where he had bound him up, and, secondly, that the sergeant was in the next room. Fortunately, the sliding panel had worked without the least sound; and Don Luis was able to overhear the conversation between the two men.

"No, nothing new, Monsieur le Prefet," replied Mazeroux.

"That's funny. The confounded fellow must be somewhere. Or can he have got away over the roof?"

"Impossible, Monsieur le Prefet," said a third voice, which Don Luis recognized as that of Weber, the deputy chief detective. "I think, Monsieur, that he is concealed in the house."

"Of course, of course," said M. Desmalions. "You're right, and we shall catch him in his burrow. By the way, Mazeroux, you must get the telephone repaired this morning, so as to keep in touch with the office. Have you begun your search in these two rooms?"

"As you ordered, Monsieur le Prefet. The deputy chief and I have been running round for the last hour."

"Yes," said M. Desmalions, "that Florence Levasseur strikes me as a troublesome creature. Have you discovered nothing in her papers?"

"No, Monsieur le Prefet," said Mazeroux. "Nothing but bills and tradesmen's letters."

"And you, Weber?"

"I've found something very interesting, Monsieur le Prefet."

Weber spoke in a triumphant tone, and, in answer to M. Desmalion's question, went on:

"This is a volume of Shakespeare, Monsieur le Prefet; volume VIII. You will see that, contrary to the other volumes, the inside is empty and the binding forms a secret receptacle for hiding documents."

"Yes. What sort of documents?"

"Here they are; sheets of paper, blank sheets, all but three. One of them gives a list of the dates on which the mysterious letters were to appear."

"Oho!" said M. Desmalions. "That's a crushing piece of evidence against Florence Levasseur. And also it tells us where Don Luis got his list from."

Perenna listened with surprise; he had utterly forgotten this particular; and Gaston Sauverand had made no reference to it in his narrative. And yet it was a strange and serious detail. From whom had Florence received that list of dates?

"And what's on the other two sheets?" asked M. Desmalions.

Don Luis pricked up his ears. Those two other sheets had escaped his attention on the day of his interview with Florence in this room.

"Here is one of them," said Weber.

M. Desmalions took the paper and read:

"Bear in mind that the explosion is independent of the letters, and that it will take place at 3 o'clock in the morning."

"Yes," he said, "the famous explosion which Don Luis foretold and which is to accompany the fifth letter, as announced on this list of dates. Tush! We have plenty of time, as there have been only three letters and the fourth is due tonight. Besides, blowing up that house on the Boulevard Suchet would be no easy job, by Jove! Is that all?"

"Monsieur le Prefet," said Weber, producing the third sheet, "would you mind looking at these lines drawn in pencil and inclosed in a large square containing some other smaller squares and rectangles of all sizes? Wouldn't you say that it was the plan of a house?"

"Yes, I should."

"It is the plan of the house in which we are," declared Weber solemnly. "Here you see the front courtyard, the main building, the porter's lodge, and, over there, Mlle.

The Teeth of the Tiger (Continued)

Levasseur's lodge. From this lodge, a dotted line, in red pencil, starts zigzagging toward the main building. The commencement of this line is marked by a little red cross which stands for the room in which we are, or, to be more correct, the alcove. You will see here something like the design of a chimney, or, rather, a cupboard—a cupboard recessed behind the bed and probably hidden by the curtains."

"But, in that case, Weber," said M. Desmalions, "this dotted line must represent a passage leading from this lodge to the main building. Look, there is also a little red cross at the other end of the line."

"Yes, Monsieur le Prefet, there is another cross. We shall discover later for certain what position it marks. But, meanwhile, and acting on a mere guess, I have posted some men in a small room on the second floor where the last secret meeting between Don Luis, Florence Levasseur and Gaston Sauverand was held yesterday. And, meanwhile, at any rate, we hold one end of the line and, through that very fact, we know Don Luis Perenna's retreat."

Don Luis did not wait to hear more. He softly retreated to the cupboard, took hold of the panel and pushed it back without a sound.

So his hiding place was known!

He had run half way along the underground passage, with the intention of reaching the other exit. But he stopped.

"It's not worth while, as the exit's watched. Wait a bit, let's see"——

Already there came from the alcove a noise of blows striking on the panel, the hollow sound of which had probably attracted the deputy chief's attention.

"Oh, hang it all!" muttered Don Luis. "What shall I do? Have a dash at them? Ah, if I had all my strength!"

But he was exhausted by want of food. His legs shook beneath him and his brain seemed to lack its usual clearness.

The increasing violence of blows in the alcove drove him, in spite of all, toward the upper exit; and, as he climbed the ladder, he moved his electric lantern over the stones of the wall and the wood of the trapdoor. He even tried to lift the door with his shoulder. But he again heard a sound of footsteps above his head. The men were still there.

Then, consumed with fury and helpless, he awaited the deputy's coming.

A crash came from below; its echo spread through the tunnel, followed by a tumult of voices.

Before extinguishing his lantern, he cast its light around him for the last time.

At a couple of yards' distance from the ladder, about three quarters of the way up and set a little way back, there was a big stone missing from the inner wall, leaving a space just large enough to crouch in.

Although the recess did not form much of a hiding place, it was just possible that they might omit to inspect it. Besides, Don Luis had no choice. At all events, after putting out the light, he leaned toward the edge of the hole, reached it and managed to scramble in by bending himself in two.

Weber, Mazeroux and their men were coming along. Don Luis propped himself against the back of his hiding hole to avoid as far as possible the glare of the lanterns, of which he was beginning to see the gleams. And an amazing thing happened; the stone against which he was pushing toppled over slowly, as though moving on a pivot, and he fell backward into a second cavity situated behind it.

He heard Mazeroux's voice saying:

"Nobody! And here's the end of the passage."

Don Luis examined his domain and perceived how extremely small it was. The most that he could do was to sit in it. It was a gallery, or, rather, a sort of gut, a yard and a half long and ending in an orifice, narrower still, heaped up with bricks. The walls, besides, were formed of bricks, some of which were lacking; and the building stones which these should have kept in place crumbled at the least touch. The ground was strewn with them.

"By Jove!" thought Lupin. "I must not wriggle about too much, or I shall risk being buried alive! A pleasant prospect!"

Not only this, but the fear of making a noise kept him motionless. As a matter of fact, he was close to two rooms occupied by the detectives, first the boudoir and then the study, for the boudoir, as he knew, was over that part of his study which included the telephone box.

The thought of this suggested another. On reflection, remembering that he used sometimes to wonder how Count Malonyi's ancestress had managed to keep alive behind the curtain on the days when she had to hide there, he realized that there must have been a communication between the secret passage and what was now the telephone box, a communication too narrow to admit a person's body, but serving as a ventilating shaft.

As a precaution, in case the secret passage was discovered, a stone concealed the upper aperture to this shaft. Count Malonyi must have closed up the lower end when he restored the wainscoting of the study.

So there he was, imprisoned in the thickness of the walls, with no very definite intention beyond that of escaping from the clutches of the police. More hours passed.

Gradually, tortured with hunger and thirst, he fell into a heavy sleep, disturbed by painful nightmares which he would have given much to be able to throw off. But he slept too deeply to recover consciousness until 8 o'clock in the evening.

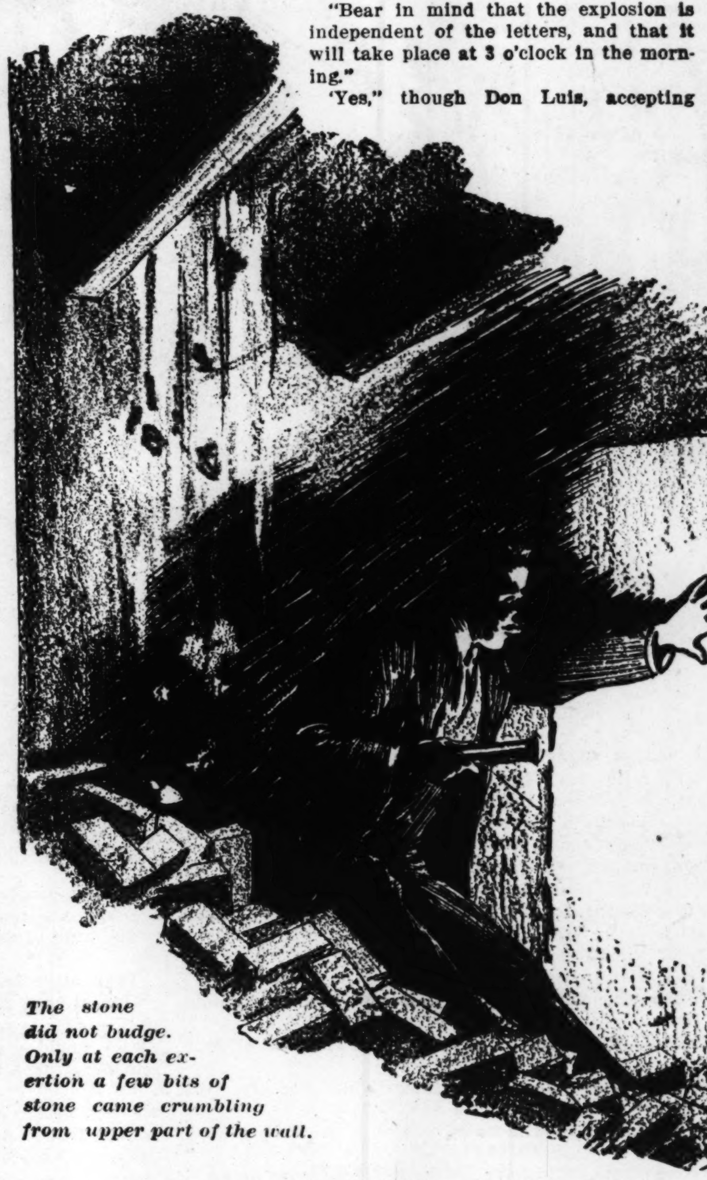
When he woke up, feeling very tired, he saw his position in an unexpectedly hideous light, and, at the same time, so accurately that, yielding to a sudden change of opinion marked by no little fear, he resolved to leave his hiding place and give himself up.

But, on turning round to reach the entrance to his hole, he perceived first that the stone did not swing over when merely pushed, and, next, after several attempts, that he could not manage to find the mechanism which no doubt worked the stone. He persisted. His exertions were all in vain. The stone did not budge. Only, at each exertion, a few bits of stone came crumbling from the upper part of the wall and still further narrowed the space in which he was able to move.

He summoned up all his energies to think, but his jaded brain gave him none but confused and disconnected ideas. He thought of the meeting that was to take place at Fauville's house on the Boulevard Suchet. The meeting had begun. The police were watching the house. And this reminded him of the sheet of paper found by Weber in the eighth volume of Shakspeare's plays, and of the sentence written on it, which the Prefect had read out:

"Bear in mind that the explosion is independent of the letters, and that it will take place at 3 o'clock in the morning."

'Yes," though Don Luis, accepting M. Desmalion's reasoning, "yes, in 10 days' time. As there have been only three letters, the fourth will appear tonight; and the explosion will not take place until the fifth letter appears—that is in 10 days from now."



The stone did not budge. Only at each exertion a few bits of stone came crumbling from upper part of the wall.

He repeated:

"In 10 days—with the fifth letter—in 10 days"——

And suddenly he gave a start of fright. A horrible vision had flashed across his mind, a vision only too real. The explosion was to occur that very night!

No doubt only three letters had appeared out of the mysterious darkness, but four letters ought to have appeared, because one of them had appeared not on the date fixed, but 10 days later; and this for a reason which Don Luis knew.

One thing alone stood out above the situation: the sentence, "Bear in mind that the explosion is independent of the letters." And, as the explosion was put down for the night May 25, it would occur that very night, at 3 o'clock in the morning!

"Help! Help!" he cried.

This time he did not hesitate. So far, he had had the courage to remain huddled in his prison and to wait for the miracle that might come to his assistance; but he preferred to face every danger and undergo every penalty rather than abandon the Prefect of Police, Weber, Mazeroux and their companions to the death that threatened them.

He recovered enough strength to raise desperate shouts and to make his voice carry beyond the stones and beyond the wainscoting.

Then, when there seemed to be no answer to his call, he stopped and listened for a long time. There was not a sound.

Thereupon a terrible anguish covered him with a cold sweat. Supposing the detectives had ceased to watch the upper floors and confined themselves to spending the night in the rooms on the ground floor?

He madly took a brick and struck it repeatedly against the stone that closed the entrance, hoping that the noise would spread through the house. But an avalanche of small stones, loosened by the blows, at once fell upon him, knocking him down again and fixing him where he lay.

"Help! Help!"

More silence—a great ruthless silence.

He ceased his cries and again listened, with all his anxious attention, to the great silence that surrounded as with layers of lead the stone coffin in which he lay imprisoned. Still nothing, not a sound.

All of a sudden his electric lantern, which he had left alight to dispel the terrors of the darkness, went out. It was 11 o'clock at night.

He was overcome with a fit of giddiness. He could hardly breathe in the close and vitiated air. A numbness crept over him. He fell into a sort of swoon, in which he continued to stammer confused syllables:

"Florence—Marie—Marie"——

CHAPTER XIII.

The Explosion.

THE fourth mysterious letter! The fourth of those letters "posted by the devil and delivered by the devil," as one of the newspapers expressed it!

We all of us remember the really extraordinary agitation of the public as the night of May 25 drew near. And fresh news increased this interest to a yet higher degree.

People heard in quick succession of the arrest of Sauverand, the flight of his accomplice, Florence Levasseur, Don Luis Perenna's secretary, and the inexplicable disappearance of Perenna himself, whom they insisted, for the best of reasons, on identifying with Arsene Lupin.

That evening, therefore, a great crowd made its way, through La Muette and Auteuil, to the Boulevard Suchet, a crowd coming not only from Paris, but also from the suburbs and the provinces.

They saw only from a distance, for the police had barred the approaches a hundred yards from either side of the house and were driving into the ditches of the fortifications all those who managed to climb the opposite slope.

The sky was stormy, with heavy clouds revealed at intervals by the light of a silver moon. There were lightning flashes and peals of distant thunder. Men sang. Street boys imitated the noises of animals. People formed themselves into groups on the benches and pavements and ate and drank while discussing the matter.

From 10 o'clock in the evening the Prefect of Police and his secretary general, the chief detective and Weber, his deputy, Sergt. Mazeroux, and two detectives were gathered in the large room in which Fauville had been murdered. Fifteen more detectives occupied the remaining rooms, while some twenty others watched the roofs, the outside of the house and the garden.

Once again a thorough search had been made during the afternoon, with no better results than before. But it was decided that all the men should keep awake. If the letter was delivered anywhere in the big room, they wanted to know and they meant to know who brought it.

At 12 o'clock M. Desmalions had coffee served to his subordinates. He himself took two cups and never ceased walking from one end to the other of the room, or climbing the staircase that led to the attic, or going through the passage and hall.

At 1 o'clock there was an alarm that showed the pitch which the nervous tension had reached. A shot was fired on the first floor, followed by shouts. On inquiry it was found that two detectives, meeting in the course of a round, had not recognized each other, and one of them had discharged his revolver in the air to inform his comrades.

At 2:25, as the Prefect was lighting a cigar, the chief detective ventured to joke:

"That's something you will have to do without, next time, Monsieur le Prefet. It would be too risky."

"Next time," said M. Desmalions, "I shall not waste time in keeping watch. For I really begin to think that all this business with the letters is over."

A few minutes more passed. M. Desmalions had sat down. The others also were seated. No one spoke.

And suddenly they all sprang up, with one movement, and the same expression of surprise.

A bell had rung.

"The telephone," M. Desmalions muttered.

He took down the receiver.

"Hullo! Who are you?"

A voice answered, but so distant and so faint that he could only catch an incoherent noise and exclaimed:

"Speak louder! What is it? Who are you?"

The voice spluttered out a few syllables that seemed to astound him.

"Hullo!" he said. "I don't understand. Please repeat what you said. Who is it speaking?"

"Don Luis Perenna," was the answer, more distinctly this time.

The Prefect made as though to hang up the receiver; and he growled:

"It's a hoax. Some rotter amusing himself at our expense."

Nevertheless, in spite of himself, he went on in a gruff voice:

"Look here, what is it? You say you're Don Luis Perenna?"

"Yes."

"What do you want?"

"What's the time?"

"What's the time!"

The Prefect made an angry gesture, not so much because of the ridiculous question as because he had really recognized Don Luis' voice beyond mistake.

"Well," he said, controlling himself. "What's all this about? Where are you?"

"At my house, above the iron curtain, in the ceiling of my study."

"In the ceiling!" repeated the Prefect, not knowing what to think.

"Yes; and more or less done for, I confess."

"We'll send and help you out," said M. Desmalions, who was beginning to enjoy himself.

"Later on, Monsieur le Prefet. First answer me. Quickly! If not, I don't know that I shall have the strength. What's the time?"

"It's 20 minutes to 3."

"Twenty minutes to 3!"

It was as though Don Luis found renewed strength in a sudden fit of fear. His weak voice recovered its emphasis, and, by turns imperious, despairing and beseeching, full of a conviction which he did his utmost to impart to M. Desmalions, he said:

"Go away, Monsieur le Prefet! Go, all of you; leave the house. The house will be blown up at 3 o'clock.

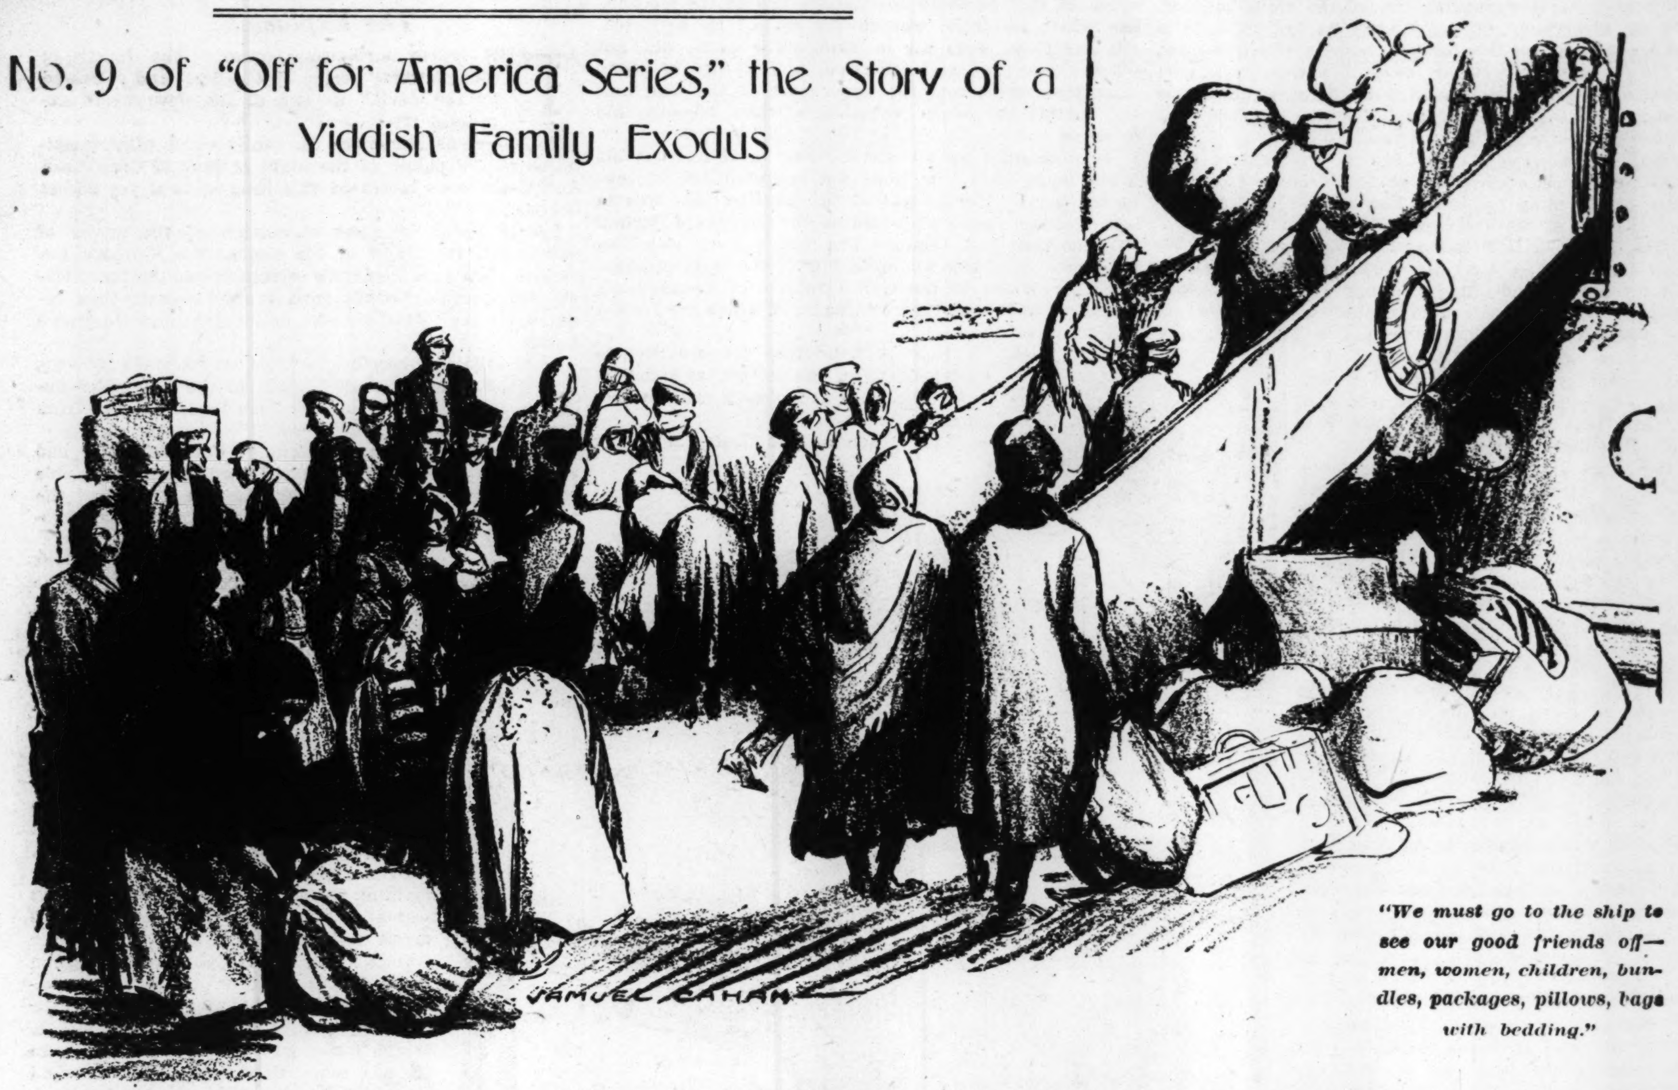
No. 9 of "Off for America Series," the Story of a Yiddish Family Exodus



"We must go to the ship to see our good friends off—men, women, children, bundles, packages, pillows, bags with bedding."

THE adventures and wanderings of this family of Russian Jews who have left their native village to emigrate to the United States of America, are chronicled by the bright boy, Muttel, son of Pasi the cantor. Muttel has an irrepressible sense of humor, combined with a natural turn for drawing and mimicry. That is why all the hard-luck stories of "our family"—and they are many—are treated as jokes in the lad's vivacious narrative.

"HOW did you steal the border and how did they get you across?"

That was the first thing we asked our mechutonim (relatives-in-law). Aud our mechutonim have whole bushels to tell! I stole away to a corner with my sister-in-law's little sister. I told you once about her. She is called Alte and wears two pigtails. Her mamma has a retonda (fur coat). The retonda her husband had made for her back in the good years, when they still had a lot of money. Now that times became bad with them, and their creditors began to annoy them, there was nothing left but to sell everything and go to America. When they came to the retonda, to sell the retonda, her mamma says she will sell everything but not the retonda. Her husband asks her: "Why do you need the retonda?" In America nobody needs a retonda!"

"Day and night," Alte tells me, "we heard in our house only retonda and retonda! There were quarrels. Who won? My mamma, of course. The retonda was not sold! We took the retonda along; packed the retonda in a separate bundle and before we came to the border there was no retonda." * * *

What do you say to our bad luck? We went to the doctor with my mamma, to have him examine her eyes. He examined her eyes and did not say a word. He wrote something on a little piece of paper and put it into an envelope. We carried the envelope to the "Ezra." When we came to the "Ezra" we found no one there but Miss Zeitshik. She opens the envelope, takes one look at the paper, stops laughing and wrings her hands. So my mamma asks her:

"What is the news?"

"It's bad!" she says. "The doctor says that you cannot go to America." * * *

My sister-in-law Brocha fell into a faint. My brother Elihu stood speechless, without a drop of blood in his face. My mamma herself turned to stone. She couldn't even cry. * * * Miss Zeitshik revived Brocha, comforted Elihu, eased my mamma's heart and told us to come tomorrow.

The next day we go again to the "Ezra." The "Ezra" advises us to try to go by way of London. Maybe London will let my mamma through with her cried out eyes to America. Or, if not to America, at least to Canada. * * * Where Canada is we don't know. They say that it is still farther than America.

Meanwhile we must go to the ship to see our good friends off. My, my, the goings on at the ship. Men, women, children, bundles, packages, pillows, bags with bedding! There is a running, kissing, weeping—a whole circus. Everybody says good-by. We say good-by, too. Everybody kissing, we kiss, too. We kiss the crowd. My mamma kisses our neighbor Pesi. Pesi eases my mamma's heart, tells her not to worry. They will, he says, with God's help, see each other soon in America.

My sister-in-law Brocha has a habit of sneaking up behind a fellow to hear what he is saying and to see why he is laughing. Well, this time Brocha was right We made a whole comedy of her mamma, Rivele, the baker's wife, with her retonda (fur coat). Day and night she talks of her retonda, the retonda that was stolen from her at the border. My mamma cannot stand it any longer and says to her:

"Oh, mechutinte (relative-in-law)! if I wanted to talk so much about my bedding, my pillows, that were taken from me at the border, as you talk about your retonda!" * * *

"Don't mention them in the same breath!" Rivele the baker's wife answers.

"Then mine are not honest pillows?" says my mamma to her.

"Honest, not honest; I never stood at the head of your bed."

"I don't understand, mechutinte. What kind of a language are you talking?"

"The kind of good morning you wish me, such a good year." * * *

"Mechutinte, what have I done to offend your honor?"

"Who says you have offended my honor?"

"Then why do you talk about 'the same breath?' "

"Why shouldn't I? When I speak of my retonda, you have to butt in with your bedding, with your pillows!"

"Then mine are not honest pillows?"

"Honest, not honest, I never stood at the head of your bed."

And they keep it up. The same thing over and over again! Do you need a circus?

I, little Muttel, and my chum, big Muttel, sat down the very same evening and hit on a plan. "Do you know what?" says big Muttel to me. "I'll be Rivele the baker's wife and you be your mamma. Let us play the same game they did this afternoon."

And the two Muttels dressed up. One put on a wig and the other covered his head with a silk shawl. And we called in people, and we went to work:

"Oh, mechutinte! If I wanted to talk so much of my bedding and my pillows that they took away from me at the border as you of your retonda!" * * *

"Don't mention them in the same breath!"

"Then mine are not honest pillows?"

"Honest, not honest, I never stood at the head of your bed."

"I don't understand, mechutinte. What kind of a language are you speaking?"

"The kind of good morning you wish me, such a good year." * * *

"Then mine are not honest pillows?"

"Honest, not honest, I never stood at the head of your"——

Who would dream that just at the word "bed" the door would open and company would appear; my sister-in-law Brocha with her mamma, Rivele the baker's wife, and her papa, Jonah the baker, with his sons, my brother Elihu, our chum Pini with his wife Taibel, Bieber the Feldsher, and other men and women—a whole crowd!

"We must separate these two Muttels!" So Brocha passed judgment

My brother Elihu gave me fair warning that if he will see us two together, he will make a motznike (scrambled egg) out of me! He forgets that there is a mamma in the world who would sooner lose her bad eyes than let anybody make a motznike out of me.

My mamma's eyes are not well. That means they are bad, very bad! They say we will not be allowed to go on board the ship, even for a million. We must run away from Antwerp. In Antwerp the doctors are murderers! They look into your eyes. If they find "trachomas" on your eyes, the devil takes them. With them there is no such thing as respect or pity!

We will have to go to America by a different way. We do not know yet by what way. There are ways enough. If we only had the money to go! I guess my

St. Louis Girl of 10 a Piano Genius

Like Mozart, Lorna Drew began playing in infancy and today she composes, improvises, threads her way skillfully through counterpoint and harmony—Her remarkable sense of pitch and her peculiar explanation of it—Her parents musicians

By Richard L. Stokes.

LITTLE MISS LORNA DREW, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis W. Drew of 4960 Fountain avenue, St. Louis, was 10 years of age on Feb. 2, last; but she has already displayed so uncanny an aptitude for music as to set connoisseurs in this city to recalling the wonder-child, Mozart.

Like him, she has played the piano since infancy, so that she now possesses a technique of which many students twice her age might be proud. Like him, she composes music instinctively, and notes are to her as natural a means of expression as words are to other children.

It is not recorded whether Mozart possessed the sense of absolute pitch; Lorna has this unusual gift to a degree that is almost eerie. And for sight reading she has an extraordinary talent. If her genius is considerably less mature, in some ways, than that of Mozart at her age, it is at least in part because her mother has declined to employ the hot-house forcing methods used in developing that German prodigy; which were responsible, many believe, for his untimely death at the age of 35.

Lorna Drew at her piano.

A Post-Dispatch writer who called at the Drew home a few afternoons ago met a delicate and slender child, of rather small stature for her years. Her brown hair was bobbed and she wore a blue dress of French pattern. Her outstanding feature was her large brown eyes, strangely intense in their gaze. Her tiny hand, which can barely span an octave, had that firmness in the grasp which is peculiar to pianists. She was completely at ease, but her manner was modest and attractive.

Upon the piano lay a sheet of music paper, scrawled over in lead pencil with clefs and notes. It was headed "Lullaby, by Lorna Drew." For several bars the music was sketched for both hands; the rest was completed with the left hand only. Mrs. Drew explained that at 10 o'clock that morning Lorna said she "heard something in her mind" and had sat down at the table for half an hour with pencil and paper. The "Lullaby" was the result. It had not yet been played on the piano.

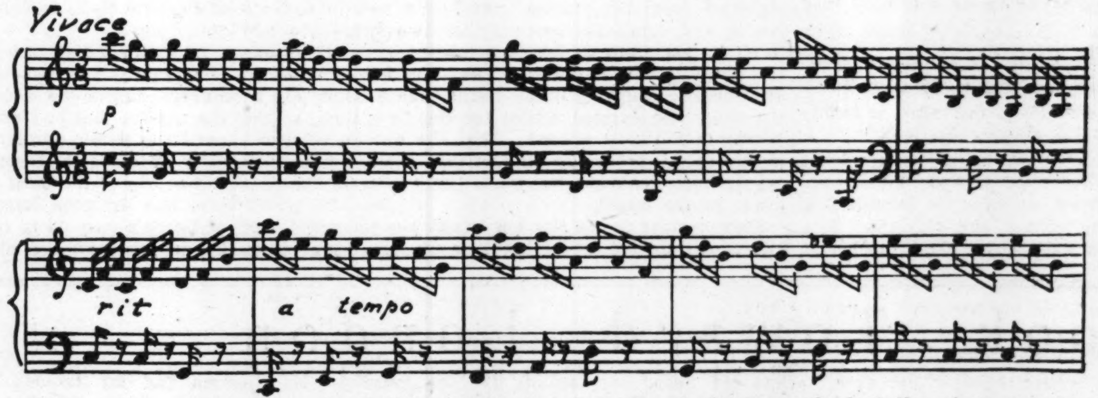
The child sat down to give her composition its first hearing outside her own brain. She was concerned to have an ancient piano stool, sloping down on one side so that her feet could reach the pedals without too much strain. Then she played, the little finger darting nimbly about the keys, and adding from memory the parts not yet written into the score.

The piece had a distinct and pleasant melody, with something of the clearness of line characteristic of Mozart, much of whose music the child-composer has played. So far as the visitor could tell, it was, nevertheless, completely original. But the accompaniment was what struck the attention. It was in broken chords, and in the bass was a well-defined organ point. Her mother declared that the child had never heard of broken chords or organ point and that her use of these devices was either intuitive or a reminiscence of something similar which had pleased her in the music of others.

Then the writer was asked to supply the child with a theme upon which she might improvise. He inquired whether anyone in the family was familiar with Schubert's Unfinished Symphony, and on receiving a negative reply, wrote down the theme of the symphony's slow movement. As this is played by violoncellos, it was written in the bass clef.

"Oh!" exclaimed Lorna, when it was placed before her, "a bass theme! But I'll put it in the right hand soon."

She played it first in the left hand; then, sure enough, it skipped to the right, and beneath it appeared a clever bass with correct harmonies. Without a moment's hesitation she dashed into a second theme of her own, which Schubert's had suggested, but which was very different from it. Still without a second of delay, she varied the rhythm of the original theme, so that the accent now appeared in a different part of the bar. Finally she combined the two themes in a sort of counterpoint, and so ended several minutes of playing.



A friend gave Lorna Drew the subject of "Spring Rain," and she improvised at the piano a composition of which the above are the opening bars.

The remarkable thing was that, according to Mrs. Drew, Lorna had had no instruction in musical form and the development of themes, and she had never heard of counterpoint. Neither has she enjoyed a formal training in harmony, although her grown half-sister, Miss Helen Cross, has given her some desultory instruction in the rudiments of the science.

Next came an arresting exhibition of the child's sense of pitch. Standing about 15 feet from the piano, with her back to it and her hands over her eyes, she called out as fast as the visitor could strike them the names of keys he sounded. He was careful to pick them helter-skelter, so that no relations of tonality could be established between the successive tones; and he picked keys both high and low on the keyboard.

From the little averted figure the answers came instantly and accurately: "G, D-flat, A-sharp, E, B-flat, F, A-flat, C, F-sharp—and so on for about 30 tests. Each reply came the moment the tone was sounded, and every one was correct.

She was asked how she accomplished this feat, and said that she heard the tones in her throat. It appeared that some sort of vibration is set up there which corresponds to every gradation of pitch. "G is situated here," she said, with a quaint precision of words, touching a point on her throat. "A-flat is right above it and then comes A"—touching spots higher on her throat—"and then they go on up and up like this;" and she touched her chin, her lips, her nose, her eyes and her forehead. "Up here," she said, "are the high notes."

Then came a feat of sight-reading. The visitor chose from a book of Beethoven's compositions one of his comparatively unfamiliar sonatas, the Eighteenth, in E-flat major. Lorna attacked it with confidence, turning into arpeggios the tall chords which she could not span, and threading her way without hesitation through the labyrinth of dotted notes, rests and unexpected modulations of the first two pages. As it was evident she could have continued at it indefinitely, the test was halted here. Her mother, her sister and the child herself declared she had never seen the music before. This trial was easy for her, Mrs. Drew said, for she was able to read at sight so formidable a thing as the first part of Liszt's "Second Hungarian Rhapsody."

Next Lorna played all of Mozart's Concerto for Piano in D minor, with Miss Cross at a second piano. The score had no difficulties for the little girl's fingers, whether the things to be played were rapid scales, broken chords or such embellishments as trills and turns. The melodious second movement was especially pretty.

Mrs. Francis W. Drew.

Miss Helen Cross.

Then she played two compositions of her own. One—a little essay in program music—was called "The Clock," and the music described the ticking of the time keeper and the striking of the hours, from one to twelve. Her imitation of the strokes of the bell was clever and showed that at so early an age dissonances have lost their terrors for her.

Another, a dainty bit of tone description, was called "Spring Rain," and imitated the patter of raindrops. Mrs. Drew said that a woman caller some weeks before gave the subject to the child, adding a dime—for Lorna has well developed commercial instincts—and that she improvised the piece on the spot. Her fixed tariff for "making-up" pieces for visitors is 10 cents each, but she will go so far as to consult their tastes, and will give them tone poems or ragtime, as they wish.

Lorna's only teachers have been her mother, who was formerly a piano teacher, and her half-sister, who is a teacher of piano and harmony. She played the piano from the time she was 2 years old, sitting cross-legged on the stool like a tailor, but had her first lesson when she was 5. She teased her mother for a lesson, until finally Mrs. Drew took her in her lap—for she was too small to reach the keys when sitting on the stool—and began teaching her the old English dance, "London Bridge Is Falling Down."

She showed her how the C major triad was formed, and its dominant seventh on G. Then she explained how the piano's keys correspond to certain lines and spaces on the staff, and how the black keys represent sharps and flats. It was a lesson of only half an hour, but in that space the child learned once and for all the secret of reading music. With a kind of clairvoyance, it seemed as though she needed only to learn the alphabet of music to know its whole speech. It was like opening a strange book and finding it was written in one's native tongue. Lorna has never since required instruction in reading music, her relatives say, for she grasped the science in a moment.

After that Mrs. Drew put the child through a series of standard exercises for technique—Clement, Czerny and Bach's "Well-tempered Clavicord." As a result, piano teachers here have said that Lorna's fingering is almost flawless, and that she has a rapidity and stre far beyond her years.

ested, is enjoying a boom never before experienced. The better grades of zinc ore is bringing from $80 to $105 a ton, whereas the average price in normal times is only $50 to $70. Zinc spelter is bringing $16 per hundred pounds at present, but after the war started it rose to $27.60. Before the war the normal price was $5, and it has sold as low as from $3 to $4.

Lead has reached the high mark of $7.50 per hundred pounds. A year ago it was $5 and the average under ordinary conditions is from $4 to $5.

No figures showing the number of additional men employed in these three branches of mining are available, but their ranks have increased enormously. Additional employment also has been given to those workers in the metal industry who fabricate the raw material into finished articles, and the railroads, if the congestion of other freight were not enough, are called upon to move many thousand more tons of ore than they carry in normal times.

It should be understood also that the great demand for steel, copper, zinc and other materials has not been called forth solely by the needs of the nations at war. Large amounts of them are being used in building operations and peaceful industry—the electrical, for instance, which is enjoying a boom in the United States. Many cities in the country are undertaking great public works. In Chicago there are in course of construction, among other things, a $65,000,000 railroad terminal and passenger station and the new building for the Field Museum, which will cost $7,500,000. Boston is constructing mammoth dry docks and making improvements along its water front which call for a vast outlay of building materials and labor. The new subway in New York is another gigantic enterprise which can be cited as an evidence that the era of good times is real. In nearly every city of any consequence in the country, new office and factory buildings are going up regardless of the high cost of structural steel, lumber and other materials.

While prices of wire and wire products are the highest in years, the demand is so heavy that domestic mills cannot supply the home market and have been forced to refuse huge offers from foreign countries, including heavy demands for barbed wire for the construction of trench entanglements from the warring nations.

The famine also has extended to wire nails and the shortage in supply is acute. The mills are shipping their product as fast as made, but the consumers are not getting more than half the wire and wire nails called for in their contracts. Demands of Central Western and Western consumers have more than absorbed the additional tonnage offered for distribution in those sections of the country.

Dozens of other indexes to prosperity are apparent. Prices of all commodities reached, on March 1, a point 2 per cent over Feb. 1, the highest ever recorded. The gain since July 1, 1914, a month before the war started, has been 31 per cent. Failures in the United States in February of this year were far below those in January and February, 1915. The bank clearings of the country in February were 53 per cent greater than in the same month of 1915; 41 per cent greater than in 1914 and 34 per cent greater than in 1913. American industrial corporations are borrowing more money than at any previous time since the outbreak of the war, the applications made in February totaling $303,554,300, the heaviest total in years. But there is not the slightest evidence of currency inflation, the Government's return of money in circulation in the United States in February showing a decrease of $7,800,000. Loans of New York banks are estimated to be $1,000,000,000 larger than a year ago. The New York Stock Exchange reports that the market has been swept bare of all bonds that are highly regarded. Textile plants are working feverishly to supply the demands made upon them. In all lines of production, everywhere, the demand exceeds the supply.

The unsettled conditions which prevailed shortly after the war started were felt most keenly in St. Louis in one of its most important lines of manufacturing—the shoe making industry. Not one of several thousand shoe workers—and this included not only the shop men and women, but bookkeepers, clerks, stenographers and other members of the office forces—escaped its effects. Those employes who were not discharged outright were put on part time and some factories closed down altogether for a time. Hundreds of these employes obtained work in other towns and moved away from St. Louis. Today every shoe factory in the city, as well as their branches in other cities, is working at top speed. Everybody who was forced out of a job is back in his old place, or if not, his place has been taken by someone else, and everybody is working on full time.

And what is the effect upon the great mass of the people—the clerks, artisans and laborers? For the first time in many years there is no "bread line" in New York City. There is none in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago or St. Louis. Frederic C. Howe, United States Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, New York, said in a recent speech in St. Louis that the demand for labor in this country never has been more abundant, in relation to the supply, than now. He reported that industrial plants in Cleveland and Pittsburg were keeping every man they could get and paying unskilled workmen $3 and $3.25 a day. The scarcity of domestic help has created a new servant problem in the East. Opportunities for American workmen are all the more bright because of the lack of a new supply of labor usually furnished by immigration from Europe. Whereas the normal immigration before the war was 1,200,000 a year, there now virtually is none, the number of immigrants, about 250,000 a year, being offset by the number who leave the country.

Intimate Glimpses of "Pancho" Villa, the Bandit

of reverses, when he expected to take the town, Villa replied: "I don't know WHEN Toreon will fall. All I know is that it is going to fall."

The bandit leader's association with Huerta and his knowledge of the methods of the Federal army caused him to make several changes in his own tactics which resulted to his great advantage. First, he eliminated the vast army of women camp followers that always trailed in the wake of the Federal army, and this gave his organization an added mobility, reduced the amount of subsistence necessary and improved the discipline of his men. Then he established the custom of making night attacks. He held that they had a bad moral effect on the enemy and gave better protection to the attacking force. Events justified his views. Torreon was taken in this way.

His next innovation was to provide for added rapidity of movement. He attempted so far as possible to mount every man in his army, and each man carried a small commissary department behind his saddle. There being no women or children to hamper their movements, he soon had under his command probably as mobile a body of troops as the world has ever seen. He also established a hospital service, equipping a small train with an operating car, bunk cars, medical supplies and a small corps of surgeons and nurses.

The amazement of military critics was aroused when Villa took Torreon, then abandoned the town, returned northward and attacked Chihuahua, but failing to take it, made another march northward and suprised and took Juarez. The question was, why did he abandon Torreon after he had taken it? Indeed, why did he attack Torreon first, leaving well garrisoned cities like Chihuahua and Juarez still in the rear? It looked like very bad generalship, but a member of his staff gave an illuminating explanation:

"At that time, Gen. Villa was desperately in need of arms and ammunition," he said. "The border was closed to imports and besides he had no money to buy them with in the United States. In brief, his only chance was to take them away from the Federals. Torreon seemed to furnish fair prospects of such supplies and he went there to get them. There was no question of strategy in the business. Unfortunately, the supplies were not what we had expected they would be. However, the General exacted a contribution from the town and that helped a little. In looking over those earlier movements, you must always remember that you are considering an army that had to keep itself supplied by defeating the enemy. All the articles that Gen. Villa has, for instance, were taken from the Federal forces."

In his campaign around Torreon, Villa kept the enemy worried all day by artillery fire and then, when he had driven them from their advanced positions, or had discovered their arrangement, would, after dark, order his infantry forward in a series of attacks. His soldiers kept in touch with one another by turning up their hats on the same side, by removing them altogether, by rolling up their sleeves or by some other method, varying the signal each night. By these tactics Villa simply wore the defenders of Torreon out.

It is on record that after the capture of Juarez, however, Villa made no strategic blunders—if blunders they were. It all shows that he is pretty well versed in the art of war. In addition he has the advantages of a band of followers who are almost fanatical in their devotion to him, and the security of the mountains of Sonora, every rock and canyon of which he is reputed to know.

St. Louis Girl of 10 a Piano Genius

Students of eugenics and heredity will find confirmation of some of their favorite principles in Lorna's case. One of these is that children of genius are usually the offspring of mature parents, especially as to the father. Dr. Drew was 55 years old when Lorna was born, and her mother was 36. On both sides she comes from musical people. Dr. Drew played the violin and flute, and his father, an Englishman, was so fond of music that he and his wife and children organized a family orchestra, which he drilled with great strictness.

Lorna's half-sister, Miss Cross, is an accomplished pianist, and her half-brother, Harold Cross, after being taught the violin by Dr. Drew, acquired for himself skill at the piano, pipe organ, cornet and clarinet. Mrs. Drew, 15 years ago, was a well-known piano teacher in St. Louis under her name by her first marriage, Mrs. Anna Cross.

After her marriage to Dr. Drew 11 years ago, they settled in the village of Ethel, in Macon County, Mo., where Lorna was born, and where she had her first instruction from her mother. As Lorna was in delicate health and small for her age, for two years she had to sit on her mother's lap to practice. Three years ago Dr. Drew became an invalid, and the family came to St. Louis in August, 1914. Lorna was 8 years old at the time, and entered school for the first time, at the Washington Public School. That she has an all-round intelligence is proved by the fact that in little more than a year and a half she has made her way from the first grade to the fourth.

Since coming to the city her health has improved, and she is encouraged by her mother to play out-of-doors as much as possible. Her favorite games are rope-skipping and swinging. She put aside dolls as too frivolous a few months ago, and for indoor amusement now devotes herself to the serious pursuits of dominoes and checkers. She has appeared at one public recital here, at Baldwin Hall, on Jan. 29, and at a few recitals in private homes.

At Baldwin Hall she played the piano part to Brahms' "Sandman," for Mrs. James G. Calhoun, a St. Louis singer. Lorna did not see the music until the day of the concert and had never played it with Mrs. Calhoun until the public performance. Nevertheless, the singer, after finishing the song, announced to the audience that it was one of the most artistic accompaniments she had ever had the good fortune to enjoy. It is the intention of Lorna's parents to continue with the development of her talents for piano playing and composition.

We Look Toward London

brother Elihu's pocket is getting lighter. We have spent our whole fortune (the money we received for our half of the house) on the doctors and the Feldshers—all on account of my mamma's eyes.

I overheard my brother Elihu and his chum Pini say: "If only we could drag ourselves through to London at least!"

Our neighbor, fat Pesi, is in America long ago with her whole crowd. "Vashti" (Herschel with the bump on his forehead) is marching around there with his hands in his pockets, through all the streets, cracking nuts. Our mechutin—Jonah the baker—Rivele, the baker's wife, and their bokim (sons) and my girl Alte could not wait for my mamma's eyes, and went away to America without us.

Oh, oh, oh, the doings that day in Antwerp! We did not let my mamma go to the ship because she would have to bid the mechutonim good-by and would cry in the meantime and spoil the little that is left of her eyes. But what good did that do us? She cried still more.

Do you know who is glad that our mechutonim have gone? Goldele! The girl with the bad eyes, the one whose father and mother have been in America now for more than a year while she is staying here, in Antwerp, on account of her eyes. When she heard our mechutonim were going away, she wanted to dance for joy. Why? Because she hates Alte, the one they once spoke of as a girl for me. Goldele hates her because she is stuck up. Goldele hates a person who puts on airs.

Then she tells me how she goes to the doctor every day to cure her eyes; how the doctor rubs her eyes with the same bluestone he uses on all the other patients.

"Oh, if Providence would only help me to get a bluestone of my own! Then perhaps I might be able some day to see my papa and mamma." * * *

So Goldele says with tears in her black eyes. I cannot bear to hear her talk of her papa and mamma. It wrings my heart. I cannot bear to see her cry.

I know for sure now that we are going next Sabbath, in the morning, to London. We are beginning to get ready for the journey. My mamma and my sister-in-law Brocha and our chum Pini's wife Taibel go from one inn to the other to bid the crowd of emigrants good-by. Not so much to bid them good-by as to pour out their troubles to people. And what do we find? After all, we are kings compared to the other emigrants. There are such funny shlim mazoles ("Johans") in the crowd and they envy us!

We are still in Antwerp, but not for long. Soon, very soon, we will leave for London. All the emigrants, the whole crowd, are leaving! * * *

What will become of Antwerp?

The Teeth of the Tiger

Yes, yes, I swear it will. Ten days after the fourth letter means now, because there has been a 10 days' delay in the delivery of the letters. It means now, at 3 o'clock in the morning. Remember what was written on the sheet which Deputy Chief Weber handed you this morning: 'The explosicn is independent of the letters. It will take place at 3 o'clock in the morning.' At 3 o'clock in the morning, today, Monsieur le Prefet!" The voice faltered and then continued:

"Go away, please. Let no one remain in the house. You must believe me. I know everything about the business. And nothing can prevent the threat from being executed. Go, go, go! This is horrible; I feel that you do not believe me—and I have no strength left. Go away, every one of you!"

He said a few more words which M. Desmalions could not make out. Then the voice ceased; and, though the Prefect still heard cries, it seemed to him that those cries were distant, as though the instrument were no longer within the reach of the mouth that uttered them.

He hung up the receiver.

"Gentlemen," he said, with a smile, "it is 17 to 3. In 17 minutes we shall all be blown up together. At least, that is what our good friend Don Luis Perenna declares."

Sergt. Mazeroux went up to M. Desmalions. His face was pallid.

"Monsieur le Prefet, did he tell you that we were going to be blown up?"

"He did. He relies on the note which M. Weber found in a volume of Shakspeare. The explosion is to take place tonight."

"And do you propose to remain, Monsieur le Prefet?"

"What next, Sergeant? Do you imagine that we are going to obey that gentleman's fancies?"

Mazeroux staggered, hesitated, and then, despite all his natural deference, unable to contain himself, exclaimed:

"Monsieur le Prefet, it's not a fancy. I have worked with Don Luis. I know the man. If he tells you that something is going to happen, it's because he has his reasons."

"In other words, you want us to run away."

"But it's not running away, Monsieur le Prefet. It's a simple precaution. After all, we can't risk—— You, yourself, Monsieur le Prefet"——

"That will do."

"But, Monsieur le Prefet, as Don Luis said"——

"That will do, I say!" repeated the Prefect harshly. Mazeroux turned and went back to his place at a distance.

Silence followed. M. Desmalions began to walk up and down the room, with his hands behind his back.

Three o'clock in the morning! * * * The words kept on recurring to his mind. Twice he looked at his watch. There was 12 minutes left. There was 10 minutes.. On looking at his companions, he was amazed to see how drawn their faces were; and he felt his courage sink in a strange way.

With great simplicity, Mazeroux went on his knees, made the sign of the cross, and said his prayers in a low voice. The action was so impressive that the secretary general and the chief detective made a movement as though to go toward the Prefect of Police.

M. Desmalions turned away his head and continued his walk up and down the room. But his anguish increased; and the words which he had heard over the telephone rang in his ears; and all Perenna's authority, his ardent entreaties, his frenzied conviction—all this upset him. He had seen Perenna at work. He felt it borne in upon him that he had no right, in the present circumstances, to neglect the man's warning.

"Let's go," he said.

The words were spoken in the calmest manner; and it really seemed as if those who heard them regarded them merely as the sensible conclusion of a very ordinary state of affairs. They went away without hurry or disorder, not as fugitives, but as men deliberately obeying the dictates of prudence.

In the hall he asked the chief detective to blow his whistle. When all the plain clothes men had assembled, he sent them out of the house together with the porter, and shut the door behind him. Then, calling the detectives who were watching the boulevard, he said:

"Let everybody stand a good distance away; push the crowd as far back as you can, and be quick about it. We shall enter the house again in half an hour."

They were silent, irritated by the wait, and struggling with the absurd anxiety that oppressed them. They counted the seconds singly, by the beating of their hearts. It was interminable.

Three o'clock sounded from somewhere.

"You see," grinned M. Desmalions, in an altered voice, "you see! There's nothing, thank goodness!"

Another clock, farther away. Then the hour also rang from the roof of a neighboring building.

Before the third stroke had sounded they heard a kind of cracking, and, the next moment, came the terrible blast, complete, but so brief that they had only, so to speak, a vision of an immense sheaf of flames and smoke shooting forth enormous stones and pieces of wall, something like the grand finale of a fireworks display. And it was all over. The volcano had erupted.

"Look sharp!" shouted the Prefect of Police, darting forward. "Telephone for the engine, quick, in case of fire!"

He caught Mazeroux by the arm:

"Run to my motor; you'll see her a hundred yards down the boulevard. Tell the man to drive you to Don Luis, and, if you find him, release him and bring him here."

Mazeroux fulfilled his mission. That afternoon the deputy chief had ceased his search of the house, by M. Desmalion's orders, as Don Luis' escape seemed certain, and left only three men on duty. Mazeroux found them in a room on the ground floor, where they were sitting up in turns. In reply to his questions they declared that they had not heard a sound.

He went upstairs alone, so as to have no witnesses to his interview with the governor, passed through the drawing room and entered the study.

Here he was overcome with anxiety, for, after turning on the light, the first glance revealed nothing to his eyes.

"Chief!" he cried, repeatedly. "Where are you, Chief?"

No answer.

"And yet," thought Mazeroux, "as he telephoned, he can't be very far away."

In fact, he saw from where he stood that the receiver was hanging from its cord; and, going on to the telephone box, he stumbled over bits of brick and plaster that strewed the carpet. He then switched on the light in the box as well and saw a hand and arm hanging from the ceiling above him. The ceiling was broken up all around that arm. But the shoulder had not been able to pass through; and Mazeroux could not see the captive's head.

He sprang on to a chair and reached the hand. He felt it and was reassured by the warmth of its touch.

"Is that you, Mazeroux?" asked a voice that seemed to the sergeant to come from very far away.

"Yes, it is I. You're not wounded, are you? Nothing serious?"

"No, only stunned—and a bit faint—from hunger. * * * Listen to me."

"I'm listening."

"Open the second drawer on the left in my writing desk. * * * You'll find"——

"Yes, Chief."

"An old stick of chocolate."

"But"——

"Do as I tell you, Alexandre; I'm famished."

Indeed, Don Luis recovered after a moment or two and said, in a gayer voice:

"That's better. I can wait now. Go to the kitchen and fetch me some bread and some water."

"I'll be back at once, Chief."

"Not this way. Come back by Florence Levasseur's room and the secret passage to the ladder which leads to the trapdoor at the top."

And he told him how to make the stone swing out and how to enter the hollow in which he had expected to meet with such a tragic end.

The thing was done in 10 minutes. Mazeroux cleared the opening, caught hold of Don Luis by the legs and pulled him out of his hole.

When Don Luis was seated in his bedroom and had swallowed a few bits of bread and drunk what he wanted, he told his story:

"Yes, it took the devil's own pluck, old man. I couldn't breathe. I went on digging, however, while I was half asleep, in a sort of nightmare. Just look; my fingers are in a jelly. But there, I was thinking of that confounded business of the explosion and I wanted to warn you at all costs, and I dug away at my tunnel. I felt space at last!

"I got my hand through and next my arm. Where was I? Why, over the telephone, of course! I knew that at once by feeling the wall and finding the wires. Then it took me quite half an hour to get hold of the instrument. I couldn't reach it with my arm.

"I managed at last, with a piece of string and a slipknot to fish up the receiver and hold it near my mouth, or, say, at 10 inches from my mouth. And then I shouted and roared to make my voice carry; and, all the time, I was in pain. And then, at last, my string broke. * * * And then—and then—I hadn't an ounce of strength left in my body."

He looked at Mazeroux and asked him, as though certain of the reply:

"The explosion took place, didn't it?"

"Yes, Chief.'

"At 3 o'clock exactly?"

"Yes."

"And, of course, M. Desmalions had the house cleared?"

"Yes."

"At the last minute?"

"At the last minute."

He kept on eating while he talked; and each mouthful seemed to bring back a little of his usual animation.

When he had shaved, bathed and dressed, he sat down to the breakfast of eggs and cold meat which Mazeroux had prepared for him; and then, getting up, said:

"Now, let's be off."

"But there's no hurry, Chief. Why don't you lie down for a few hours? The Prefect can wait."

"You're mad! What about Marie Fauville?"

"Marie Fauville?"

"Why, of course! Do you think I'm going to leave her in prison, or Sauverand, either? There's not a second to lose, old chap."

They came to the Boulevard Suchet, where the crowd was so dense that they had to alight from the car. On the other side of the boulevard, under the pale morning sky in which a few black clouds still lingered, Don Luis saw the havoc wrought by the explosion. It was apparently not so great as he had expected. Some of the ceilings had fallen in and their rubbish showed through the yawning cavities of the windows; but the house remained standing. Even Fauville's built-out annex had not suffered overmuch, and, strange to say, the electric light, which the Prefect had left burning on his departure, had not gone out. The garden and the road were covered with stacks of furniture, over which a number of soldiers and police kept watch.

"Come with me, Chief," said Mazeroux, as he fetched Don Luis and led him toward the engineer's workroom.

A part of the floor was demolished. The outer walls on the left, near the passage, were cracked; and two workmen were fixing up beams, brought from the nearest timber yard, to support the ceiling. But, on the whole, the explosion had not had the results which the man who prepared it must have anticipated.

M. Desmalions was there, together with all the men who had spent the night in the room and several important persons from the public prosecutor's office. Weber, the deputy chief detective, alone had gone, refusing to meet his enemy.

Don Luis' arrival caused great excitement. The Prefect at once came up to him and said:

"All our thanks, Monsieur. Your insight is above praise. You have saved our lives; and these gentlemen and I wish to tell you so most emphatically. In my case, it is the second time that I have to thank you."

"There is a very simple way of thanking me, Monsieur le Prefet," said Don Luis, "and that is to allow me to carry out my task to the end."

"Your task?"

"Yes, Monsieur le Prefet. My action of last night is only the beginning. The conclusion is the release of Marie Fauville and Gaston Sauverand."

"Monsieur le Prefet," he continued, "you waited in vain for the fourth letter to make its appearance. We shall now be able, by an unexpected miracle of chance, to be present at the delivery of the letter. You will then know that it was the same hand that committed all the crimes—and you will know whose hand that was."

And, turning to Mazeroux:

"Sergeant, will you please make the room as dark as you can? The shutters are gone; but you might draw the curtain across the windows and close the doors. Monsieur le Prefet, is it by accident that the electric light is on?"

"Yes, by accident. We will have it turned out."

"One moment. Have any of you gentlemen a pocket lantern about you? Or, no, it doesn't matter. This will do."

There was a candle in a sconce. He took it and lit it. Then he switched off the electric light.

There was a half darkness, amid which the flame of the candle flickered in the draft from the windows. Don Luis protected the flame with his hand and moved to the table.

"I do not think that we shall be kept waiting long," he said. "As I foresee it, there will be only a few seconds before the facts speak for themselves and better than I could do."

Those few seconds, during which no one broke the silence, were unforgettable. Sitting on the edge of the table, with his head thrown a little back and his eyes roaming over the ceiling. Don Luis was eating a piece of bread and nibbling at a cake of chocolate. He seemed very hungry, but quite at his ease.

The others maintained that tense attitude which we put on at moments of great physical effort. Their faces were distorted with a sort of grimace. The flame of the candle cast shadows on the wall.

More seconds elapsed than Don Luis Perenna had said, thirty or forty seconds, perhaps, that seemed endless. Then Perenna lifted the candle a little and said:

"There you are."

They had all seen what they now saw almost as soon as he spoke. A letter was descending from the ceiling. It spun round slowly, like a leaf falling from a tree without being driven by the wind. It just touched Don Luis and alighted on the floor between two legs of the table.

Picking up the paper and handing to M. Desmalions, Don Luis said:

"There you are, Monsieur le Prefet. This is the fourth letter, due last night."

CHAPTER XIV.

The Hater.

M. DESMALIONS looked at him without understanding, and looked from him to the ceiling. Perenna said:

"Oh, there's no witchcraft about it; and, though no one has thrown that letter from above, though there is not the smallest hole in the ceiling, the explanation is quite simple. Sergt. Mazeroux, would you mind drawing back the curtains and giving us as much light as possible?"

While Mazeroux was executing his orders and M. Desmalions glancing at the fourth letter, the contents of which were unimportant and merely confirmed the previous ones, Don Luis took a pair of steps which the workmen had left in the corner, set it up in the middle of the room and climbed to the top, where, seated astride, he was able to reach the electric chandelier.

It consisted of a broad, circular band in brass, beneath which was a festoon of crystal pendants. Inside were three lamps placed at the corners of a brass triangle concealing the wires.

He uncovered the wires and cut them. Then he began to take the whole fitting to pieces. To hasten matters he asked for a hammer and broke up the plaster all round the clamps that held the chandelier in position.

"Lend me a hand, please," he said to Mazeroux.

Mazeroux went up the steps; and between them they took hold of the chandelier and let it slide down the uprights. The detectives caught it and placed it on the table with some difficulty, for it was much heavier than it looked.

On inspection, it proved to be surmounted by a cubical metal box, measuring about eight inches square, which box, being fastened inside the ceiling between the iron clamps, had obliged Don Luis to knock away the plaster that concealed it.

"What the devil's this?" exclaimed M. Desmalions.

"Open it for yourself, Monsieur le Prefet; there's a lid to it," said Perenna.

M. Desmalions raised the lid. The box was filled with springs and wheels, a whole complicated and detailed mechanism resembling a piece of clockwork.

"By your leave, Monsieur le Prefet," said Don Luis.

He took out one piece of machinery and discovered another beneath it, joined to the first by the gearing of two wheels; and the second was more like one of those automatic apparatuses which turn out printed slips.

Right at the bottom of the box, just where the box touched the ceiling, was a semicircular groove, and at the edge of it was a letter ready for delivery.

"The last of the five letters," said Don Luis, "doubtless continuing the series of denunciations. You will notice, Monsieur le Prefet, that the chandelier originally had a fourth lamp in the center. It was obviously removed when the chandelier was altered, so as to make room for the letters to pass."

He continued his detailed explanations:

"So the whole set of letters was placed here, at the bottom. A clever piece of machinery, controlled by clockwork, took them one by one at the appointed time, pushed them to the edge of the groove concealed between the lamps and the pendants, and projected them into space."

None of those standing around Don Luis spoke, and all of them seemed perhaps a little disappointed. The whole thing was certainly very clever; but they had expected something better than a trick of springs and wheels, however surprising.

THESE are the three graces of smart dress for the coming season. One simply MUST wear fussy stockings, fanciful—not to say fantastic—footgear and frilly frocks — the fussier, fancifuller and frillier they are, the more chic. One may have her pedigree and her father's rating in Dun's and Bradstreet's embroidered on her hosiery without doing great violence to the mode. As for her shoes—well, just look at the pictures! Of course, there are more sober styles for the shrinking, violet kind of girl, but violets are not particularly fashionable in the merry spring of 1916.
